PHIS isn't an idle fancy; it's a perfectly beautiful theory just unfolded by a alstinguished English writer, Arnold Bennett. Mr. Bennett tells us the wherefore of frocks in November's Cosmopolitan Magazine.

This is what he says:

"When woman gloriously dresses herself up to go out she does so in order to prove to the world something man wants to be proved to the world. In old days the two attributes which man held in it Mr. Bennett upsets a stereotyped taunt highest esteem were wealth and idleness, Man therefore had to demonstrate publicly that he was neither needy nor industrious. One of the best methods of demonstration was costume.

"The time came when man ceased to be proud of his own idleness and his costume altered accordingly. Man could not do the demonstration on his own person -he was too busy-and hence he employed the lady to be expensive on his

Monday-The Morning After

IN THE MOMENT'S MODES

Tuniced Frock of Navy Serge and Satin

There is something unique about the afternoon frock of the season which shows the table joined to an overbodice. In its modeling it borrows something from the longcoated tailored suit, and yet it is distinctly a costume for afternoon wear and not to be worn as a street dress save under a long, separate coat. Today's illustration shows one of these newest of fall models fashioned from navy-blue serge and black satin. The girdle is placed at slightly above the regulation waist line, but the extension of the satin panels on the sides and the depth of the satin panel in the center front neutralizes the semiempire construction.

Everything must be moved along. The intestinal tract must be clear. Nothing must be left lying about by the waynide. The intestine acts incessantly until every minute particle of its contents has been passed on into the colon. The same thing happens in the colon. Contact of solid numerial or semisolid material keeps the intentine busy in an effort to move it

When the bulk is sufficient to distend the howel, vigorous peristaltle waves are set up which sweep the bowel contents along so swiftly that the movement cannot be followed by the eye in observation made with the N ray. But no irritation is predured; that is, the murous surface is not lacerated or abraded by contact with the particles of bran. Bran in its ordinary dried condition reight well be imagined capable of producing irritation, but bran in this condition is never found in the all-mentary canal. Refore it enters the stongeth, even before it enters the mouth. bran is moistened, and is usually mixed with other moist foodstuffs.
