

ORDERS OF COAL FOR MUNITION PLANTS

Must Be Kept at Maximum Operation During Entire Period of War

DISPUTES NOT TOLERATED

Mine Owners Nor Workmen Will Be Allowed to Disturb Flow of Production

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The War Relocation Administration has issued orders to munition plants, munition factories, and other plants at work on war contracts to be supplied with coal to bring them up to maximum efficiency. To meet the needs of munition plants, priority orders will be issued.

Coal mines of the country are to be kept in operation at their maximum during the period of the war. Fuel administrator Garfield today outlined his program for maintaining production in all fields.

"Unwarranted interruption of work in the coal mines will not be tolerated," Administrator Garfield declared. "The national crisis demands that the mines go ahead at full capacity and every governmental agency will be employed to see that they operate at maximum efficiency."

When honest differences arise between owners and men without disturbing the operation of the mines. All the machinery provided for in agreements must be used and every effort exhausted to reach settlement. This applies to the nonunion as well as union men. In case of disagreement the facts must be laid before me and prompt decision will be given, with all effort to be just to the aggrieved side."

Administrator Garfield stated that virtually all of the important bituminous fields had submitted agreements with satisfactory automatic penalty clauses. The penalty provisions will be strictly enforced as a guarantee against lockouts or strikes. Mr. Garfield said that he will endeavor to see that this clause is not made the occasion for oppression either on the side of the operators or the men. Reports to the coal administration show that the majority of the United Mine Workers have endorsed the automatic penalty clause, as a condition for any advance in the price of coal.

WAIST SHOP SHOWS MANY RARE ATTRACTIONS

Vogue Retail Establishment Presents Models to Delight Woman's Eye

A row of smiling faces greet the visitor who enters a door on the third floor of the Ruffalo Building at 1211 Chestnut street. It is no wonder they smile! They are all wearing georgette crepe, crepe de chine or chiffon waists of the cut and color proof found to make any woman happy. The room is the shop of the Vogue Waist Retailer and the smiling faces are chic, fashionable models displaying the wares of this new establishment, which opened its doors this week.

Everything from plain tailored military styles to embroidered afternoon blouses is in view. One attractive model is of flesh-colored georgette crepe with a panel front and back of a blue, embroidered in a bold design in flesh-color silk. The same pattern is offered in other colors. A more conservative style combines a plaid blue and green with dark blue georgette crepe. Two-tone effects are always good and navy blue with bisque or gray is a beautiful combination.

Details are again noticed as trimming for the new waists, and one georgette crepe blouse was beaded with crystal in the midst of soft-toned silk embroidery. A crepe de chine of a delicate pink was beaded in opaque white and embroidered in pink and blue. The same style was shown in dark blue with the embroidery in red.

Plainer waists that are very popular is pink crepe de chine made with a plain yoke and tucked down the front with a flowered satin collar. Any of these could be worn with a matching suit or with a separate skirt for a more dressy occasion.

FADS OF ANCIENT CRETE LIKE THOSE OF TODAY

Women Wore Corsets and Powdered Their Noses, Declares Museum Research Worker

Women of Crete wore tight corsets 4000 years ago. They also powdered their noses, dabbed their faces with the flavored creams, gossiped and did all that their sisters of 1917 are now doing. Mrs. Joseph M. Dohan divulged these secrets this afternoon in the course of a highly interesting lecture in the auditorium of the University Museum.

Extensive research in Crete made by Mrs. Dohan warrants her assertions. The speaker, who was formerly Miss Edith Hull, and assistant curator of the Mediterranean section of the Museum, spent several seasons in Crete.

Instead of going to football games and golf matches, Mrs. Dohan said, the ladies of Crete went to the hunt. The bear hunt was one of the fads of the day, and the ladies, in choice raiment, sat in their carriages and became highly enthusiastic when in at the death.

In the course of a picturesque description Mrs. Dohan pointed out that centuries before Homer, Crete was one of the wealthy and artistic centers of the world. Many works of art have been unearthed there and many inscriptions which when deciphered will shed much more light on the people of that era.
