Mr. Horace Lippincott Spoke This Afternoon at the Art Alliance Book Exhibit-Opera Last Night Had Great Attendance

THIS afternoon Mr. Horace Mather Lippincott talked on "Early Philadel-phia" at the exhibition of the Best Books of the Year which is now being held at the Art Alliance, 1823 Walnut street, under the auspices of a special committee of the Literary Arts.

Following the plan inaugurate, by the National Arts Club of New York, the Philadelphia Art Alliance is holding a two weeks' exhibition for the public of the books of the year at the galleries on Rittenhouse square.

To add to the general interest of the exhibition, a fine program of able speakers has been provided and various members of the committee are contributing to its success by generously donating autograph manuscrips and rare bindings.

The special committee includes such prominent persons as Jacob B. McMaster, Litt. L.L. D.; Morris Jastrow, Ph. D.; H. H. Furness, Jr., Litt. D.; Agnes Repplier, Litt. D.; Owen Wister, Harrison S. Morris, Felix E. Schelling, Litt. D.; John Ashhurst, B. A.; George Gibbs, George W. Douglas, Litt. D., and Mrs. Cornelius Stevenson. Sc. D., Litt. D., Officier d'Instruction Publique, chairman.

TO ANY one who even in her early childhood days heard Calve, Campanari and the two De Reskes in "Faust," it's a bit hard to appreciate any other performance; and back in the dark ages at the Academy Nancy used at times to be taken to the matinees which were few and far between, but, good night, they were some operas! So, though Martinelli would have been hard to beat and the Mephistopheles of Whitehill was wonderful, somehow one wanted a Marguerite with a more perfect voice and a more powerful baritone than Laurents. However, why expect perfection in this world; we won't ever get it; and, taking it all in all, it was very fine.

The new setting of the garden scene nade the jewel song very effective in that Farrar sat on the balustrade of the steps for the first part and then came down to the bench to add more necklaces to her already overcrowded neck. As she clasped the fifth necklace and then drew out three ropes of pearls there was a faint giggle all over the house, and murmurs were heard about some who before the war had looked very much like Marguerite as to an overflow of jewels at opera and ball.

The grand tier was brilliant as usual, though its greatest brilliancy did not shine forth till the first strains of the Star Spangied Banner brought the women all to their feet and the beautiful gowns and scintillating jewels were much in evidence, even though most of the gowns were of last year's vintage. I'm proud'to be able to say this, fo. our women are cutting down on extravagance, and though jewels were worn there were not many. Beatrice Aertsen had Lalite Pepper and Charlotte Drayton in her box and the Howard Lewises, Stewart Wurts, Mrs. Hamilton Coiket and Joe Norris were together. Mrs. Alexander Brinton Coxe entertained young Travis Coxe's wife, who is here from Cuba, in her box with Mr. and Mrs. Larry Paul-Mrs. Paul, you know, is the mother of Travis

The Sullivans were out in force, Mrs. ir ciel blue and Frances looked very well in pale pink. Sarah Penrose was in the box with them. Mrs. Stotesbury had a most gorgeous chinchilla wrap over her light

In the Clem Newbold box were Miss Robertson, Mary Newbold, Marion Taylor, William, Taylor, Frank Blair and Doctor Bil-

TF YOU have seen about fifty or sixty braid on their sleeves and little shields in the corners of their collars and tricornered hats of dark blue with small black rosettes as trimming, and if you have looked t their sleeves you will have seen two little letters, E. A., and you know that you have happened upon a number of women members of the Emergency Aid and that they were wending their way to the annual meeting and luncheon which was held at the Bellevue-Stratford today And they all had their suits finally and so appeared in them. You see, they wanted to show they are not extravagant and have bought only cheap suits this year as a real example of economy. Nancy thought she was being economical by wearing her last year's suit, but one E. A. explained to her that she was not giving example, as no one would know it. So Nancy thought and thought, and next day she went to see the E. A. judy with an L. Y. pinned on her sleeve and a sign, "I am four years old," in her little fur animal's mouth, and the E. A. lady said she was flippent; so now she's still wearing her old suit and furs, but she "ain't sayin' nuthin'."

The meeting today was very important; the annual reports were read and luncheon was served. Captain Latham, of the Connaught Rangers, addressed the meeting. I heard him talk at the Independence Square Auxiliary of the Red Cross on Monday and it was very inspiring, to say the least. "o I'm sure they had a treat.

You could tell he was new at it from the very nonchalant, I-know-everythingabout-it manner he was trying his best to assume. And if you needed still further evidence to convince you, all you had to do was to look on the left sleeve of his blue uniform to ascertain that it was minus that proud stripe which tells of a voyage. No. he hasn't even cruised up and down the New Jersey coast! Still, he was in the navy, and when he walked along the street didn't everybody (at least all the feminine everybodies, and, after all, they were the only ones that mattered, you know) gaze admiringly at the natty uniform he wore so stalwartly? OH, YES!

But there are certain surprisingly unexpected things that are bound to happen efore a person becomes truly initiated into any profession, aren't there? And after they have happened-well, he's not likely to feel the burden of his own importance quite as much as he did.

Now this is the blow that suppressed our arduous friend. He was strolling auntily around the navy yard one day, thinking how fine it was to be such a large part of such a wonderful institution, when se spied a strange uniform approaching Should he salute or should he not?

The citizens' patriotic committee is hold-ing two meetings a week at the White House, instead of one as formerly. Tuesday and Thursday evenings are devoted to the business of the committee and the work for the Pulls' soldiers and sailors at the front. All satirotic citizens of the rection are invited to join the association. There are no dues, but each member must be willing to do his for her bit to help the cause, which is to look after the welfare and comfort of the Palls boys who are helping Uncle Sam. Mr. Ernest Carwardine, the treasurer of the organization, has made arrangements with the drug store at Ridge avenue and Queen lane, which is central in location, to place a register for the use of each soldier and sailor who is granted a furlough to visit his family or friends at the Falls. This will keep the residents in touch with the lads while they are visiting their families and friends.

TO GIVE FIFTEENTH ANNUAL PLAY

Penn Charter Literary Society to Present Richal Harding Davis's "The Galloper"-Half of Proceeds to Red Cross

THE Penn Charter Literary Society will give its fifteenth annual play on Feday evening in the haliroom of the Bellevue-Stratford at 8 o'clock. The play will be followed by dancing, the music to be provided by Herzberg's orchestra of afteen plecon.

The play choses this year is "The Gulloper" or "The War Correspondent," a comedy in three acts, by Richard Harding Davis, originally produced by Henry Savage, and presented at the Garden Theater, New York, in 1906, with Raymond Hitchcock in the lead. The scene is laid in the Greco-Turkish war in 1897, the first two acts taking place in Athens, the third in an inn between the Greek and Turkish lines. It is a very ambilious play for amateurs, but the Literary Club having stready produced "The Distator." The Commuters, "Charley" Aunt. "The Private Secretary." A Night Off and others on the same order, seems quite equal to the task. Special scenery has been painted for the performance. for the performance.
