HANKSGIVING IS FEAST OF THE HOME—HOOVER SANCTIONS TURKEY AND CRANBERRIES

BORROW SOME LONELY GUESTS FOR YOUR WARTIME THANKSGIVING

If There'll Be an Empty Place at Table, Fill It in Name of Your Soldier Boy-Thanksgiving Food Regulations

TAKES a good bit of courage for WHY not try to fill the empty place—some of us to face this wartime Win his name? It always helps to Thankegiving. Lots of homes, of course, brighten things up to have a big family will be filled with the joy of having him all in the glory of his khaki-home on a furlough; but in others there will be though. There's always some one who just the empty place. And so there's a needs not so much a dinner, but a little emptation knocking at many a lonely bit of home atmosphere at holiday time. heart not to bother at all.

Please don't give in to the temptation if yours is to be a Thanksgiving with an empty place. Thanksgiving is a feast of the home It's the warm heart of country; it ties families close together. And now is the time when the country needs of families to stay close and pray and hope together that he will be back next

No matter how much we like our big-brimmed hat, there are windy days when we almost hate it! This maid has turned back her hat in front so there's nothing for the wind to get under and lift up—nor flap down in her face! The back doesn't matter nearly as much.

around the table, even if you have to beg, borrow or steal to get it there. You won't have to use these tactics

What about a soldier or saile, boy who has no place to go? If this doesn't suit and you can't think of any one else who needs you on Thanksgiving Day, the man of the house probably can. In an office or store there's always at least one person who, however chipper the rest of the its warm heart and when it is the place year, begins to look a little lonesome toward the end of November.

If there's a young son or daughter due home from boarding school, send on a wire for extra "lonesome" company, There are always plenty of young people who live too far away to permit of them going home at Thanksgiving time. How nice it would be for one or two of them to be whisked off in a train and deposited in the next best thing to home-the home of a good friend!

THE "still small voice of Hoover" isn't playing havoe with our Thanksgiving menus. Mr. Hoover himself acknowledges that Thanksgiving wouldn't be Thanksgiving without a turkey or a chicken and some cranberries. Potatoes or other vegctables we may have, too. Our food administrator would like, however, two notes of the spirit of national saving to be sounded in the festive menu. One is eat corn bread instead of white bread, and the other, eat pumpkin pie instead of mince pie.

Mittoe ple, he says, is unnecessary be cause of the use of meat in it. Pumpkir ple, he explains, is the really patriotic Thanksgiving dessert because it reminds one of the first Thanksgiving Day.

There is another little reason tucked in, though-pumpkin ple has just one

Food Value in Mushrooms To the Editor of Woman's Page:

To the Editor of Woman's Page:

Dear Madam—I am very much interested in the letters printed in your column regarding promisenous kissing between boys and siris. Allow nie to express my opinion, agree with you, dear Madam it should not agree with ain a girl of nineten year. Although It have chummed with boys since I was quite young. I have never encouraged foolish sentimentality, thanks to my mother's care.

Gold Color Velvet Wrap for Afternoon Wear

ONE of the innovations of the early winter fashion season is the coat designed expressly for wear to semiformal afternoon af-fairs and morning musicales. This garment, while it does not copy the prevailing modeling ideas of the evening wrap, is nevertheless quite a different type of garment from the elaborately conceived street wrap. This difference lies chiefly in the materials it employs. Today's illustration offers one of these new coats in a very attractive model. It is of gold color cut velvet, the front in panel fashion and a skirt whose fullness is achieved ugh shirring placed at slightly dropped waistline.

PATSY KILDARE By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

The Peacemaker

I DO NOT like to wake up in the middle of the night, the way I did Christmah and again last night. It would not be me bad if I could always find Santa Claus when I wake up. He certainly brought me a lot of things. I like my dolls pretty well, the baby doll without hair and the young lady doll with hair, but either I do not like dolls the way other little girls do or else I do not know how to play with them. I do not know now to play with them. I do not get any fun out of taking off their clothes and putting them on again and taking to them as if they understood me.
so I leave them in the corner of the front room and take a look at them in the morning before I ramble and again at night when I have prayed, if I do not forget,

When I woke this morning I felt sleepy but my father asked me if I was going to seep wil day, so I got up and made the cof-fee and flopped the pancakes and brought in the milk and asked my father, "What is a circular staircase?" He corkscrewed his hand up into the air the way everybody clee does and that made me feel good and started the day all right. I gathered up my three kittens and went out to Jim and Maggie's.

Jim saw me coming and he hollered.
"Happy New Year to You, Patsy, and many of them." I said, "Thank you. Where is Maggie?" He said. "She is in the house, but she is mad at me, so I do not dure go in So I went into the house and there was Maggie sitting by the table with her chin in her hand and her clbow on the "Enchantment," the next Patsy Kildere ad-table. She did not look up and she was venture, appears in tomorrow's Evening Ledger.

looking fierce, so I tippytoed out again and went to Jim, who was leaning on the fence. I said, "Jim, I have brought you these kittens. Take them and say "Thank you for these kittens like these for a long time." But he said, "I do not want them." I said, "Take them and say it." So he did and then I said, "Now, tell me to give them to Maggie with your love." He said, "I will be dinged if I do. She got mad and now let her get over it." I said, "You talk like a hunk of cheese. Would you have talked that way before you married her?" He said "Things before you married her?" He said "Things are different now." I said, "of course. She is now your wife and you do not love her any more." He looked mad at first and then he laughed and said, "Patsy, please take these rare, beautiful and costly cats, brought from the perfumed bills of Angora, and present them to Maggie with my love. Tell her that they have been brought all the way across the earth for her and are worth a king's ransom. Tell her if she forsives me to come to the door and holler and I will come running."

So I did and she did and he did and they hissed and made up and got so stushy that Rowdy and I rambled. I was riad to get rid of the kittens for they were a nutsance to take care of, and they need milk all the time, and Jim and Maggie have got a whole cowful of milk, so they should not be any trouble to them. If Maggle had enough sense to be half witted she would have given me the letters to mall and I would not have forgotten to mall them, for I have no pecket.

On my way home I sat for a while on one of the iron dogs in front of Bell's but she is mad at me, so I do not dure go in to dinner." I said, "For cat's cake, what have you been doing to her." He said, "She gave me three letters to mail when we were first married stid she found them half worn out in my pecket this morning." I said, "I said

Choosing Clothes

Price cannot be taken as an indication of good clothes, although quality is ofter expensive. There are garments of certain cut that demand top-notch prices and yet that could not be taken as an indication of what is good in clothes. The newest invariably comes high, and yet upon examination we find we are paying not for material, not for durability, not always smartness, but rather for newness. To the woman of limited income it is in finitely better to sit back and analyze the make-up of a lately arrived style before she invests in it. The far-seeing woman can visualize herself as looking outlandish next season in something that is quite in the order of things this season. It is a good plan, this, of painting a next year's portrait of yourself in this year's clothes before you put good money into them.
