McGraw Will Not Admit Defeat and Says His Team Will Win the Series—Recalls Post-Season Games With Red Sox

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—NEW YORK still is staggering and wobbly after that double wallop administered to the Giants baseball club in Chicago. The rabid rosters who hocked the family jewels and soaked the old homestead to get additional coin to wager on the chances of the McGraw entry now are peering into the future with as much hope as a drowning sailor floating on a leaking sponge.

But that hope which is said to spring eternal has not forsaken the unanimous selection for second money, and the National League champions are confident they will come back and win. Those two trimmings mean nothing in their young lives, hey say, and when they appear on the Polo Grounds before the home folks they will show the White Sox some regular baseball. They probably were thinking of the Polo Grounds last Saturday and Sunday and forgot all about Comiskey Park.

DROPPED by ball, a fizzle at a critical time and the disqualification of Joe Jackson, Eddie Collins, Happy Felsch and a couple of others should give the Giants one game in the series, if both teams play up to the form displayed thus far.

McGraw Still Has Hope and Recalls the Series of 1912

"WE AREN'T beaten yet," bravely said Manager McGraw when his bruised and battered players rolled into New York after the pair of accidents out West. "We still have a chance and something will happen in the next two days."

Perhaps this will happen again, for you never can tell what the weather will do in the national game. The ancient history staff has encouraged the players considerably and makes them feel that there still is a chance.

The Giants will not lay down and quit. They have not that kind of a ball club. They will come back harder than ever and hope that the friendly crowd will help them to victory. Heinie Zimmerman should do better, for in Chicago he couldn't turn around without receiving hoots, boos, catcalls and other forms of the "raz" from the exuberant South Side fans.

SLIM SALLEE is the most promising candidate for mound duty this afternoon, but McGraw may cross the hope again and send in Schupp or Benton. Hariden will be behind the bat. But McGarry's injury is expected to mend in time to give him another chance to play in Chicago.

Few Sensational Features in the Games Thus Far

EVERY world series has a hero—some unostentatious player who suddenly leaps into the limelight and wins a couple of games when all hope is lost. In the first two games it is difficult to slip the honor to any one except Joe Jackson, but Joe is playing according to form and was expected to do big things.

Fred McMullin played a great game at third in the first two combats and surprised the wise ones, who predicted the team would be weakened if he played the bag instead of Weaver. The youngster drove in the first run on Saturday, and his fielding was all that could be desired.

GEORGE BURNS stands out among the Giants, but thus far no one can be selected as a star. The players did not show the same form they had in the National League, which leads us to believe that they were in an organization which gave them less opposition than Chicago had in the American League.

Giants Believe They Will Beat Cicotte the Next Time He Starts

ANOTHER hope which seems to make things more pleasant for the New York players is that they expect to drive Eddie Cicotte to cover the next time he starts. After looking over the noted mallet-ball artist in one game they have decided that he is not invincible and his stuff is nothing out of the ordinary.

But Eddie doesn't have to depend on his "shine ball," which has been advertised so extensively of late. He has something else that is just as good and he uses it 75 per cent of the time. It is his famous "knuckle ball," which he says is better than the spitter. Cicotte has been practicing on this for years and mastered it.

PERHAPS it was this delivery that fooled the Giants in the first game, and they expect to kill it today. Perhaps they have the proper dope, but from where we are sitting they will have just as much trouble as before.

BECAUSE the Giants had such an easy time defeating the Phils and other National League clubs, much money has been wagered in Philadelphia on the chances of the McGraw entry now are peering into the future with as much hope as a drowning sailor floating on a leaking sponge.

BIG CROWD TO SEE EXHIBITION GOLF

Barnes - Loos - Buxton - Maxwell Match at Whitemarsh Oct. 14 Feature Event

WILL BE ALL-DAY AFFAIR

If you can drag yourself away for just a moment from the world series we would like to call attention again to the finest golf match that was ever staged in Philadelphia on October 14. Jim Barnes and Cameron H. Buxton will play an all-day best-ball match against Eddie Loos and Norman H. Maxwell over the course of the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club.

HOW TO PLAY GOLF Charles (Chick) Evans Jr.

THIS creak is pre-eminently the club for a good second shot and is capable of long distance. In fact, I may flatter myself, but I think that I can make more than 225 yards with it. It's easy to swing, is thirty-eight inches long and it weighs a little over fifteen ounces.

SCRAPS ABOUT SCRAPPERS

NOW it isn't Rocky Kansas boxing fans are desirous of seeing in action with Champion Benny Leonard, not since the terrific knockout of the Buffalo champion by Willie Jackson. On the contrary Willie Jackson is the one that stands out prominently for a tilt with his fellow townsman and rival.

WOMEN'S GOLF AT HUNTINGDON VALLEY CLUB ALMOST TRAGEDY, BUT FINE EXHIBITION OF PLUCK

Not One of the Brave Army That Left First Tee Quit, Although All Were Wet and Cold and Miserable at End

RAIN seems to be one of the accompaniments of women's golf in this city. The series of interclub matches usually opens with a dash of rain and late in the fall when the tournament play ends it is ushered out with a rain storm.

Never before in the history of the course were such high scores made. Women who should have played around somewhere near 100 were thirty to forty strokes off, and Miss Ethel Maulie, with a score of 160, had the unique experience of making the highest score ever recorded in a golf tournament. It was chiefly reminiscent of the days when she was learning the difference between a brassie and a spoon and it was just sixty strokes worse than she ordinarily takes.

OMAR KHAYYAM-HOURSLESS RACE POSTPONED A WEEK

Heavy Rain Causes Important Event to Be Canceled Tomorrow at Laurel

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Md., Oct. 10.—Rain like the law, is a horrible thing at times. It has caused the postponement of the special race between August Belmont's Hoursless and Whiffed Viau's Omar Khayyam, which was set for tomorrow.

The rainstorm, which began Monday night and continued yesterday, covered the track here into a quagmire. As one of the conditions of the race called for "good day and track" on the insistence of Sam Hillbreth, trainer of Hoursless, and as the chances of it drying out by Thursday are slight, it was announced that the race will be postponed for one week.

MARQUARD ORGANIZES A BARNSTORMING TEAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Rube Marquard and Big Chief McGraw have decided to do a little barnstorming and have organized an independent ball team, on the roster of which are several big leaguers in addition to minor talent.

The little close-coupled Oldsmobile that steered with a handle forms a very interesting chapter in Automobile history. The famous Olds 'Autocrat,' many of them still serving and serving well, was conceded by engineers and experts to be one of the best cars ever put together. Today the Oldsmobile represents the last word in scientific construction. The valuable experience gained through these 20 years is represented in the quality and distinctiveness of the present models. The Oldsmobile is the logical car for you to buy no matter from what standpoint you consider it. We shall be glad to discuss the matter with you in detail. Prices Range from $1185 to $2850 F. O. B.
