Motor Messenger Service Officials to Sponsor Sousa Concert at Naval Recruiting Rallies on Thursday at the Academy of Music

Thursday, one at 3 o'clock, the other at 8, under the auspices of the Motor Messenger Service, and Lieutenant John Philip Sousa-get that "lieutenant," for "he's in the navy now"---will lead a band "he's in the navy and fifty-seven sailors more this week. The Motor Messenger Service is, as you may know, a volunteer organization formed to do war work "for duration." The officers are Mrs. Thomas L. Elwyn, Mrs. Henry Price Wright and Mrs. Morgan Churchman. The staff consists of Mrs. George Dallas Dixon, Jr., Mrs. Florens Rivinus, Miss Helen Dougherty, Mrs. Sydney Thayer, Miss Mary McIntyre and Miss Madeline Asbury.

Apropos of the recreation building, I heard this the other day: A man who had been to the navy yard on business brought two jackles uptown in his car. One of them said: "Before I came here I used to think it was an awful place. Everybody spoke of Philadelphia as such a snobbish hole that I dreaded being ordered here. But I've never been entertained anywhere as I have been here. Why people are just falling over themselves to be nice to us." So, now, I guess that will make us feel pretty fine.

DID you ever know anything to beat it? One day you hear so and so is coming out and next day you hear she isn't. One minute there is a large rumor that invitations are out for this or that tes and the next minute you hear they are not, so the only ones I am ready to believe are to be debbies this year are Mary Newbold and Helen Griffiths, in Chestnut Hill, because the former has ome out and the latter came today, and invitations were sent out, that I'll swear to, for didn't I get them myself, and didn't Mary Newbold have the first day on Saturday and there will be the second next Saturday and the third on October 27.

Mary Newbold is named after her mother, you know, who was Mary Scott, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Scott, whose beautiful old house at Nineteenth and Rittenhouse Square used to be one of the landmarks of the city, Like the old Brown house, on the corner of Nineteenth and Walnut streets, the Scott home has been converted into a large apartment house, the Edgar Scotts prering to live at their country place in

SCHOOL TO GIVE RED CROSS FAIR

Baldwin School in Girard Farms to Have Street Carnival Next Friday

The woman who remarked the other day that in giving her son to the National Army she had given quite sufficient for one woman that in giving her son to the National Army she had given quite sufficient for one woman of the country can hardly be said to show the prevailing spirit of the American woman. We all know and realize that in giving our soms or husbands we are making the supreme act of sarrifice, but in many cases this biggest act of all seems only to increase our desire to do more for the wonderful country that has asked so little for all the protection and advant s we have enjoyed for the last fifty years. Witness the mag-nificent work being done everywhere by the Red Cross! And only too frequently we find the most theleas workers are those whom some one has "left behind"! The Board of Education has planned a stu-pendous Red Cross campaign through the schools this winter, and in all sections plans are being discussed and placed under way for various projects that will raise the dif-ferent allotments that each school is sup-posed to contribute.

forent allotments that each school is sup-poned to contribute. The Baldwin School, at Seventeenth and Porter streets, has several entertainments already under way, the first of which will take place this Friday evening. As the weather outdoors is yet very pleasant, it is planned to have a street carnival in the exclusive Girard Farms section, so that Celorado terrace between Porter and Shunk streets will be artistically decorated and lighted, and all manner of interesting attractions will help to coax the neighbor-ing residents, and the many friends of the teachers and pupils at the school, to spend an hour or two with the ambitious workers, and of course, something that will be con-The wedding of Miss Florence Caveny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Caveny, and Mr. William J. The little handbills that the teachers have distributed promise dancing to the strains of a thoroughly up-to-the-minute orchestra, candy and ice-cream cones for the little ones; a bakery, where one can purchase home-made pies and cakes; lemonade and dainty little crackers for those who are just a wee bit thirsty; sandwiches, the "hungry" kind, presumably far those for whom the lemonade and dainty cakes have no attractions; a country market, where luded in the membership are 100 women. ٥ no attractions; a country market, where one can do one's shopping for the weekareal Hoover booth, showing "jelltes, jams and sweet marmalades"—and, by the way, most of these have been made by the teachers themselves from the various "war gardens" attempted during the summer; a clipping party, with all its accompanying surprises, and lastly, the much-desired fancy booth, where one can do one's Christmas shopping and buy pretty and unusual things embroidered and painted by the different workers. As it is getting late now for car-nivals, it is to be hoped that this last one of the year will be splendidly patronized and that the Red Cross will be materially benefited by the affair. Mrs. Robert H. Moore, wife of Lieutenant Moore, U. S. N., of 2513 South Colorado ter-race, is ontertaining her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer C. Briggs, of Wareham, Mass. They came to the city on Saturday and will main about a week.

Darby. Mrs. Newbold died shortly after her husband had built the handsome house 1313 Locust street, which since then has been occupied by the Charlemagne Towers until Gertrude's tragic death last year decided them to abandon the house and live at the Bellevue when not traveling.

Mr. Newbold is a brother of Mrs. Beauveau Borie, Jr., and of Mr. John S. Newbold, who married the beautiful Virginia Campbell some years ago. Mary is very lovely and very popular in the younger set, and should have a very good time at the few parties which will be given this year. I understand the Prices are not ber 3. going to bring Rachel out after all, but you never can tell, can you? It is too early for invites for that time next month anyhow, so we can't prove it one way or another, and after all every one has a right to change his or her mind. The second debut of the season took place this afternoon in Chestnut Hill, when Helen Griffith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Ogelsby Griffith was given a tea by her parents. The Griffiths live on Stenton avenue, you know, and the tea was given there. Helen wore a white net frock and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of pink rosebuds.
