QUIMET ENTITLED TO AMATEUR STANDING NOW THAT UNCLE SAM ENGAGED HIM FOR WAR SERVICE

Famous Golfer Was Barred From Championships Because He Earned Funds in Sporting Goods Industry—Baseball Will Care for Itself

By GRANTLAND RICE Team Play and War Suppose you take some all-star team. One drawn from baseball's classic leather. And let them know some tangled scheme. Though each may be another Cobb. An Alexander, or a Spence, or You know how soon they'll leave the job. Or overturn the well-known book. Suppose you take some football squad. The leaders drawn from many sections. And let them scramble over the sod. Propelled by varying directions. You know what happens to that class. Tossed in against some rival faction. Directed under one set plan. And molded properly for action. Within this well-known U. S. A. We've had it shown through endless seasons. With all its machine-like play. And though we tell with shifting mind. Or roam along with availing passion. Before the finish we will find. That wars are won in this same fashion.

A new angle has arisen in the case of Francis Quimet. Before war came on Quimet was barred from amateur competitions because he was earning a living in the sporting goods industry. As we understand the situation, he was not turned back from amateur competitions because he was earning a living in the sporting goods industry. As we understand the situation, he was not turned back from amateur competitions because he was earning a living in the sporting goods industry.

Quimet is no longer in the sporting goods business. His profession now is in no way attached to golf, save on off Saturdays, for some army equipment on Red Cross fund. Undoubtedly, he would regain his complete amateur status now by making application.

It may be that in his present assignment, a member of Uncle Sam's illustrious family, he may feel that with the job he faces at some early date a matter of golf amateurism is hardly important enough to be considered.

CRIMSON AND GOLD WILL NOT PROTEST Prof. Althouse Denies Report Central Has Objected to Northeast Game

ARCHIVES 1917 CHAMPIONS The football committee of Central High school will in all probability at protest the result of the Northeast-Central High football game which was played last Saturday.

After the game last Saturday, it was rumored that the Crimson and Gold had entered a protest on the ruling of officials Lambertson and Murray, who threw out a touchdown made by Halfback Trautwein in the closing minutes of play, which, if allowed, would have tied the score and given Central a split decision.

The Central High football committee had a meeting last Monday but no definite action was taken in regard to entering a protest. Professor Calvin Althouse, chairman of the committee stated today that "Central High, contrary to reports circulating in the city did not protest the game with Northeast, and although nothing definite was done in regard to the matter on Monday, the meeting closed with the understanding that the game will not be protested."

MAXWELL WINS AN EASY VICTORY

Aronimink Player Has No Difficulty in Lakewood Golf Tournament

G. W. STATZELL VICTOR LAKESWOOD, N. J., Nov. 19. With one exception, favorites came through in the first round of play in the Thru-Philadelphia tournament of the Lakewood Golf Club here today. Statzell, Aronimink, continued to display excellent form, and easily accounted for H. C. Richard, of Lakewood, 7 up and 6 to play. Richard reduced the lead against him to 2 up and 3 to play. Maxwell, of Lakewood, was the only one to win his match, but even at that he never stood a chance against his young opponent. Maxwell virtually had the match won at the end of the first four holes, for he won all four.

Richard steadied a little and halved the next two holes, but Maxwell drew further ahead with a 4 to 3 on the seventh hole, which he won. Maxwell's putting was much better on the first day, and he was on 25 to the 15 of his opponent. Maxwell's opponent, Richard, was on 30 to the 20 of his opponent. Maxwell's opponent, Richard, was on 30 to the 20 of his opponent.

JIM BARNES WILL BE PROFESSIONAL AT PALMA CEIA, TAMPA, FLORIDA, DURING COMING WINTER MONTHS

Many Philadelphians Play Over the Course and Lure of the South Will Attract Thousands of Golfers This Winter

By PETER PUTTER ALREADY the exodus of the golfers to the southern hole is under way. Philadelphia's northern hole has been the scene of the other resorts in the South will soon follow suit. With the transatlantic rush impossible while the big war lasts, American golfers are going South. Florida has always been a popular resort for Philadelphiaans and there is hardly a place in that State where there is a golf course that is not well represented by Philadelphiaans.

Jim Barnes, the western and Philadelphia open champion, will leave for Tampa, Fla., the first of the year to resume his duties as professional at the Palma Ceia Golf Club. One year the big Whitehaven professional ran an indoor golf school, but last year he went to Tampa and hereafter he will spend his winters in the South.

The Palma Ceia course is an eighteen-hole course, with a parage of 6400. While the course is in a rather flat, there is enough undulating ground to make matters interesting. The course was laid out by Tom Bendure and the greens and tees are kept. From the top of the house it is possible to see every hole on the course. The course has been improved by new traps and bunkers, and big improvements have been made to the clubhouse as well.
