WILSON CASTS BALLOT AT PRINCETON POLLS

Registers His Convictions at 12:30 in Elections for State and City Offices

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 6. President Wilson cast his ballot in the State and city election here at 12:30 this afternoon. The Executive arrived in his afternoon. The Executive arrived in his special car shortly after noon and, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and Doctor Grayson proceeded directly to the voting polls or proceeded directly to the voting point of Chambers street, where, in the quaint old firehouse, the President has displayed his belief that voting is the duty of every good citizen by his ballot in every election since his regime in Washington.

On account of the secrecy of the President's trip no arrangements of welcome had dent's trip no arrangements of welcome had been made, but the news of his arrival was noised about the camps and he was greeted by a cheering throng of students and acquaintances made during his presidency of the University. Student cheers and the click of cameras of the more ambitious followed the executive all the way from the station to the place of election. The President nodded to his many friends on route and several times stopped his journey to shake hands with the more intimate ones.

Intimate ones.

The party arrived at the polis at 12:25, where the President cordially greeted the election officials and firemen. His ballot for the Democratic legislators was No. 87 and it was dropped in the big box at just 12:30. Mrs. Wilson and Doctor Grayson did not accompany the President into the polis, but walked up Nashua street to Bayard lane, where they were soon joined by Mr. Wilson. The party returned immediately to their special car and the return trip to the Capital was begun without delay.

FIVE STARS ON HER FLAG

West Philadelphia Woman Is Preparing to Add a Sixth

One West Philadelphia woman has five members of the family now in the war serv-ice of the Government. Another son is about to leave for camp. The proud mother, who already has a service flag with five stars floating from her home at 5149 Ludlow afreet, is arranging to have the sixth added to it.

She is Mrs. Lena Hagenmeister. Her husband, Herman Hagenmeister, is chief sunner's mate on the Vermont. Her two some-in-law, George Veth and Ernest Hagenmeister, a relative of her husband, also are in the navy. Two sons are in the army. Another son, Richard, is about to enter the service.

HERO TRIED VAINLY TO SAVE SAMMEES

Young Lieutenant's Desperate Effort to Obtain Reenforcements Failed

CUT OFF BY BARRAGE

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Nov. 6.—A young American lieutenant is the hero of the first real clash between German and American troops, which resulted in the capture of twelve Americans, the killing of three Americans and two Frenchmen and the wounding of four Americans.

This young officer bravely tried to rush through the barrage fire that the Germans were dropping back of the Americans' position to get re-enforcements for the attack he knew was coming. He had gone with a short distance when a shear side and control of the state of the sta only a short distance when a shell exploded near him, hurling him to the earth. He got up and continued going even though shells were dropping all around him. A second shell exploding almost against him knocked him down a second time. Again he got up and tried to pierce through the rain of steel. He stumbled along in a semiconscious condition until he was sent down for the third time unconscious. He is suffering from shell shock, but is expected to ATTACK WELL PLANNED The Germans' attack occurred on a secor of the front where the two first-line trenches are about $00 yards apart. It is believed that the Germans had planned the attack for several days and that they knew that Americans occupied the trenches against which their movement was directed. The enemy took advantage of a heavy

The enemy took advantage of a heavy mist and rainfall in the early hours of Saturday morning to make the attack.

The relief had just gone in when the Germans opened a heavy bombardment. They sent shell after shell into the first-line trenches and at the same time began dropping a heavy barrage fire in a horse-shoe curve back and around the sides of the section of the trench they planned to attack. The barrage fire made it impossible attack. The barrage fire made it impossible for re-enforcements to be brought up. At the same time the Germans began shelling the barbed wire in front of the American trenches with demolition shells. Wide paths were blown through the wire entanglements by the German shells, making way for the idvancing German troops.

Despite the fact that it was their first held to their posts like veterans, according to the report of the French divisional commander. Even though realizing that they mander. Even though realising that they would probably be greatly outnumbered, owing to the fact that no re-enforcements could be brought up, the Americans kept peering over the top of the trench while shells dropped around, watching for the Germans that they were sure would come.

SAMMEES FAR OUTNUMBERED The artillery fire on the first line trenches addenly lifted and through the holes in the barbed-wire entanglements poured German soldiers. The German party far outnum-bered the handful of Americans holding the trench. It was said later that there were 200 Germans in the force.

lead, but the Germans, by sheer weight of numbers, pressed forward and literally smothered the American attack. The Germans jumped down into the trench, where real hand-to-hand fighting took place. The Americans fought bravely with knives, revolvers and hayonets, but numbers told, and the Germans, who used hand grenades, overcame them. The exact details of the struggle in the trench have not been learned but the French commander reported that the Amercans struggled bravely against superior

German casualties are unknown Three German rifles and several German knives were found in the trench after the raiders finally were driven off. It is beleved that the Germans carried away both their dead and wounded.

It is understood that the Americans wounded are suffering mostly from shattered arms and legs.

The first rumors of the attack reached American headquarters Saturday night. The arrival of the German report Sunday, announcing that American prisoners had been taken, stirred the American soldiers as nothing else has since they arrived. The Americans are fairly aching to get a chance The soldiers who were killed will be buried in a little cemetery near a certain divisional headquarters. BURY LOUIS HUTT FRIDAY

PATRIOTIC SCHOOL CHILDREN

Applaud Stokowski's Stand on "Star Spangled Banner"

The children of Miss Mills's private school at Mount Airy, like the great mass of American children, are patriotic, and they are for the Star Spangled Banner, both are for the Star Spangled Banner, both the song and the flag, with all their might. As expressive of their sentiment on the subject they have, through their principal, Miss Ellen Stanney Mills, written the following letter to Mr. Leopoid Stokowsky, director of the Philadelphia Orchestra, commending his stand regarding the playing of the rational anthem at symphony concerts:
