School Opened in 2d Regiment Armory—Specialists as Instructors

OTHER CITY NEWS BRIEFS

Episcopal Church Raises New Service Flag With 52 Stars at Special Exercises

A school to train men for army base hospital work will be opened at the armory of the Second Pennsylvania Field Artillery today. The school, the first of its kind ever organized, will be in charge of prominent specialists.

The military hospital training, which is designed to prepare men for duty at the front, will be directed by Major J. S. Lambie, commanding officer, and Major W. M. L. Coplin, director of Base Hospital No. 28. The various hospitals of the city have agreed to offer facilities for the training. They will take a squad of 153 men and detail them to duty in wards, dispensaries, operating rooms and laboratories.

The first lecture will be given this afternoon by Dr. W. W. Keen, Dr. A. P. Brubaker, professor of physiology at Jefferson Medical College, will conduct that course. Dr. J. Parsons Schaeffer, professor of anatomy; Dr. R. C. Rosenberger, professor of hygiene and bacteriology, and Dr. Elmer H. Funk, director of the department of diseases of the chest, will also be members of the training staff.

Church Has 52-Star Service Flag
A new service flag with fifty-two stars is floating today from the Episcopal Church of the Holy Apostles. Twenty-first and Christian streets, which has fifty-two men in the nation's armed forces. The exercises were conducted yesterday by the Rev. Dr. George Herbert Toop, rector. A fifteen-starred service flag was raised on Fifth street between Arch and Race streets yesterday by residents of the neighborhood.

IDENTIFY DEAD CARD PLAYER
Salesman Expired During Game at Democratic Club

Identification was made today of the body of the man who fell dead yesterday while playing cards at the Thirty-seventh Ward Democratic Club, 2509 North 37th street. He was Andrew H. Stroud, a salesman employed by a wholesale drug firm at Fourth and Arch streets. The body had been taken to the undertaking establishment of George W. Barrett, Lehigh and Park avenues.

Stroud died of apoplexy. When it came his turn to play he hesitated and other members began to chaff at the delay. Suddenly the man's head sank on his chest and he fell over on the floor. The police were unable to make the identification until today.

EIGHT FIREMEN OVERCOME
Rubbish Blazes in Cellar of Mitchell, Fletcher & Co.

Eight firemen were overcome while fighting a fire which broke out in the cellar of Mitchell, Fletcher & Co.'s grocery store, Twelfth and Chestnut streets, last night. Traffic on Chestnut street was blocked for a half hour.

The fire started in a pile of waste paper and other rubbish lying at the end of the cellar and soon began to throw off great clouds of smoke. The firemen made their way to a stairway that leads into the basement, where the dense smoke was unable to find an outlet, and eight were overcome.

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD MISS DONS TROUSERS FOR CAREER; IS ARRESTED

Lure of City Called Her From Quiet Bridgeport, but Inquisitive Cop Found Her Disguise Mere Camouflage

By M'LISS
The Violas and Rosalinds invariably gawgaret came down the train with a away with their doublet and hose, despite swaying hips and cooing voices—and marry the hero besides. But just let a little girl in real life try to see the monotony of skirts and small town and presto! the cops nab her before she's had half a chance to prove the man she is.

Dark thoughts like these are agitating the amateurishly cropped head of sixteen-year-old Margaret Wood, of Bridgeport, Pa., who is in the custody of the Municipal Court officials awaiting the coming of an irate father.

Margaret, looking as much like Marie Doris' version of "Oliver Twist" as she could make herself look with only an old suit of her brother's, stepped from a train in Broad Street Station today with a swagger step and swashbuckling stride characterized to fool no one. Cap rakishly on hair that looked as though it had been coaxed off with a buzz saw, hand shoved into pockets in her best stage manner, Margaret Seavers winked at Officer McIntosh. They met the brave boy half way.

They greeted her with the policeman's equivalent of "Where are you going, my pretty maid?" And big black eyes, so recently snapping with adventure, covered before the accusation.

"I'm looking for work," she said in a voice with all the feminine tremolos marked "tears" and "fear" and "nerves" and "hysteria" turned on.

At the Bureau for Missing Girls the boy said that her name was Margaret Wood and that she was the daughter of Alfred Wood, of Bridgeport, Pa.

"I got so sick and tired of keeping house for my pa and my brothers," she said, taking off her brother's cap and displaying the most humorously cropped, moth-eaten-appearing hair the Bureau has witnessed for many moons. "My mother went over to England for a visit before all this sub-marine trouble and hasn't been able to get back."

"I'm sick and tired of washing dishes and cleaning up. I want work. I thought if I ran away dressed as a boy it would be easy to get something to do."

The beautiful romance of a picturesque life in the big city punctured, Margaret allowed herself the feminine prerogative of a few gratifying tears, and her feet lolled in the huge russet shoes belonging to Alfred, Jr., her brother, she shuffled away, held for the arrival of "pa."

DYNAMITE OIL OFFICIAL'S HOME
TULSA, Okla., Oct. 22.—The home of I. Edgar Frew, general manager of the Carter Oil Company in the midcontinent fields, was badly damaged by a dynamite explosion here early today.

The entire front end of Frew's home was blown in directly underneath a front bedroom in which he was sleeping. He was not injured. Oil companies here have been making a crusade against the I. W. W.

Perry's Have the Clothes!

Bang-go! Perry Overcoats are well Over the Top!

There never was such a speedy response to a new season's overcoat styles as that already on at Perry's, for there never was such an aggregation of styles and models in Fall and Winter Overcoats since Adam delved and Eve span as we are spreading before the men of Philadelphia!

To begin with, our designers caught the inspiration of the long lines of trenches. Over there, they combined wisdom with taste to get service and comfort without sacrificing military distinction. Over here, we took a leaf out of their book and put some of the same snap, smartness and serviceability into our civilian clothes.

At Perry's, we have added a few touches of our own here and there—novel belt treatments, new lapel and cuff interpretations, artistic shoulder tailoring, increased individuality in waist, hip and skirt lines, and often have presented the same general idea with little differences that can be recognized only when the coats are placed side by side!

Here are Some of the Styles and Prices

- New Raglan Overcoats as slick in the shoulders as a greyhound, single-breasted and double-breasted, loose straight bodies, or furnished with a belt that you can pull home with an extra hitch, if you want snugness at the waist line. $25, $30, $35, $40, $45, $50, $55, $60.
- Trench Overcoats, both single-breasted and double-breasted, all around belts, some of them with buckles, some with one button, some with two buttons, inverted pleat in the vent that throws out the skirt with a military flare from the hips. $22.50, $25, $30, $35, $40, $45, $50, $60.
- Kimono-sleeve Overcoats, with velvet collars or with cloth collars, both single-breasted and double-breasted—$20, $22.50, $25, $30, $35, $40.
- Big, long, roomy, double-breasted Auto Ulsters with regular outside pockets in skirt and two muff pockets in breast that make for the luxury of comfort in your car, or facing a blizzard. $35, $40, $50, $60, $65.
- Box-Back Overcoats with the fullness of body that some men like—$18, and $20 for single-breasted models; $25, $30, $35, $40, $45, and $50 for either single or double-breasted models.
- Paddock Overcoats—as smooth and shapely as a glove from collar to hem, double-breasted, $25 and $30.
- Conservative Overcoats with velvet collar or with cloth collar, as clean cut as a whistle in their distinction and style—$20, $22.50, $25, $30, $35, $38, $40, $50, $55, $60.

Made in a variety and choice of fabrics from which every man's taste can be satisfied.
