LIEUT. BISPHAM KILLED BY AIRPLANE'S FALL

Young Aviator, Famous Singer's Son, Meets His Fate in England

News has been received in this city of the eath of David Charles Bispham, son of David Bispham, baritone, one of the most daring aviators recently commissioned in the Royal Flying Corps. He was for sev-

the Royal Flying Corps. He was for sev-eral years a resident of this city. The young aviator was killed last Sun-day in England while making a practice dight. Official notice of the accident was cabled by the British Government to the victim's mother, Mrs. Caroline Russell Bispham, 1224 Spruce street. No details were given in the message.

Athletic and adventurous, Bispham, when interest very bineteen years old, last May determined to enter the war against Germany. He saw little opportunity for action with the American forces for some time and decided to join the British flying corps to get into the fray at once. A graduate of the Choate School, of New York, and a candidate for princeton, he was readily accounted. To Princeton, he was readily accepted. In a short time he became instructor of bayonet and physical exercises at the British aviaon base, while he rapidly perfected himself

When the cablegram announcing his death was received by his mother she collapsed. His father, who was in New York, was notified. Young Bispham was born in London May 6, 1898. He came to this country with his parents ten years ago. Mrs. Riccardo Daddi-Borgheri, a sister, is living in Flor-ence, Italy. Another sister, Miss Laoni Bapham, is in New York.

SAMMEES CAST VOTES AS BULLETS FLY PAST

Halt Making Ballots While British and German Fliers Battle Overhead

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN PRANCE, Nov. 6.—United States troops in France voted yesterday for State, county and city officers. New York voters with units in other parts of France cast their ballots last week.

The votes of one engineering unit in a British sector were taken under a bombardment by German guna. The engineers nonchalantly marked their ballots in a shack behind the lines as German shells whistled overhead.

The voting was interrupted for a few mutes while the voters and election office witnessed a thrilling air fight between glish and German machines nearly over voting place. When the German manages had been driven off, botty pursued Entente aviators, the voters resumed aring their ballots.

The pallot boxes are being placed in ald madibags by the commanders of the the and they will be taken to the United stee by the disction commissioners, who seed to be home not later than Decemting in Paris was done at the site Anne, now used for Americas and offices. The polls opened clock in the morning and closed at The hotel office is being used for a booth. ## INVESTMENT HOUSES MARK TIME PENDING RETURN OF PATRONS

Question Arises Whether Changes in Economic Conditions Has Not Shifted Money. Gossip of the Street

INVESTMENT houses are marking time these days waiting until matters settle down and their old customers come back again into the market, attracted by the bargain prices in good railroads and other bonds. They are not coming as yet, either very fast or in large numbers, but just enough to keep things moving.

Is it not possible that the bond houses if they would only try might find success in new fields? Is it not possible that with the radically changed conditions in our economic life money for investment is in new hands.

The president of a big iron and steel concern in a southern State-and not so very far south at that-remarked a few days ago that some of the managers of his plant, under the bonus system, are making more money than he is; that some ninety through the rolls, purely manual labor, are making in the neighborhood of $35 to $40 a day, or from $8000 to $10,000 a year, and the concern is glad to have them do it. These men are paid on a sliding scale which has a minimum, but no found in virtually every line to a greater or less extent. The figures representing the wages paid to skilled and unskilled labor by the corporations in this country at the present time are staggering. And it is because the ownership of the money of the country has changed to the wage-earning classes that the suggestion is made to investment houses to explore these new fields.

South Has Become Lender Instead of Borrower

It doesn't seem three years since Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo started the slogan "Buy a bale of cotton." At that time the South was wrestling with the problem of five-cent cotton and its accompaniment of bankruptcy.

Today it looks as if the southern planters would receive around $125 a bale for the 12,500,000 bales representing this year's crop. Even when cotton brought $62 a bale it spelled prosperity for the South. This year the excesss war value of the cotton crop will be around $787,000,000.

And this year the South is producing sugar, grain and live stock in a much greater degree than ever before and getting topnotch prices for them.

And the result: It is said the South is lending money all over the East, even right here in Philadelphia. Indeed, some say the South favors Philadelphia in

It is reported that the southern banks are full of money, and how could it be otherwise with a possible revenue this year from cotton alone estimated at $1,562,000,000.

Labor's Duty in Time of War

There is a very pronounced sentiment in financial circles that the next big roblem which the Government must tackle in a vigorous manner is the labor situaion There is no doubt that the labor unrest in many parts of the country and in he various lines of activity is one of the prime factors contributing to the depression the values of securities.

In these days of was everything is coming under the supervision of the Governent, and it is felt that labor must also co-operate. Those who have money are reely lending it to the fevernment and we must also lend our labor. Of course, if labor does not do this voluntarily the Government may be obliged, as was the

But the Government control of all industries connected with the manufacture of war material, including rallways, docks, shipping, etc., has had its disadvantages as well as its advantages in Creat Britain, and its application does not seem to have quite solved the problem; yet if found necessary to put it into practice on the same scale here as there, we can profit by British experience. It is, however, a very serious problem and must be met in a give-and-take manner by both sides to the question when it comes up for settlement.

Investment Houses Refusing to Sell Customers' Bonds

Many of the high-class investment houses in this city yesterday refused to entertain offers to sell high-grade bonds at sacrifice prices on the part of their customers, preferring to risk a temporary resentment on the customers' part, because they feel certain that the bottom has been reached, and that the reaction is due when the now disgruntled customers will thank them in a few days for saving them from themselves. The general impression in these investment houses is that the majority of the customers who want to sell are anxious to get into the stock market, which is now acting as a powerful magnet to attract the speculative element. These concerns reason that, men holding such securities as are being offered can easily go to their banks and borrow enough on their bonds to furnish funds for speculation, and they point to the fact that money must be pientiful when it is being freely offered at 4 per cent.

Despite the fact that the stock may surprising how much optimism one finds prevailing in the brokers' offices. The situation is looked upon as largely artificial and psychological, without any real foundation, as the financial conditions are considered fundamentally sound. But in the tense condition of the market everything is seized upon to create a bear situation by certain professionals for their own benefit. To show to what absurd lengths certain rumors as well as probabilities can be stretched to affect the rise or fall of securities, it was said in Philadolphia that the possible election of Judge Hylan and the Tammany ticket in New York today was exerting a most depressing influence on prices on the exchange.

Certainly some new excuse was necessary, as conditions no longer could be blamed on the "shorts," the action taken by the governors of the exchange having completely eliminated that.

The fact that today is a holiday is looked upon as a relief, and with a decidedly optimistic feeling prevailing it is believed the market will open strong tomorrorw morning.

Railroad Arguments for Increase of Rates

Among the strongest arguments in favor of an increase in freight rates by the railroads is the fact that the products which are transported by the roads have had their values enormously increased either through price fixing by the Government or by the enormous increase in market values, due to the war conditions, while the cost of transportation has remained the same as before the war.

It is argued that the wheat crop of 660,000,000 bushels for the year at the $2.20 price fixed by the Government has a market value of $1,452,000,000, whereas at the average of ninety cents for the five years prior to the war its value would be $594,000,000, the excess value being $858,000,000.

The corn crop, estimated at 3,200,000,000 bushels, with present indications of an average price for future delivery of $1.10 a bushel, would have a value of $3,520,000,000, whereas the average for the five-year period before the war at sixty cents a bushel would give an excess value to this year's price of $1,600,000,000.

Equally convincing figures could be quoted for cotton, tron, steel, bituminous and anthracite coal, copper, etc., and yet while the railroad rates on these commodities have not been increased in spite of the fact that everything entering into the cost of transportation, such as labor, coal, cost of equipment, locomotives, etc., have increased enormously, the farmer and the other producers of the transported products have been enabled to profit by the war conditions without serious interference by the Administration, while the railroads have had their hands tied by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Taxation of Bond Investments

The income from corporation bonds is taxable under Income Tax and War Revenue Laws. Buyers of all Bonds will be interested in a comprehensive table we have prepared showing the net return after payment of the income and new War taxes.
