Mrs. Maude Radford Warren Tells Women Workers of Her Experiences "Over There"—Wayne Red Cross to Move Into New Quarters

I STOPPED in yesterday afternoon at the Red Cross rooms of Auxiliary No. 276, known as the Independence Square Auxiliary, at 495 Chestnut street, to hear Mrs. Maude Radford Warren tell of her experiences "over there" for Mrs. Warren has only recently returned from the trenches and back of the firing line and from having experienced Zeppelin raids in London. There were many things Mrs. Warren told in that hour's talk, things that brought tears to our eyes and smiles to our lips. And though, because of the snow and bad traffic, there were present only some fifty or sixty women, she took just as much time and trouble to tell us of it as if she had been speaking from the stage of the Academy of Music to thousands of hearers and for the benefit of some great war work which would have brought in thousands of dollars. Yes, we were women workers together for a great cause, the Red Cross, and she, working for that cause, too, came in to tell us of what she had seen and heard.

It's all so distressingly sad to hear about, and what strikes any one who knows the French in this account of their sadness. Mrs. Warren says: "Without doubt they will fight until the last drop of their blood is spilled to win and they have no doubt they will win; but the air of the French soldier today is not that of the soldier at the beginning of the war. They show they have suffered as we have never dreamed of suffering. They have a stolid, dogged, stoical look, but oh! in their eyes that tell the tale." She said: "It is only by their eyes that one can tell if the English soldiers have been in the trenches or not, for they march as jauntily coming out as going in, but if you look into their eyes you look into the eyes of old, worn-out men. All the light and life have gone from them." "The English soldiers will complain if they don't get the kind of jam they want, for instance. 'It's sort of rotten, don't you know.' But if there is anything worth while or big to suffer there is never a murmur from an Englishman; and big or little, never a murmur from the French." She said she had seen French men and their wives bidding farewell to each other at the Gare du Nord, the women white to the lips and the men with smiles on their faces. And she had never seen a French woman cry at one of these heartrending partings.

I ONLY wish I could begin to tell you of all the wonderful things she told us. Of how she had watched an airplane attack from the first-line trench and had been through a field of mud when going to Verdun. And then she told us of Rheims and the Cathedral, which at first approach seemed unharmed, but when reached was found to be full of wounds. Of her passing inside the great walls to find no vestige of the high altar before the kings of France from Charlemagne down had been crowned. "Somehow," said Mrs. Warren, "I felt that even if the Germans took possession of that old city and tore that cathedral down piece by piece, its spirit would still remain, just as the spirit of France can never be stamped out."

She also told us of being in Savoy when the old men, women and children came back from Germany to unoccupied France. How she saw them brought back to life with the cries of "Vive la France!" And of their sufferings.

Doesn't it seem strange to you how we can sit and sew and fold bandages and listen to these things, as if... one were telling us an interesting story? That's the strange part of this horrible war, and Mrs. Warren says it is as true when you are there on the spot as well as over here far, far away from the noise of shot and shell. It's as if it were something to see, like a movie, and some movies, she said, had thrilled her more than the actual seeing of the airplane attack. "And yet," she added, "the very unreality of this awful French war, the not fighting in the open, the having to fight in the trenches until the unceasing bombardment of four or five days is over and the order comes for 'out and over the top'; that is one of the things that makes this war so horrible."

God grant it may all soon end!

AT THE last monthly meeting of the Wayne branch of the Red Cross, which was held on Monday morning, it was announced that the branch had outgrown its present quarters and had taken a house at 129 West Lancaster avenue, Wayne. It will move in the first of March. This house is the former home of Judge Eugene C. Bonwell. A member of the executive committee has guaranteed the rent for the duration of the war, and is also going to put the house in readiness and pay for the moving of the Red Cross. You know, in the recent membership drive this branch doubled its membership and now has more than 3000 members. They turn out from 3000 to 10,000 articles each month, including surgical dressings, garments, knitted articles, etc. Their boxes have such a high standard that they never need to be inspected. Mrs. Robert S. Broadhead, chairman of the wool committee, reported 459 articles turned in during the last two weeks and 824 articles during the last five weeks. Also thirty-seven complete sets have been given to the civilian relief.

Mrs. John Dorrance, Mrs. Alice Dorrance, Mrs. and Miss Eleanor Whiffled Dorrance, who spent the last year in the Orient, have returned to this city and are again living at the Hotel Wiltmore.

Mrs. and Mrs. Abraham S. Valentine and daughter, Miss Caroline H. Valentine, have taken the house of Mr. and Mrs. William Newbold Ely, at Ardmore and Auburn avenues, Chestnut Hill, for the remainder of the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Ely are spending the winter at the Morris Apartments.

Mrs. Theodore Birely Palmer, of 4225 Hazel avenue, entertained at dinner on Monday evening in honor of Miss Clark, of Washington, D. C., who is visiting in this city this week.

Miss Claire Hornick is spending the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Schmidt, of Haddon, who are occupying apartments at 1830 South Rittenhouse square.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Graef, of 3131 Aramingo street, entertained at a small supper on Saturday evening at their home. Their guests were Miss Helen Marie Sides, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sitters and Mr. N. Ackerman Eddy.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Rogers, of 1223 Christian street, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, Mrs. Rogers, before marriage, was Miss Kathryn Moriarty, of 1432 Catherine street.

Mrs. Joseph H. Parvin, who is chairman of the finance committee, also announces that Mrs. William L. Welsh is collecting in full for the benefit of this fund. If the members will all bring as much as they can collect to the clubhouse a substantial sum will be realized.

Mr. J. Henry Scattergood, of the Haverford Friends Unit, spoke at the Philomusian Club on Monday evening, "Disconstruction Work in France." Mr. Scattergood has been connected with this unit for some time, and his talk of the good which they have already accomplished was most interesting. The lecture was profusely illustrated with lantern slides, which greatly increased the enjoyment of the large audience.

MORE WORKERS NEEDED FOR RED CROSS

Burlington, N. J., Makes Appeal for More Women to Help in Making Supplies

BURLINGTON—The Burlington Red Cross branch has made a public appeal for help. While money is of course very necessary and it is to Burlington's credit that the citizens have responded so nobly to the call for members, yet it must be understood that as many members as possible of this Christian drive are expected to come and work in the workrooms in helping with the making of supplies, helmets, wristlets, surgical dressings and countless numbers of other articles needed for the soldiers who are fighting in France.

The work of the Burlington Red Cross branch has progressed wonderfully, but more hands are needed to turn out the work that has been left upon a faithful few. The headquarters is open at all times, and those in charge of the workrooms will be only too glad to give their time in teaching women who would care to knit or sew. This appeal is made in order that this noble work will not be made to suffer or lag for the lack of helpers. The Red Cross branch committee asks that the patriotic women of the city respond to the call.

LARGE CROWD AT PHILOMUSIAN CLUB

Sunday Night Suppers Enjoyed by Hostesses, Enlisted Men and Juniors, Who Serve

It would be difficult to say who enjoys the Sunday night suppers at the Philomusian Club the most; whether it is the enlisted men, who are glad to get the hostesses who provide the delicious suppers, the Juniors who serve and entertain the men or the club members and their husbands, who just come to join in the general good times.

Re that as it may, every seat in the large auditorium was filled on Sunday night and many were standing in the halls and on the balcony. Mrs. Walter Hancock, who is chairman of the hospitality committee, presided at the entertainment and welcomed each sailor as he came to the clubhouse. There are already many familiar faces at these Sunday night suppers, for those who go once like to return, but there are also many new friends, for the men are constantly coming on here from the West to take the places of those who have already started "over there."

Mrs. Edgar Marburg, the president of the Philomusian Club, then spoke to the men in her delightful southern manner. Mrs. Marburg told several amusing little anecdotes, saying that she hoped they would all learn to sing and play some "because" she added, "May your own mother always be just as proud of you as she is now, and may you always deserve that pride."

Then Mr. Ralph Tomlinson, of the University of Pennsylvania Base Hospital Unit No. 29, who made such a hit last week with his singing and playing, sang "Because," "Nancy" and "My Lady." He was encored and soared until Mrs. Hancock promised that he would appear again later. Then Mr. Tomlinson, Miss Florence Adele Whiteburn played three charming selections on the harp, and Miss Myers, who is a member of the Philomusian Club Chorus, sang "Philosophy" and "My Lady." After this there were followed by some of the old familiar melodies, which Chief Yeoman Seaman played on his own instrument, a novel combination of guitar and guitar.

Mr. Richard Hanson then addressed the audience and gave a most interesting account of the history of the submarine from its invention up to the present day. After this there was community singing, led by Mr. Tomlinson, in which all joined heartily.

During a short intermission in the general singing Mr. L. I. Wilson, who is a member of the band of one of our battleships which is temporarily in port at League Island, gave a saxophone solo. This was Mr. Wilson's musical debut as a soloist and he had the support of his mates from the band led the vigorous applause which followed.

Then there was more community singing, which ended with "America," to which was added the new third verse: "God save our splendid men, Bring them safe home again, God save our men."

Golden Jubilee of St. Leonard's House

Invitations have been issued for the celebration of the golden jubilee of the founding of St. Leonard's House, which will take place at the Holy Child convent at Thirty-ninth and Chestnut streets, on February 2. This celebration will bring to a close the campaign which was launched several months ago in anticipation of the golden jubilee. The object of the workers, who consist of alumnae and friends of the convent, has been to raise a substantial sum which could be presented to the sisters of the Holy Child to enable them to pay off the very heavy mortgage which they have been carrying on the school buildings. Many entertainments have been given by the various tents of workers who are interested, and Saturday will mark the close of the campaign by two brilliant affairs. In the afternoon a large card party will be given at the Holy Child convent under the auspices of the team which Mrs. J. M. Quenell has so ably captained. Others who have assisted her are Mrs. Thomas R. Burns, Mrs. S. M. W. Briggs and Mrs. Joseph D. Israel, Miss Agnes H. Bergen, Miss Katherine H. Burns, Miss Ella Connor, Miss Anna Dagli, Miss Anna Dempsey, Miss Salome Gale, Miss Ruth Israel, Miss Dorothy Mundy and Miss Katherine Schlar.

The committee in charge of the entire campaign includes Mrs. Thomas P. Hunter, Mrs. John A. Kelley, Miss Rosalie McMichael, Mrs. S. C. Burnsidge, Mrs. Charles Tate, Mrs. Thomas F. Davlin, Mrs. Daniel Gagar, Mrs. Thomas Ruess, Mrs. John Donnelly, Mrs. John A. Currie, Mrs. Richard C. Schwoerer, Miss Schwoerer and Mrs. Harry C. Lucas.

First-Aid Lessons Given to Scout Troop in Holmesburg

The regular monthly meeting of the Mothers' Auxiliary, Boy Scouts Troop 84, was held on Monday evening at the Thomas Holme Library, where a continuation in the instruction in "First Aid" was given by Mr. Carl Heil. Miss Dorothy Womble, of Decatur street and Frankford road, will entertain the members of the two hundred club to which she belongs on Friday afternoon.

Card Party This Afternoon for Destitute and Poor

Headed by Mrs. L. Moskowitz, of 1219 North Forty-second street, a card party and auction will be held today at the Hotel Lorraine, Broad street and Fairmount avenue, for the purpose of relieving the distress of destitute war sufferers in Poland and Palestine and also in this city. Mrs. Alfred K. Scholl, of 4514 Chester avenue, with her two daughters, Miss Mae Scholl and Miss Miriam Scholl, is sponsoring a few weeks at Atlantic City.

Concert and Dance Planned for Uptown Home for Aged

"The Friends of the Uptown Home for the Aged" will give a sacred concert and dance for the benefit of the building fund of this institution on January 27, at Apollo Hall 1748 North Broad street. Added attractions have been arranged and the elaborate concert which has characterized the affairs of this organization are again to be presented. Mr. Howard Lanins, musician of the Martinique Hotel, of New York City, is to play at this affair.
