BERLIN, Nov. 29. Shelling of Cambrai by English guns was announced in today's official statement. Elsewhere on the Cambrai front the War Office reported a lull. East of Merokhem (Flanders) Bavarian storming troops captured forty-seven Belgians and two machine guns, the statement said.

LONDON, Nov. 29. The Germans continue to rush fresh roops for the defense of Cambrai, Dispatches from the front today told of the concentration of strong German forces in the vicinity of Bourlon and Fontaine Notre Dame under the protection of a terrific combardment, which the German artillery kept up against the British positions,

During the lull in the infantry fighting the British defenses were strengthened in the expectation of a renewal of German founter-attacks.

North of the Bapaume-Cambral road where the British lines approach closest to Cambrai, the Germans attempted to disodge the British from high ground, but were driven off with severe losses. A dispatch from Amsterdam told of the violent cannonades on the West Flanders front. The sound of the firing can be heard all the way across Belgium. ROME, Nov. 29. A mutually harassing artillery fire on the whole front and success of Italian batteries in repelling enemy attempts to cross the river in boats was reported in today's official statement.

BERLIN, Nov. 29. "Italian attacks on the western bank of the Brenta and also around Monto Tomba failed," the War Office asserted.

"The Italian Government will not hesitate energetically and fully to investigate the Italian disaster and fix responsibility therefor," declared Minister of the Treasury Nitti today, on his arrival for the Inter-Allied Con-

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMIES, Nov. 29. Fresh Austrian re-enforcements, hurried from the Riga front, were vainly thrown into the battle today in an effort to break the Italian stone-wall defense.

The enemy has failed to gain a single yard during the last sixty hours. Repeated attacks have been thrown back with heavy losses. Fighting on the lower Piave has slowed up, the enemy apparently realizing his utter inability to effect a crossing

On the river itself there has been com paratively little fighting the last week. The operations in the north, especially the drive against the line from Monte Pertica to th Playe, seemed to promise more than a straight push across the river, so the enemy attempted a repetition of the maneuvers which succeeded both at Caporetto and Pin-

Lenine Threatens Repudiation of All Debts to Allied Nations

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29. Reports that a new revolution had broken out in Petrograd and that street fighting had resulted reached here today. There was no official confirmation either at the Russian Embassy or at the State Department. At both places, however, it was stated that the report probably was true, as all information from Petrograd indicates that Bolsheviki control has resulted in unrest. It is not believed possible, however, that any real revolution can start in the Russian capital. The radicals are too strong there at present. .It is possible, however, that hungry soldiers are getting out of hand and that looting is in

PETROGRAD, Nov. 29. The Bolshevik Government today received formal notification from Ensign Krylenko, its commander-in-chief, that a complete cessation of hostilities on all fronts was in sight through acquiescence of all German front commanders to negotiation of an armistice. Preliminary unofficial reports had indicated that an agreement for a meeting to discuss an armistice had been obtained on the Fifth Army front. Today's official .eport from Krylenko, however, covers all fronts. Krylenko announced that his envoys 'had returned from the German lines bearing the German commander's official consent to negotiate an armistice over all the Russian front." At a meeting Sunday plenipotentiaries from both side will confer. The Germans, it was stated, will be represented by the North Army commander.

Krylenko's envoys, he said, entered the German lines on the front of the Russian Fifth Army. Immediately upon the start of the negotiations Krylenko ordered an immediate cessation of all fighting on the whole front and proclaimed General Dukhonin "an enemy to the people. Dukhonin and all his supporters were ordered arrested. Nicholal Lenine, partner with Leon Trot-sky in leadership of the Bolshevik Government, has openly threatened to declare Russia's obligations and debts to other nations invalid unless those nations accepted the Bolsheviki proposals for a general armistice of all belligerents.

The very last vestige of support of former Premier Kerensky in the capital vanished when the doubtful elements in the garrison decided to support the military revolutionary committee.

The Bolshevik leaders have issued formal proclamation to the armies, urging them to send delegates to the December 2 food conference.

From Moscow it is reported that soldiers are returning home from the fronts in tioned at Khodynka barracks, it is asserted Continued on Page Two, Column Seven
