Junior Aid of St. Francis's House for Convalescents to Give Play January 25-Morning Musicale Splendid-Mr. Ellis Speaks at Independence Square Auxiliary can't be anything more to ask help for and every minute there is something else, and what is more, every one is glad to dig down into his pockets and "come cross" once more again, already, yet to help, help and again help in as far as he possibly can. Now it's the annual play for the benefit of St. Francis's House for Convalescents at Darby, which is to be given by members of the Junior Aid. The play this year will be called "Doctor Optimist," and from all that I have heard it will certainly be successful. The dances and general coaching of the play will be under the direction of Charley Morgan, who taught the recent dancers in the pageant which opened the Charity Ball. The play will be given on Friday evening, January 25, in the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford. And a number of exceedingly elever amateurs will take part. Helen Eustace, whose engagement to Walter Gibbon was anunced about a month ago, will have one of the leading parts, and Katherine Byrnes and Rosalie Hoban, with her slangy hits, will be among the other girls. Arthur Hirst, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Hirst, will take the title role, and there will be several pther clever impersona-

Every bit of work connected with the entertainment is being done by the enthusiastic young juniors themselves. They are very earnest in their wish to help the poor women and girls who rely upon their assistance to bring them back to health in the big old country house which is kept ford that sole purpose open all the year round, and is fully equipped with everything that could ald them to recover quickly from their various lilnesses. You see the house is for the poor who are unable to stay longer in Blockley and other hospitals when pronounced able to leave by the physician. Now these women very often are well enough to leave the hospital, but seldom are they ready to go back at once to the hardships of their daily life of work and coarse food. At St. Francis's House they may stay from two to three weeks and even more if necessary and are given good food and a comfortable bed. The members of the older suxillary in charge of the home are greatly interested in the Junior Aid and always patronize their plays. The rehearsals are presided over by Miss Julia Laguerenne, who was president of the home two years ago. The rehearsals are held at the Ritz-Carlton, and one of the principals whispered to me that it certainly was "intensive" training, since it started the first week in January only. However, in this the second week you would think they had already been training for the parts and the choruses for a long time.

WELL, certainly no one could have been disappointed at yesterday morning's musicale. I, for one, have never heard playing to equal that of Mr. Thibaud and Madame Gill's voice was perfectly lovely. I am here to state that not very much knitting was done during the performance. One just had to sit quiet and listen. The audience was as intelligent a one as usual, so you may be sure none of the beauty of it all escaped it. Mrs. James M. Anders was in one box and Mrs. Sam Riddle was in her box, as were Mrs. Van Rensselaer, Mrs. George Horace Lorimer, Mrs. Theodore Cramp and Mrs. Charles M. Howell, Mrs. Henry Pepper Vaux looked stunning in a deep coral colored gown and large hat, trimmed with coral velvet flowers. Mrs. Lorimer's frock was of sand-colored georgette crepe, trimmed with wide bands of fur, and her large picture hat was trimmed with feathers of the same shade as the dress. Mrs. R. Emott Hare wore a dark tailored sult and purple hat and Mrs. Bertram Lippincott looked well in a black tailored suit and small black toque.

T SAW a number of these women later in the day at the Independence Square Red Cross headquarters when I stopped in to hear Mr. William T. Ellis tell of his experience in Russia, Siberia, Rumania and various other countries. Mr. Eifls is certain of one thing. He said that Russia is out of the war, no matter what occurs-we might as well realize it -because every one in Russia is tired of war. It was a splendid thing to be able to hear at first hand what a clearheaded, cool, but warm-hearted American thinks of the state of affairs over there. And his description of the Queen of Runania and of the King and of the Ruman army was well worth a trip to Bixth and Chestnut streets over and over. As to the Armenians, if you had heard m you would certainly give all you posbly can to that stricken people. Mrs. ner and her committee of the Red Gross are greatly to be congratulated on cured the services of such spienld talkers on Monday afternoons
