HOUSECLEANING TIME NEEDN'T DRIVE MEN OUT OF DOORS-DRESS, COOKERY, HOME HELPS

WISE WIFE HIDES HER TOOLS AT NIGHT IN HOUSECLEANING TIME

Man Won't Object to Clean-Up Week in the Home If Eight-Hour-Day Law Is Observed and Broom Removed From His Path by Five

THEE other night he came home at 6] o'clock and this is what he found: The hall intrenched with bric-a-brac, his bed hiding under the contents of a clothes closet, the dining-room table patiently holding up glassware, silverware, books. a dustless duster and the family photograph album, which he hadn't seen for sars, The kitchen table boasted of a carton of potato salad.

He blazed a trail through chairs, stepindder and the carpet sweeper, swore a tittle and went out.

It was housedeaning time

Now is the season when all people who e stock jokes take out this one about husbands fighting shy of home at housecleaning time. The extraordinary part about this stock joke is that it's true. Husbands all dread and when they get a chance run away from the physical rebirth that comes to every home some time In the fall,

It's such an unnecessary dread, too. It's unnecessary because if housecleaning is gone in for with common sense it can become a thing of joy-even to a husband.

A MAN is a regular boy about seeing something new. Show him a beautiful clean room with all the blue fixings freshened, with the nicely starched curtains newly hung and the bed fixed in a way he's been arguing for for a year and he'll have the time of his life wondering mt it.

It lan't that man doesn't want to live in a clean house. It's that he doesn't she can do them on Wednesday. There want to see how it's made clean!

The big trick in housecleaning and keeping friends with the men of the family at the same time is to HIDE YOUR TOOLS. Put them away at b o'clock each night, like every sensible Inborer

Vyvettes

Although the little hat above has all of feathers, ruffles and ribbon for trimming, it looks quite a simple affair.

All the days in the week are ahead of the housecleaner. If she doesn't "do the pictures" in a certain room on Tuesday is no point to beginning this work at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon when she knows that at 5 a hot supper should be under way for not only the man of the house and the children, but herself! A wise housewife looks ahead and for swears frenzied labor!

PATSY KILDARE

WAS lying in bed twisting Rowdy's ear and looking out of the window this morning when I heard a horn honk. I jumped up and ran out of the house in my nightle and there ways Alice and Mr. Rockrudder in their auto with their driver and two trunks. Allos said: "Bless you, Patsy-" Her father said: "You will catch cold out here in your nightie." Then he put the auto blanket around me and we all set in the auto and talked while Rowdy stood with his front paws on the door of the auto and heard every word we said.

They were on their way to the station to a way on a long visit. Mr. Rockrudder go away on a long visit. Mr. Rockrudder gave me the key to the big house and told me that I could go out there whenever I felt like it and could stay all night or as long as 1 pleased. He said that the cook and the houseman were there and they would get Rowdy and me something to eat at any time. The yardman and the driver would be there, too, and he was not to take the auto out except when I told him to Mr. Rockrudder asked the driver if he un-derstood that, and he said he did. I thought that would be fine. At ce hugged me up tight and told me to take care of myself, as she loved me very much.

I told the driver to come to the school for me at 3 o'clock and he said he would. The driver's name is Levy and he told Mr. Rock-rudder he would do as he was told. Then they went away and waved to me as they went around the corner. Then my father canno home from his night watching and i made his coffee and flopped the pancakes and he went to bed after he ate his break-fast and Rowdy and I rambied.

I climbed the tree by Beil's window and ung all about Alice going away and my mying her house and auto and driver and how glad I was that I was living. Then Bell opened the window and said I would live just as long and she would sleep a lot e both laughed and she said: "Patsy, I nave been thinking about you and have been wondering what is to become of you when you are grown up. I think the training you are getting is not just the thing for a little girl-sleeping alone in a big use with no one but a dog and running wild.

I said: "I am hardly ever wild, Of urse, when some one hands me something o tries to get my goat it makes me wild You ought to know what I am going to be when I grow up." She said: "What?" I said: "A young lady, of course." But she vaid: "I know you will be a lady. It is born in you. But what kind of people will you meet and what kind of a husband will you get?" I said: "You should worry. I am going to be like you and Old Maid Tompilms. I do not want a husband. I have seen too many of them. I have made up my wind to be an old maid and to bring my children up the same way. If they ever dare to look at a man I shall certainly make them hard to catch." Bell laughed till ne tears came and said: "Oh. Patsy, Patsy, ou will be the death of me yet.

Then the school bell rang and Rowdy and hustled. But Bell should worry. I know y business.

Lavy came for me when school was out and I had fried chicken for supper and haved the talking machine LIR just now, then Rowdy and I kneeled and I prayed: Dear mother which art in heaven, what o you know about this? I am going to ave this house and no rent to puy and I ave got an auto like Mrs. Carpenter's and obody had to get flattened out to get it fo nie. Ask God to keep on blessing you and my father till I tell Him to stop. Amen."

"In the Distance," the next Patsy Kildare ad-venture, will appear in tomorrow's Evening Ledger.

MODES Sports Blouse of American

There isn't a great deal of variation in the modeling of the sepa-rate tailored sports blouse for fall from the sports blouse of last summer. But the difference, such as it is, is at once apparent to the eye of the woman who selects her wardrobe with discrimination. One finds some very interesting effects achieved in the modeling of the collars of these blouses-effects that are novel without being ex-treme; which, of course, is the quality to be desired in any tailored blouse designed for sports or shop-ping service. The adjoining illustration shows one of the new Paris model sports blouses with reveres and collar that can be worn opened or buttoned. The front closes and is trimmed with pearl buttons, as are the cuffs. The material is

American Beauty satin.

I should not worry, how-ever, because hair that is healthy and well taken care of is beautiful regardless of its color. Wetting your hair will not make it turn darker. Too frequent and thorough wetting, however, dries out the hair and gives it a washed-out appearance. In sham-pooing your hair use a white soap. This, too, helps to bring out the light time.

No addressing concern in Philadelphia gives out its work so far as I can accer-tain. Oftentimes, in the Sunday newspapers particularly, ads appear in which the serv-ices of women are solicited for home ad-dressing. It would at least do no harm to look into the merits of some of these offers.
