FARMERS START DRIVE FOR CONGRESS SEATS

Plan to Capture Fifty Representatives at Fall Election

WANT VOICES HEARD

Declare National Legislature Heretofore Has Not Given Attention to Rural Needs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—A political drive designed to seat not less than fifty farmer Congressmen in the House of Representatives at next fall's election to hold the gains made by the farmers during the war after the return of peace was begun today by the Farmers' Non-partisan League.

The farmers, through their representatives, will insist upon Government ownership of railroads, Federal control of shipping and elimination of the middleman for all time. John M. Baer at present sole representative of the non-partisan league in Congress, said today:

"It is astonishing how little interest Washington now has in the farming industry. When it comes to business it is different. Business is organized. Business comes to Washington and gets not only credit but cash—for shipbuilding and munition making. I have no complaint on that score—but I want the farmers to do the same thing.

"Food is just as necessary as munitions and ships. We face a great shortage of food crops this year. We need a billion bushels of wheat. We are not going to get it—and we are not even going to try to get it, for much land suitable for spring wheat will lie idle. After two bad crops, the farmers are without cash or credit. They can't buy seed! It is just as necessary and right for the Government to provide money for seed to these farmers as it was to provide money for shipbuilding. Yet official Washington cannot see it—because the farmers are not organized.

"The war has done much for the farmer," Baer went on. "While he feels that the Government, after fixing the price of his wheat, should also fix the price of cotton, steel, lumber, shoes and clothing—the things he has to buy—he is not in a mood for much complaining.

"The railroads have been taken over, the middleman cut out and the problem of ship congestion solved. If these steps were necessary in time of war, the farmers contend they are just as necessary in time of peace, and they will fight against any effort to return to the old way of doing things."

The political efforts of the nonpartisan league now center in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Montana, where it is well organized. Before the congressional campaigns get well under way, league speakers will appear in every agricultural community and outline a platform calculated to attract the farmer. They will point to the achievements of the league in North Dakota and will tell the people that, just as the farmer of North Dakota now is getting a "square deal," so the farmers of the entire nation will fare if they are strongly represented in Congress.

A special session of the Legislature of North Dakota is now considering the appropriation of money to provide the farmers with seed. This measure when passed will form a strong plank in the platform for the congressional campaign.
