

Among the Prominent Philadelphians Contributing to the Success of New York's Great Hero Land Bazaar Was Mrs. Angier B. Duke, of the Polish Reconstruction Booth.
Katz & Herbert.

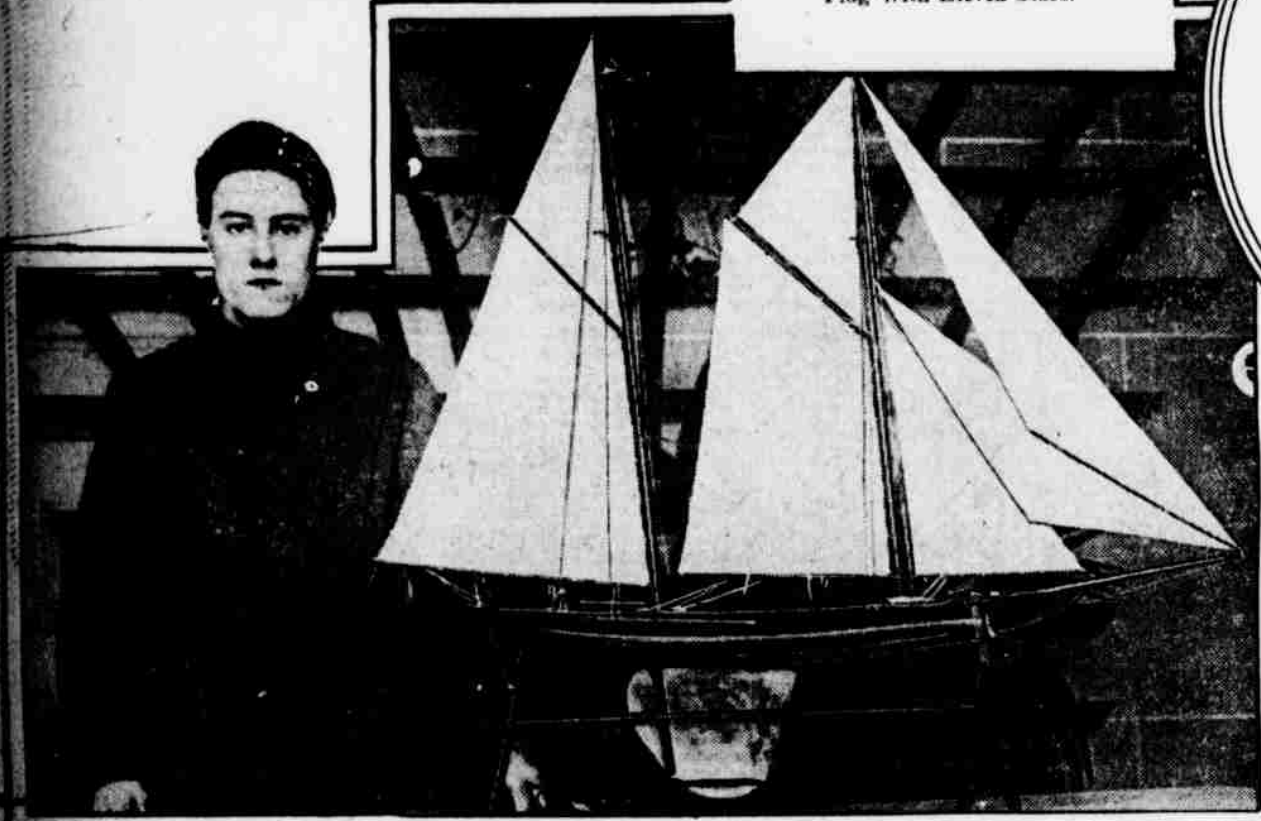

First Postoffice Station in Philadelphia to Honor Its Men in the Service Is the West Philadelphia Branch, Which Prides Itself on a Flag With Eleven Stars.

Pupils of Miss Walton's School, 1716 Pine Street, Who Boast of Being the Only Recognized Juvenile Auxiliary of the Red Cross. Back Row, Left to Right: Miss Rhein, Nancy Faxon, Louisa Bache, Priscilla Barstow, E. Sutor, Miss Wharton, Sara Large, Leita Nelson, Catharine Maury, Miss F. Wharton. Middle Row: Margery Barstow, Jean Calvert, Alice McGlenn, Virginia McCall, Judith McCall, Florence Rhein, Anna Roberts, Helen Brand, Henrietta Bache. Front Row: Carroll Henderson, John McGlenn, Peggy Patton, Ora Worden.

Boy Scouts and Juvenile Red Cross Workers Contribute "Their Bit" In a News Way

Norman Valentine, of Troop No. 2, Nautical Boy Scouts, Displaying a Miniature Sailing Vessel Which Is a Specimen of His Handiwork.

Leita Nelson, Daughter of Commander C. P. Nelson, and Florence Rhein, daughter of Major John H. W. Rhein, Knitting at Miss Walton's School.

Philadelphia's Citizen Soldiers at Camp Meade Learning How to Throw Hand Grenades and Bombs With Deadly Accuracy.
General Photo Service.

Boy Scouts From the Pennsylvania Institution for the Blind, Who Somehow Manage to "Do Their Bit." Scout Russell Weber Demonstrating His Skill in Bandaging, With Scout Gustav Wachhaus as His Patient.

The Champion Liberty Bond Salesman of All the Philadelphia Scouts Is Master William Loeb.

Younger Members of the Famous Repasz Band of Williamsport, Pa., a Veteran Organization With a Record for Service Through the Civil and Spanish-American Wars, Who Have Upheld Tradition by Enlisting in the "Blue Jacket" Naval Band, Stationed at Pelham Bay, New York.