RED CROSS AND

I suppose you've heard that the Barrett, soprano; Mr. Daniel C. Donovan, tenor, and Mr. Sascha Jacobinoff, violinist. Mrs. Edith Mahon will be the accompanist, and Mrs. John P. Leigo is chairman of the musical committee. Junior League has decided upon a place in which to hold the large Jumble Sale it plans to hold from November 27 to December 1. And the place thereof will be the Penfield Building, formerly things that the Junior Leaguers have turned their attention to so far have turned out to be extremely successful. They have youth, energy, prestige and sufficient means to finance the current expenses and they have unlimited ways and means of collecting and presenting their wares, so, believe me, beyond a doubt it will be a great thing.

The committee has at present started a campaign for the collection of articles to be donated for the sale, and has sent out notices with requests that any one who has anything to give, drop the committee a postcard and immediately some one will call with motor and man to carry out all the things you've been wanting to get rid of for these many days.

Really, these sales are great institutions. Think of the things you have put away in the attic which are too good to throw away and you don't know any little boy just Johnnie's size who needs a coat. nor any baby girl whose head would just fit into Mary's cap, so you fold them away in a trunk and there they would stay until you were so old you'd almost forgot which was Johnnie's and which was Mary's, if it were not for the rummage sales and jumble sales which have swept over the city for the last several years for one charity or another. And as all of us feel we should give and give to the utmost, there is another chance to help in the great cause, for the money will go to the Red Cross and will be used for our men at home and abroad during this horrible conflict.

Charlotte Rush is chairman of the committee and has many able assistants among them are Miss Constance Biddle, who is president of the League; Mrs. Walter J. Clothier, Mrs. Orville Bullitt, Eugenia Cassatt, Molly Thayer, Marion Taylor, Patty Borie, Katharine Chambers, Emily Fox, Mrs. Robert F. Meigs. Nancy Reath, Marion Savage, Mrs. Edward Dale Toland, Jr., Mrs. Joseph the American oversias committee of the Thayer, Gwen Martin, Lila T. Fisher, Isobel Howell, Cecily Barnes, Helen Tower, Gertrude Heckscher, Jean Thompson, Mrs. Rowland Evans and Mary Newbold.

BY THE WAY, don't forget that tonight is the concert by members of the Philadelphia Orchestra at the Stetson Auditorium. It's an awfully easy place to get to on the trolley, and if you want to go in your car, there is a perfectly good place to park it, and a perfectly good policeman to watch it while you're enjoying the music. I hear that invitations have been given out to all enlisted men through the Y. M. C. A. and other organizations of the kind and there will be something like a hundred Jackles there from the navy yard, and I don't know how many soldiers. Miss Rachel Hamilton, the soprano soloist, has been studying in New York, I believe, and her voice is said to be well worth hearing. Nothing need be said about the orchestra, but the program looks decidedly attractive. And, aside from everything else, a hospital auditorium that seats 5000 people is a thing you don't see every day.

OH! IT was hard work to sell Liberty Bonds! No cinch, let me tell you. Listen to the tale I heard of one girl who sold two $5000 bonds in ten minutes. She was visiting in New York, though she is one of our own Philadelphia girls, and she offered to go with her hostess to one of the leading restaurants, there to sell bonds at a booth which had been erected. Well, she was approached by a gentleman who was feeling the effects or having dined not wisely but too well.

"Be a sport and shake hands," said he. "I don't see any particular reason why I should," said she.

"Would you if I should make it worth your while?" asked the jovial one.

"For instance," asked the girl. "Why, by taking a Liberty Bond in exchange. What's the largest you have to sell?"

"One for $5000," was the quick response. "It's a go. Write me down for that," he said in an eager tone. And because she was a patriotic young thing she "wrote him down" and then shook hands in the friendliest way.

The man left smiling in a satisfied manner, only to return in less than no time with his counterpart. Approaching the puzzled lady, he said:

"My friend is very anxious to shake bands."

"Does the same bargain hold good?" said the girl in a businesslike tone. "It does," said the friend.

She was the only woman to gain access to Verdun during the time of the conflict there, and she had the honor of talking and dining with Generals Joffre, Petain, Neville and Dubois. She remained for a month in the trenches near Verdun under the special And she signed him up also for $5000, while the two men left chuckling, as men do, when they think they during the afternoon, and General Lyttle-ton Waller Tazewell Waller will also speak. Music will be furnished by the U. S. M. C. have the best of a bargain. Is it hard to sell Liberty Bonds? Well, of course, that depends on your point of The proceeds from the voluntary collec-tion will be given to the two charities in charge of the entertainment, the Red Cross devoting its share to Christmas bags and the overseas to tobacco, jam and Christmas NANCY WYNNE.

Members Working to Fill Christ-West Philadelphians Giving Dances for St. Leonard's House Provide Dancing Partners

The most amusing thing that the war an active effort within the next two weeks has brought about is that now the girls are to fill 1000 Christmas bags for the soldiers renting sailors for an evening. From now who have gone to the front in France and intil after Christmas, dances will be given are in the various training camps in the every Friday night at the home of the girls who are working for the $50,000 campaign for St. Leonard's House. Renting a sailor seems to be a unique iden, but in these times of war and strife all kinds of things are done; with every man in town away at camp, a dance will be rather hard to get up.

Weaber, Miss Fanny R. Roth, Miss Ella Many of the hostesses have brothers who are now at the pavy yard, and they have volunteered to bring some of their friends to the dances, and surely the sailors will Walt, Miss Constance Erdman, Mrs. Henry Dowling Jordan, Mrs. Charles Ziegenfus, Mrs. C.
