GOSSIP OF THE STREET—LOCAL COMMERCIAL MARKETS

PUZZLING POINTS FOR EXPERTS AS TO RAILROADS' NET INCOME

Financiers Fear Injudicious Action by Congress May Delay Matters—Gossip of the Street

THERE is some discussion in financial circles as to the basis on which the net earnings of the railroads should be calculated should the Government decide on that plan to guarantee dividends. It is said that if the net earnings for the years from 1913 to 1916 be selected as a basis, the question will come up as to whether the calendar or fiscal year shall be selected. As some of the railroads' fiscal years end in June and some in December and others in May, the point comes up as to how an average can be struck. Another point is if the Government guarantees anything, will it be the net operating revenues earned during the above-mentioned years, or the net income?

Some of the roads have an income from outside properties, such as the Illinois Central, whose "income from other sources" will figure out almost 8 per cent on the stock, and the New York Central's "other source" income figures about 4 per cent. Then there is the Lackawanna whose income from coal properties is a very substantial item.

Now as "net income" is the result after deducting from "operating revenues," taxes, rentals of equipments and allowance for income from other than railway operations; this item of "income from other sources" becomes a serious consideration in arriving at an equitable basis for calculation.

The fear among financial houses interested in the railroad situation is that when questions of this nature come up during the discussion of the subject in Congress, what action is the average Congressman going to take, and when speedy action is the great desideratum to be obtained on the railway situation, is the country due for a long season of useless wrangling?

Why Some Sacrifice Their Holdings

When timid people read into the public utterances of public men a meaning that was never intended and then sacrifice their holdings on the strength of their suspicions, they have only themselves to blame. Secretary of War Baker made some remarks at the latter end of last week which some people construed as a semiadmission that something bad if not disastrous had happened and that both London and Washington were holding back news. Some thought that the great German offensive which had been pending for several days had taken place, and that the Germans had made substantial gains. But as each day passed without anything to substantiate such a conclusion people were forced to conclude that the great German drive was very much of a great German bugaboo.

Meantime those who sacrificed their holdings are now wondering after all, where they found a valid excuse for such pessimistic misgivings. When the market opened on Saturday morning it soon became evident that unless some very favorable news would develop, all the gains made the previous day before closing would be swept away. This turned out to be the case and in addition some public utilities also suffered in the decline.

Rails declined 1 to 2 1-2 points, industrials, coppers, shipping and motors also suffered. Many brokers attributed conditions to conflicting reports from Washington on the railroad situation and on the matter of price fixing for steel, copper, oil and other commodities, but all these excuses have become so hackneyed that the investing public is almost tired hearing them parades every time there is a drop in the market, and are looking around for something new.

The name of former Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Charles E. Hughes was injected into the now almost universal discussion in the banks and brokers' offices anent the appointment of a railroad dictator. It could hardly be said that Mr. Hughes's name created any outbursts of enthusiasm, for while his ability as a lawyer is conceded his forte, it is believed, does not lie in the direction of the vast railroads of the United States, especially in view of the present critical conditions.

There is no disguising the fact that of the men most prominently talked about in this connection, Secretary Lane is not only the favorite, but is considered by far the best qualified to administer the position. It is said that Secretary Lane has a practical knowledge of railroads and for this reason alone he is being warmly indorsed by the big financial interests not only in the East but all over the country, as well as by practical railroad officials.

Denial of Bi-Metalism Report

Reports that the Government was considering unlimited coinage of silver or revival of the bi-metallism issue, were officially denied today. Ray T. Baker, Director of the Mint, explained that the proposed Government acquisition of the country's silver output is only to stimulate production and stabilize the market, and it was officially explained that the Administraation is not supporting Senator Shafroth's resolution providing for creation of a commission to study international silver monetary questions.

Referring to the Government's silver negotiations Director Baker said: "The sole purpose of the Government is to insure an adequate supply of silver at a price which will be fair to the small producer as well as to the large producer; which will stimulate the production of silver and gold and other metals yielding silver as a byproduct; which will stabilize the American silver market and which will render foreign exchange more stable. The negotiations afford no opening for a revival of economic issues and should be regarded purely as an effort to secure an adequate supply and to place American silver production on a more satisfactory, and scientific basis."

Small silver producers must receive at least $1 an ounce or shut down their mines, Director Baker of the mint was told by a delegation of producers from western States, who conferred on the Government's plans for acquiring the silver output for the next year.

Mr Baker and Albert Strauss, the Government's foreign exchange expert, told the silver men that a decision on the price and details of the proposed silver arrangements would be made in about a week. In addition to the silver producers, the conference included Senators Smoot, Pitman, King, Newlands, Ashurst, Smith of Arizona, Shafroth and Borah.

Treasury officials today declared that the proposed silver acquisition was solely to meet the monetary needs of the United States, Great Britain and other co-belligerents.

Do We Waste 1,000,000 Tons of Coal a Day?

In view of the acute coal shortage all over the country the following from the Minneapolis Journal throws some light on the subject, but will not give much comfort to those who are actually suffering from the lack of coal, as it would require some time to act on the suggestions made. Nevertheless the nation is being aroused to the absolute necessity of substituting water for steam power on an extended scale:

"In the United States today we are developing about 46,000,000 horsepower from steam and about 6,000,000 from running water. We are mining more than 400,000,000 tons of soft coal annually, to make steam, while the unharnessed water, merely running down hill, represents a possible horsepower of 30,000,000. That is to say, every twenty-four hours the potential but wasted waterpower in America is equivalent to 1,000,000 tons of coal—1,000,000 tons daily going to waste!

"The repair of the world and its sustenance after the war will be accomplished by a constantly increasing percentage of machine labor as against hand labor. The human labor supply for three generations to come will be short. Men will not be available for mine and factory work in such masses and at such wages as formerly. It takes many men to produce steam power; but falling water is a power that requires a minimum of human hands. The mining and transporting of steam coal is costly and cumbersome, as compared with the production and transportation of hydroelectric power. Steam coal accounts for one-third of all railway freight traffic in America. A line of copper wire is all that is necessary to transport hydroelectric power.

"Our supply of steam coal seems inexhaustible, but it is not. It is a fixed amount, always decreasing. So is the oil that America is using at the rate of 35,000,000 annually. But, water power will continue at about the same annual rate, so long as water runs down hill. And all of this great power will probably be needed to conserve the coal and oil supply for generations to come.

"The superiority of hydroelectric over steam power in pulling trains through mountain regions is strikingly shown on the Milwaukee's 400 miles of electrified tracks over the Continental Divide. There electric engines pull heavier trains at double the speed of the old steam locomotive.

"The superiority of hydroelectric power is also shown in metal manufacture. Certain abrasives like carborundum, and alloys like ferro-silicon and ferro-vanadium, have not only doubled or trebled the speed of factories, but have made possible more perfect manufactured products. These electro-chemical products have made the speed of our munition plants a world wonder.

"What America does with her water power in the next 100 years will depend much upon what Congress does with it in the next few years. There is doubtless a way to conserve public rights in public water power, adequate to develop it as rapidly as the power shall be needed."

GIRARD TRUST CO. PROSPERS

Fiscal Report Shows Profits of More Than Million and a Quarter Dollars

The annual report of the Girard Trust Company for the fiscal year ended November 30, submitted to the stockholders today, shows profits of $1,329,899, making total credit to undivided profits $2,972,901. Regular dividends aggregating $900,000 and a special Red Cross dividend of $50,000 were paid.

Early in the year the company made appropriation for increase in salaries of its staff below the grade officers, amounting to $21,307, and contributed $10,000 to the pension fund for employes, and $20,000 to army and navy relief work.

President Effingham B. Morris says, further:

"While it may be that intrinsic values have not been lowered, your board of managers has adhered to its custom of adjusting book values when advisable. It has accordingly written down the amounts at which your investments were carried on your books by $874,000.

"Deducting all the above charges, aggregating $1,875,307, from the above stated sum of $2,972,901, the result is a balance on November 30 of $1,097,593 in the undivided profits account.

"This approximates the amount in undivided profits account on November 30, after a similar large amount was written off at the close of that year for the same war reasons as now obtain."

The average of interest rates secured on collateral loans in the banking department has been 4.56 per cent, against 5.75 per cent last year. There was an increase of 182 individual trust accounts, representing $16,000,000 value. The company has been appointed trustee registrar, etc., in thirteen additional corporate matters, representing $181,000,000 securities. The total number of safe renters is 4666, and of deposit account, subject to check 15,499.
