

OLD MISSUS COLONNADE FILLS DEBUTANTE ROLE

Her "Housewarming" at 15th and Chestnut Streets in Transformed Home a Big Success

AND HER CLOTHES, O BOY!

Also Dinner-Dance and Menu and Music All Made Hotel Reopening a Memorable Occasion

Old Missus Colonnade, who was to have been seventy-eight on her next birthday, has changed her mind and decided to be only seventeen from now on.

Her new clothes did it. Wouldn't it go to anybody's head to be dressed by Bonwit, Teller & Co.?

Thirteen thousand people tried to get into Miss Colonnade's housewarming and the Standing-Room-Only sign had to be hung out long before the handsome waiters trotted in with the first honeymoon melons.

The menu was: Honey dew melon—fox-trot; Hot of sole, six vine, nine-step, tenderloin of beef, plique financier, pois verts—Chinese toddie; supreme of chicken, Virginia ham and fresh mushrooms—fox-trot; hearts of lettuce—nineteen-step; other courses, nineteen other dances; coffee; gabardine, silver-tone, plain velvet, tricotine, English broadcloth, tailored serge, satin, charmeuse, Lapin, rayon cloth, nutria, nutrimin and neighborliness.

As the evening wore on the great topic of conversation was, "What is a guffer?"

The question came out of the music provided by Missus Colonnade. She had two orchestras for her guests. One is Coleman's, from Woodmatten's Inn, New York. The other is Brown's Guffer Band, from Paul Smith's, in the Adirondacks.

Guffer: One who guffs; a person addicted to guffing. Guff (verb): To guff. You will have to call on Missus Colonnade, at her dinner-dance tonight or tomorrow to find out what it means.

First U. S. Officer Wounded by Shell

Continued from Page One was operated upon in an effort to save his life by an army surgeon, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, who had served in the General and University Hospitals in Philadelphia.

Unlike a battlefield it must be said in truth that the American mothers, wives and sweethearts entertaining visitors of their boys fighting and dying under terrific shell fire, have made the wrong estimate of conditions.

Whereas our Allies are many times forced to spend many nights in a cold rain while ill protected, the brand-new positions of the Americans are what might be described as "trenches of luxe."

TRENCHES DE LUXE The ordinary communication trenches, however, are filled with water, but it is possible even there to avoid much exposure by the use of duckboards.

AT THE AMERICAN HOSPITAL The American ambulances were drawn up before the American field hospital, in which the surgeons were discussing the case of the first German prisoner.

Our party then swung off toward the battlefield, taking advantage of the heavy rain and thick mist and proceeding much farther than automobiles are able to go.

The route led first to the American artillery positions through fields knee high in water, which in many places forced small rivulets up over the brow of the hill where the guns were pounding away.

On we went, along a narrow railroad used as a transport line to a high point from where the French officer pointed out the German positions on hills barely visible in the misty distance.

The courteous French officer guided us to the dugout of an American major, who is in command of the battalion at this sector. Here one of the many little incidents attending this war occurred.

T. F. RYAN REMARRIES; WIFE DEAD 12 DAYS

Noted Financier Weds Widow of Cornelius C. Cuyler at Charlottesville, Va.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. Thomas Fortune Ryan, one of the most noted financiers of America, and Mrs. May Townsend Nicoll Lord Cuyler, widow of Cornelius C. Cuyler and a sister of De Lancey Nicoll, of New York, and of Benjamin Nicoll, of Morristown, N. J., were married yesterday at Charlottesville, Va.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Thomas A. Rankin, and the only witnesses were Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, and Mrs. Alderman.

Both Mr. Ryan and his bride have for many years been among the most widely known members of New York society, and the news of their wedding was received here with great interest.

Mr. Lord died some fifteen or twenty years ago, and some years later his widow was married to Cornelius C. Cuyler, the son of Theodore Ledyard Cuyler, of Philadelphia, and a cousin of Woodrow Wilson at Princeton.

Mr. Ryan was born in Nelson County, Va., on October 27, 1851, and entered Wall street in 1870, and within a few years had established himself as one of the ablest men in the financial district.
