Jumble Sale Proves Great Success - Continues Today, Friday and Saturday-Tommy Defines a Traitor

Dip you step in at the Jumble Sale at since mother had signed the food pledge Some little sale that! The restaurant certainly did do business, both at lunchcon and tea. Why I really fear the Automat, which is usually patronized by the rich and elect these days, suffered horribly. However, it can cheer up, for the sale will only last three more days. They have awfully good eats and it's a wonder to me the waitresses did not just about drop over from their little highheeled shoes on to the floor, they ran back and forth so fast and waited so well. Cecily Barnes, as far as I could see, seemed to be at the head and all the other girls in that department were of the set that "would have been" debutantes, Margaretta Jeanes, Mary Newbold, Rachel P. Price. Maisie Rush, Susle Stewart. Peggy Thayer, Patty Baker, Alice Biddle, Alix Dolan, Marys Clark, Phoebe Downs Mary Glendinning, Helen Hart and Ruth

Mrs. Billy Clothier had the cunningest let of toys. I feel sure there will be many kiddles in this town whose Christmas will be made happier through the fact that toys were made possible presents through this beautiful jumble sale. I'm going to stop in again today and then I can tell you more about it.

THE opera was, of course, wonderful I last night, with Caruso and Alda and Amate all in splendid voice. Indeed, the "dancing lesson" left nothing to be desired, but that dress in front of me disturbed me, so strangely. I did not personally enjoy the music or the gayety as much as usual. IT was of black net and IT was covered in silver and IT had been At one time a cloak, I am "posilutely sure, but now IT is a dress and IT had a sailor collar of ermine on IT and I NEVER saw anything to beat it, and I did not know who wore IT, which was the orchestra, not its execution, mind you, it's a good little orchestra; but it whoops teo much. You see, part of the time you you want to hear Caruso, and you want by Mr. Robert Martin Stults, a Norweon by Mr. Robert Mr. Robe voices that should be heard. Whether it is the acoustic properties or whether they do play too loud remains a question in my young mind.

Catherine Morris was there, looking very sweet, in a frock of cerise tulle; she was entertained by her aunt, Mrs. J. J. Borothy Kneedler, Mr. Lawrence Gass, Mr. J. Walter Austin, Mr. J. Preston Shannon, Bertram Lippincott, in her box. Dr. and Mr. Robert G. Kneedler, Mr. J. Ernest Mrs. Stout entertained in their box, and Chiquoine, Mr. Arthur G. Shew, Mr. H.

The Charles Custis Harrisons had a sailor boy in their box. It was like the Horse Show in Newport last year, sail- Holley Park, ors and marines, all in with the spiffy where there are spiffy men among the with spiffy people. Birds of a feather,

He had a thrilling trip home, was three weeks on the water. The manguvers of the steamers going and coming are very great these days, that the subs may be fooled. They fooled them this time, all right, and did not even sight one on the way over, Sam says.

DID you know that Ellanor Longstreth's husband, Lieutenant Dent Sharp, has been stationed at Little Rock, Ark., where he is an instructor at camp' Ellanor is with him and they expect to stay some time. In fact, I heard they are building a bungalow near the camp and will share it with two other young officers and their wives.

THERE was much excitement out Waynewards recently, when the roof burned off the McCabe house on Lancaster avenue. Margaret Beylard was staying there, and has had a very bad attack of tonsillitis. Indeed, when she was first taken ill every one was very worried, for, you know, she was so ill in the spring and summer with pneumonia and was, in fact, still going around in a wheeled chair when she electrified her friends and relatives by announcing her engagement to Harry and marrying in a few days. When I say "going round in a wheeled chair," I am afraid that gives a bit of wrong impression, for she was able to walk, of course, but her illness had left her very weak, so when she recovered and went down to Cape May she used a wheeled chair to go down to the beach. She is certainly a stunning looking girl. Mrs. McCabe broke her arm during the fire, they tell me, but is recovering nicely.

Tommy goes to school, where he has learned many things, and aside from that he belongs to a company which drills every Saturday morning in the backyard of the vacant house across the street. Owing to the fact that he sports the only uniform in the crowd (which comes of having a big brother in a military school) Tommy was pronounced captain, and urged to take command without intensive training of any kind, indeed without any examination to test his ability as a

"Hey?" repeated our small friend. "I betcher I know what a traitor is! I saw a picture of one sitting at a long table with a great big turkey on top, and he ate every bit of it himself."

DID you hear that the Effingham B. Morris Jr.'s have a small son? Mrs. Morris was Julia Lowis, you remember. Buck is a captain and is stationed at Camp Meade. I understand the young gentleman first saw the light in the historic old Morris mansion on Eighth street, where Mrs. Morris has been living this winter, Captain Morris having spent various week ends there also, when camp leave was obtainable.

of the contributions in their section of Mont-

$15,000 as its quota. Few persons realize that there is work to be done by the Y. W.

C. A. in this great war, and now that the Y. M. C. A. campaign has ended so success-fully it is hoped that every one will do something to further the work of the women, that there will be a large attendance at these meetings.

There is also work to be done for the women and girls working in munition factories; to provide rest rooms for them during the noon hour, and to improve housing conditions, which are very inadequate in tion when they are off duty. They need some restful place in which to read and write. In short, the work of the Y. W. C. A. for the nurses in the war zone is much the same as the work which the Y. M. C. A.

is doing for the men. Contributions for the work may be sent to Miss Frances Robins, Vyncote, or Miss Blanch Chauveau. Miss Marjorie Kent, Miss Helen Brindle and Miss Frances Robins will be at the Jenkintown Station today, Miss Dorothy Rex and Miss Isubel Stevenson at Noble Station, Miss Blanch Chauveau at Elkins Park, Miss Dorothea Jennings and Miss Mary Viele also at Jenkintown Station.

The Cheristers' Club of Jenkintown gave

Its seventh semiannual concert on Monday evening. Mr. Lewis Alexander Wadlow is the musical director. The assisting artists were Mrs. May Ebery Hotz, soprano; Mr. Walter Leroy Pontius, tenor; Mr. Edward H. Spielmann, accompanist. This was the most successful concert the club has ever given, and a large audience from around the York road section attended.

The Chestnut Hill Service House is the scene of much activity. All the usual branches of the service, such as surgical dressings and bandages, are taught there, and in addition, there are special classes in practical home cooking under the direction of Mrs. Limerick. Only four women are in each class, so that every pupil has a chance for much individual attention. Lessons on the knitting machines are also given, which will be a great help to the women who feel that they have not a min-

Last Monday was service day at the Ridley Park Woman's Club, when, at the club women's invitation, the Red Cross, the Emergency Aid, the Needlework Guild and all the other organizations of the community gathered together. Luncheon was served at the clubhouse, and the women spent the day there sewing. There were also some interesting addresses made. Mrs. Benjamin Miller, the chairman of the Italian committee of the Emergency Aid, talked to the women about her experience over in the war zone. Mrs. Walter J. Freeman then spoke of what the Red Cross is doing. Mrs. A. A. Crooks, the president of the Norwood Century Club, told of that club's practical experience in starting its Red Cross work. Patriotic songs were sung, Mrs. E. W. Penn, the chairman of the music committee, leading in the singing. Mrs. W. D.
