

DYNAMITE FOUND IN CITY HALL AREA

Enough Explosive to Destroy South Buildings Discovered by Janitor

POLICE INVESTIGATION Twenty Sticks of 'Powder' Under Controller's Window Arouse Suspicion of Plot

Enough dynamite to wreck the south side of City Hall and to topple over the 548-foot tower surmounted by William Penn's statue was found today in an arca-way on the south plaza, twelve feet below the street surface.

The position of the explosive—against the side wall under the office of City Controller Walton and near the big vaults of the city treasury and the Broad street subway excavation—was sufficient to cause a rigid censorship to be clamped down on details of the discovery.

The find was made this morning by Nathaniel Rambo, foreman of the cleaners. Going on his usual rounds, he noted the dynamite lying near the wall in an arca-way just east of the South Broad street entrance.

There were more than twenty sticks of the "powder," weighing about three pounds. No fuses or caps were found, it was said. He took the dynamite to the office of Superintendent of Maintenance Herry, who communicated with the police and ordered a full report. In the meantime every effort was made to suppress news of the discovery.

The finding of the dynamite, coming at a time when the sensational "bloody pit" Ward murder conspiracy charges against Mayor Smith and eight other city employees are being aired in City Hall, caused no little excitement among the hundreds of city workers and the thousands of people who gathered at the spot where the dynamite was found.

Examination of the spot where the dynamite was found showed that it was placed there with difficulty. There are only two means of ingress into the arca-way, one from the street above and the other from City Hall. To enter it from the south plaza, where it opens to the sky, a man would have to climb a ladder, spike-studded iron railing and then drop the twelve feet to the bottom, or use a rope or ladder, there being no footholds on the sheer granite walls that form the opening to the basement.

A theory that the dynamite was brought from the Broad street subway excavation by some workman who stole it was discounted when it was learned that the excavation, although within thirty-five feet of the place where the dynamite was found, does not communicate with the arca-way. It was further pointed out that no workman could have access to the engine rooms, said to be the most probable avenue of approach.

PHYSICIAN SENT TO JAIL Doctor Bricker Is Arrested in Connection With Woman's Death

Dr. William H. Bricker, a physician, with an office at 1415 North Broad street, was committed to prison by Deputy Coroner Arthur Sellers today to await the action of the Grand Jury in connection with the death of Mrs. Sara Pineberg, thirty-four years old, of 1028 South Seventh street, who died on August 25.

BENNETT LED RAID ON CAREY CLUB, WITNESSES DECLARE

Continued from Page One

club, told about the same story of the assault on the club, except that he saw it from outside the clubhouse. He had been to the police station to get a copy of the charges against some Carey workers who had been arrested when the thugery began.

WOMEN ACCUSE POLICE Women were among the witnesses who accused the police of leading the thugery against Carey followers.

Mrs. Daisy Levi, 229 South Fifth street, daughter of Hubert, candidate for Common Councilman on the ticket with Carey, was the first woman introduced as a witness of the Finletter Club raid.

As soon as she left the club, according to Mrs. Levi, she called up the Superintendent of Police on the telephone. The person who answered it, after learning who she was, said that an investigation would be made, she said.

LAWYER BLACKJACKED ON STREET Harry A. Brenner, 224 Pine street, an attorney and founder of the National Preparatory School, said that he was leaving the club at 10:15 o'clock on the morning of the attack.

While the witnesses were describing the raid on the Finletter Club and the blackjacking of the Carey followers, Lieutenant Bennett, who was in the club when the raid broke in, said that he was in the club when the raid broke in, and that he was in the club when the raid broke in.

WOMAN THROWN INTO CLOSET Mrs. J. Stewart, who with her husband are caretakers of the Finletter Club, testified this afternoon that she was standing near a swinging door leading from the club to the clubroom on the ground floor when the gunmen broke in.

How Detective Eppley was shot and killed was described in detail by Mrs. Emma Griffiths, the colored woman eyewitness, and Police Sergeant Thomas Quinn, of Twenty-sixth and Federal streets station. While they were narrating the details of the raid, the levity with which he had been following the hearing.

CORTELYOU TO TESTIFY Startling testimony from James T. Cortelyou, chief United States postal inspector, was forecast when he held a long conference in the District Attorney's office with Mr. Rotan today.

HALF-PRICED THEATRE TICKETS FOR SAILORS

Bank at Navy Yard Also Planned, It Is Announced at City Club 'Long Table'

Plans for a bank for sailors at the Philadelphia Navy Yard and for the sale of theatre tickets to enlisted men at half price were announced at the "long table luncheon" at the City Club, Broad street, below Spruce, this afternoon.

MAURER ON STAND Assistant District Attorney John H. Maurer, who was blackjacked and beaten by the "Frog Hollow" gunmen almost at the same time as the Carey boys, was shot to death, took the witness stand late this afternoon and in minute detail described the attack on Carey and himself.

They were armed with pistols when they made their attack, he said, and he identified Masca as the man whom he saw shooting. Falone he was not sure of. He said he could not positively identify him as one of the gunmen.

THE ASSAULT DESCRIBED "Carey was walking a little ahead," he said. "Stern left us. As I was crossing the street I thought about the additional witnesses who had been taken for trouble from the alley. I stepped to the curbstone, when men rushed me from behind. I got hit on the head and went down. I heard a shot and saw a man on several times after I was down and while I was getting up. I saw blackjacks flying all around us. Some one had this man Costello down from him and took a blackjack away from him."

When he got up I saw another group of men. They were around Carey, and he was bleeding. One of the gang was pointing a gun at him. Then three or four other gunmen came up.

After Mercantile Appraiser Carey had been blackjacked by the gunmen he was placed under arrest by Foreman Hayden, the negro defendant, according to testimony by Police Officer Schick, of the Third and De Lancey streets station.

WOMAN THROWN INTO CLOSET Mrs. J. Stewart, who with her husband are caretakers of the Finletter Club, testified this afternoon that she was standing near a swinging door leading from the club to the clubroom on the ground floor when the gunmen broke in.

How Detective Eppley was shot and killed was described in detail by Mrs. Emma Griffiths, the colored woman eyewitness, and Police Sergeant Thomas Quinn, of Twenty-sixth and Federal streets station. While they were narrating the details of the raid, the levity with which he had been following the hearing.

CORTELYOU TO TESTIFY Startling testimony from James T. Cortelyou, chief United States postal inspector, was forecast when he held a long conference in the District Attorney's office with Mr. Rotan today.

AMOS P. BROWN, OF PENN FACULTY, DIES AT SHORE

Had Recently Retired as Head of Department of Geology on Account of Ill Health

Amos Brown, professor of the Department of Mineralogy and Geology at the University of Pennsylvania for twenty years, died this morning in Atlantic City, where he had been during the last week to recover his health. The immediate cause of his death was a carbuncle, but because he had resigned from the University last May after a brief leave of absence. His home was at 29 East Penn street, Germantown.

Professor Brown was born in Germantown, December 3, 1861. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania with the degree of bachelor of science and mining engineer. From 1887 to 1889 he was engaged as an assistant on the second geological survey of Pennsylvania, when he accepted an appointment as instructor in mining and metallurgy at the university. He received the degree of doctor of Philosophy in 1892.

He was a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, the American Philosophical Society, Academy of Natural Sciences, Geological Society of America and numerous other scientific and educational societies. He was a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a member of the honorary scientific Society of Sigma Xi, which a charter member of the University of Pennsylvania chapter.

MRS. MARTIN MAKES STRONG PLEA TO D. A. R. Urges Keystone Women to Do More Than Share in War-Winning Work

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Oct. 9.—An intensely patriotic address by Mrs. J. Willis Martin, of Philadelphia, chairman of the women's committee of the Council of National Defense, was the feature of the first day's sessions of the State conference of the American Revolution, which assembled in Liberty Bell Church, as guests of the Liberty Bell Chapter of Allentown.

She spoke with eloquence in beseeching the daughters to see that the women of Pennsylvania do even more than their proportionate share of work in winning the war.

COMMERCE BODY HEARS REVIEW OF RESOLUTIONS Philadelphia Chamber Listens to Discussion of Big Business Men's National Conference

ELIOT H. GOODWIN, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, today reviewed the twenty-seven resolutions passed at the war convention of business held in Atlantic City during the third week in September at the meeting of the representatives of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, held in the Hotel Adelphi today.

COURT ORDERS BENNETT'S NAME PUT ON BALLOT Sixteen More Indictments Filed for Fraud in New York Primary

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Supreme Court Justice Whitaker today signed an order calling for the name of William M. Bennett, former State Senator, to be placed on all the ballots to be used at the election next month as the regular Republican candidate for Mayor instead of Mayor John P. Mitchell.

'DEAD' CONTRACTOR ALIVE; IS ARRESTED

Searing's Resurrection on Warrant Amazes Mourners for 'Drowned' Man

Frederick Ros Searing, a former Philadelphia contractor who was believed to have been drowned two years ago at Atlantic City, has turned up alive and in New Orleans with a second wife, according to a statement made today by Ruby R. Vale, an attorney. Mr. Vale is counsel for the Equitable Life Insurance Company, which has refused to pay $18,000 insurance to Mrs. Searing No. 1 on account of failure to prove her husband's death.

INSURANCE CONCERN ACTS Searing is now under arrest in New Orleans, and is said to have partially confessed. Mrs. Searing, on hearing today that her husband was alive, collapsed and fainted in the arms of her mother. She declined to say what course she would pursue in view of the revelations and referred all inquiries to her counsel, former Judge W. W. Porter.

WARFARE FOR WOMAN The warrant was issued through Magistrate Harris, who also issued another for the arrest of the Rendell woman.

SAMMEES IN FRANCE GET REPORT OF SOX'S VICTORY America's Fighting Men Are Greeted With Chicago's 2-to-1 Win Over the Giants

AMERICAN FIELD HEADQUARTERS, France, Sept. 7 (delayed).—Reports of Chicago's 2-to-1 victory over the Giants greeted America's fighting men here as they "banded" from their coats today.

TRIAngle MINTS Take It From Me

Don't be out for the count. Why let anybody hang anything on you when it comes to being wise? Get hep to Triangle Mints.

Take down the "Closed-for-the-Season" sign from between your eyes, and dance clean through your shoes for joy. Oh, Boy! Triangles have got 'em all a-going.

Don't fumble—make it a clean bingle. Scoop up the nearest package of Triangles. It's at the next cigar, candy or drug store—right as you enter. And—listen—they don't burn, bite or sting. There's no "B" in Triangles.

Oh, Daddy, burn my clothes! but bring me Triangles. Now, before you slip.

JAPAN APPROVES OPEN DOOR PLEDGE OF ISHII Comment in Tokio Shows Satisfaction Over Better Understanding With U. S.

TOKYO, Oct. 9.—The press and public did not believe that Ishii had proclaimed an adapted Monroe Doctrine by Japan over Asia, but rather that he had merely indicated Japan's guarantee of China's integrity and of the open door.

Comment today expressed the belief that the Japanese commissioner and Secretary Lansing had reached a complete agreement covering Japan's special position in the Far East. Dispatches detailing favorable comment on Ishii's pledge at the Waldorf dinner in New York were given prominence here, as indicating the American public itself was fully cognizant of the importance of the announcement and of its significance in marking complete harmony between the two nations.

The press and public did not believe that Ishii had proclaimed an adapted Monroe Doctrine by Japan over Asia, but rather that he had merely indicated Japan's guarantee of China's integrity and of the open door.

TRIAngle MINTS

Take It From Me

Don't be out for the count. Why let anybody hang anything on you when it comes to being wise? Get hep to Triangle Mints.

Take down the "Closed-for-the-Season" sign from between your eyes, and dance clean through your shoes for joy. Oh, Boy! Triangles have got 'em all a-going.

Don't fumble—make it a clean bingle. Scoop up the nearest package of Triangles. It's at the next cigar, candy or drug store—right as you enter. And—listen—they don't burn, bite or sting. There's no "B" in Triangles.

Oh, Daddy, burn my clothes! but bring me Triangles. Now, before you slip.

Every little Triangle is on the square—Peppermint, Cinnamon, Clove, Wintergreen, Try 'em.

Distributors Ripley, Johnson & Co. 34-36 South 16th Street Philadelphia, Pa.