Don't Kick

Don't take my valued time to tell about the pranks of H. C. L. I know It takes a lot of dough to keep a fellow on the go, to pay the rent and buy the shoes and clothes and other things we use, to pay for milk and eggs and meat and other things we have to eat; but, when your woes you would rehearse remember that they might be worse. Be glad you have the price to pay for living in the U.S. A., and when you feel inclined to kick and say that prices make you sick, just think of Europe's sore distress, where folks can't buy the stuff to "fress," where ney can't buy the stuff to drink although they'd gladly pay the chink. It's true of course that living's dear, but it's worth something to be here. A premium I'm glad to pay for living in the U. S. A. and if you want to how! and kick, excuse me, please, it makes me sick. WILL MOORE.
