Writers Make Dressings for Soldiers

going to address the workers of the Independence Square Auxiliary of the Red Cross, and if you have ever heard that delightful General talk you'll want to be there. He is going to tell us what we can do for our boys, and it seems to me rather fine to get first-hand ideas from one who Like many or most of the other auxiliaries, Independence Square has been asked to give 1000 surgical dressings before Decomber 20. Major Grayson Murphy, U. S. A. - (you remember Grayson, don't you, when he used to come on from West Point to dance at the Saturday Evening Dancing Class, all dressed up in his regimentals, and the small sub-debbies almost died of excitement when he asked them to dance' Well, he's at the head of the Red Cross "over there")-has asked for 200,000 dressings very soon, and so all the rooms are doing a rushing business, for with their usual generosity they aim to do more than they are asked for.

AND honest to goodness, when you see stance, you wonder how much could be done with a thousand of them, they are so small; and aren't they the dickens to do? You have to be armed with a ruler and a wooden paddle, and you have to pinch and pack and pull threads. It's such a responsibility, too, when one realizes that a single thread left loose might get into a wound and cause blood poisoning and death. The measurements have to be so exact; but even so, one feels that one is really helping a little by a few hours of patient and painstaking labor and it's worth it all to help our brave boys, many of whom have aiready given their lives and been wounded while helping to make our country a safe place for us to live in.

TO RETURN to the Independence Square Red Cross, Besides being open all of every day, it's to be used every Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights, as well. On the Thursday of this week there were about seventy-five women there working like beavers. It's really marvelous how much is being done, isn't it?

 $M^{\mathrm{R.~W.~H.~ROBINSON}}$  has given an ambulance as a Xmas present to the Red Cross through the Independence Square Auxiliary. It has been accepted at Washington and will be given in memory of Mr. Robinson's mother. The new ambulance will be stationed outside of the auxiliary headquarters next week during the drive and memberships will be taken from it.

Hector MacQuarrie, by the way, is going to bring his British tank, manned by Tommles, down Chestnut street, to stand a while in front of the Independence Square headquarters after the first of the year. I declare there's always something doing down there at 608 Chestnut street.

WHILE on the subject of the Red Cross, have you ever stopped in at the workrooms on the third floor of the Record Building? There's a flourishing auxiliary there, composed of the Women Writers' Club members, which embraces most of the newspaper, magazine and advertising writers of the city. This auxiliary has also been asked for 1000 dressings before next Thursday, and it would do you good to stop in there and see these women of business working away for dear life to ! eip the "boys over there." Some among the workers are Miss Agnes Repplier, 2d. of the Record; Miss Marie Sellers and Miss Rebekah Elliot, of the Country Gentleman; Miss Olga Geib the Press; Mrs. Quennell and Mrs. A. R. McGill, of the North American; Miss Lukes and Miss Carpenter, of the Evening Pub-Etc Lengen: Miss Diehl, of Strawbridge & Clothier's advertising department; Miss Ida Van Auken, Miss Virginia Kift, Miss Elizabeth Anderson, of the Home Journal; Miss Weber, of Lit Brothers; Miss Myra Hedges, of the Inquirer; Miss Julia Blankenburg. Miss Clara Zillessen and once in a while even Nancy herself. And indeed I can't tell you how many more there are there all different days of the week. Mrs. M. P. Skerrett, recently elected president of the club, is also chairman of the Red Cross auxiliary.

SHE was on her way to a house patry in Maryland, when the train stopped at Wilmington and amid a shower of rice and white ribbons a bride and groom jumped on board. On the platform was a shouting group of bridesmaids and a facetious best man, who, before the train started again, managed to slip a few printed cards through the windows. Not to seem ungracious she took one, but being temporarily far more interested in romance written than in any romance of real life, slipped it into her handbag with barely a glance.

At the house party she met Him, or, rather, what she thought was "Him," which, you know, amounts to the same thing when the orchestra is playing a wonderful waltz and the moon looks in through the conservatory windows. And so when the party broke up on Monday, as so many parties do, they decided to come back to town on the same train. At the station there were the usual threats of rice-throwing-always irresistible to house partiesand she began to get a bit nervous, especially as He had a teasing light in his eyes. But her fears were somewhat laid at rest when the train came in some twenty minutes late, after the manner of southern trains, and the good-bys were said quietly

The train was jammed, of course, but she managed to settle herself somehow among the many sultcases and tried to talk unconcernedly to her traveling companion, al-though she knew her face was getting redder and redder and she self-consciously felt that all eyes were upon them. A muchneeded relief came when the conductor preczed in suddenly from nowhere and demanded tickets instantly, as is the trying way of conductors, and she began a scramble through her handbag, during which powder was spilled and everything mixed pelessly. Finally from the very botom of the bag she pulled the truant from its hiding place and handed it over trihandly, her troubles at an end, with U. S. navy.

NEXT Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock the satisfied feeling that at last people Brigadier General L. W. T. Waller is | would stop looking at her. But alas for her feelings! The ticket she handed out so complacently was plain white and inscribed boldly, "JUST MARRIED-PLEASE HAVE SOME FUN!"

Knitting the Dansant and Canteen Dance in Brooklyn Will Have Unique Features

People get tired of the same old "fair," "bassar," "cake and candy sale" that have lured their pennies for so many years, and committees in charge of such affairs now spend most of their time and energy thinking up a new name to disguise the old tricks. Brooklyn people have shown a good deal of originality in their Knitting the Demasant and Canteen Dance, which will take race at the Canteen Dance, which will take place at the Heights today in Brooklyn. ### Red Cross Auxiliary at South Philadelphia Church Shows Great Enthusiasm in Work

In view of the nation-wide drive to be made next week by the Red Cross, it is worth noting the tremendous strides that have been made by Auxiliary No. 286, the first meeting of which was held not two months ago-on October 22-to be exact. Last Tuesday evening more than 100 enthuslastic women and girls met in Trinity Lutheran Church, Eighteenth and Wolf streets, and prepared a great number of the thousand bandages the auxiliary has been asked to have ready by December 20, Need-less to say, they will more than overstep their quota, and their drive for 200 mem-

This is not surprising when one considers the spendid enthusiasm of every member, and the immense amount of work accom-plished. Each box contained a church book, fruit game, candy, chewing gum, cigaretten, secks Each box contained a church book, fruit rane, candy, chewing gum, cigarettes, socks and gloves. # TWOFOLD PURPOSE OF PARTY IN BROOKLYN

Children's Costume Party Requires Each Guest to Bring Gift for Soldier or Sailor

Christmas this year will be hard for grownps to celebrate with the same glad spirit that has always marked the twenty-fifth of December. But the children do not realize the seriousness of the world situation, and for them it will be the same glorious good time. Many parties have been planned for them, and an interesting one in Brooklyn combines the holiday spirit with a little touch of the obligation that we should all feel to our fighting men.

The Little Men and Women of '76, D. A R. will hold a costume party at Standish Arms Hotel, 169 Columbia Heights, on Deember 28, from 2 to 5 in the afternoon,

Each child who attends is requested to bring a gift for a soldler or sailor. The children who do not wear costumes will display the colors of the Allies. The party is intended to have a twofold purpose; to provide holiday entertainment for the children and to encourage them to be thoughtful of the soldiers and sailors, who are protecting their future.

The president of the new chapter is Mrs. Arthur Hays Myers.
