ZURICH, Feb. 2. The Twelfth Infantry Brigade, two sections of Alpine guides and a signal company have been ordered mobilized Wednesday to re-enforce the frontier guard, it was officially announced today.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 2. Leaders of the radical Socialists declared today they would attempt to call a general strike in Holland next week as a protest against the food shortage and industrial conditions.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 2. Seven munition factories in Berlin have been placed under martial law, and strikers have been ordered to return to work Monday under threat of "military punishment," according to reports received here today.

Martial law was proclaimed formally in Berlin, the proclamation being read in the Schlossplatz following the rolling of drums. Extraordinary courtmartial was announced.

The strike in Lemberg was reported to be growing. The Frankfurter Zeitung demands that the Government find some solution to end the strike.

Haase, Independent Socialist member of the Reichstag, sought Dittmann's release through Imperial Chancellor Hertling, Hertling replied that he was powerless, as Berlin is in the hands of the military officials.

REVOLUTION URGED IN LEAFLET Demand for the overthrow of the Imperial Government and the establishment of a republic in Germany is contained in one of the leaflets circulated in Berlin and which helped to cause the strike.

Only by rising en masse, only by a general strike that shall put a stop to all industrial activities and especially the war industry, only by a revolution and by wresting from the hands of tyrants a democratic republic for Germany, can a halt be called to the international butchery and a general peace be brought about.

Workers! Let us prepare for an immediate, stiff-necked and determined action en masse. This is the only way to end the torments and misery we are suffering.

Information from Berlin insists the strike movement is breaking down under the heavy pressure of the German army chiefs.

These regulations, issued in the form of proclamations, contain stern warnings and dire penalties in the event they are disobeyed.

SUNDAY TO BE CRITICAL DAY Sunday is the favorite day for Socialist and labor demands throughout Germany, and the military authorities have taken steps to maintain strict order throughout the empire tomorrow.

Not only have public meetings been banned, but civilians have been warned to eliminate their "Sunday afternoon promenades." Armed police will keep guard in Berlin, Danzig, Hamburg, Kiel, Bremen, Essen, Stetting, Leipzig and other cities, where there have been signs of dangerous restlessness.

Leaders of the strike movement are now making accusations of treachery against some of the trade union officials, declaring that they

SHIPYARD PROBE LAID TO POLITICS

Official Declares Fleet Corporation Approved All Company's Actions

ORGANIZATION'S HISTORY Many of Men Interested Have Sons in France and Resent Imputations of Delay

If there is any graft, any inefficiency, any waste, any delay, any excessive costs, any improperly let or made contracts for the Hog Island plant and the administration of the American International Shipbuilding Company, an official of the International said today.

It was pointed out that the Emergency Fleet Corporation has had offices in the same building occupied by the International, and that there has not been a contract let, a bill approved, an account audited, or expense incurred that has not had the sanction of the special representatives of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Inference was made that the probe now being conducted at Washington was for political purposes, and the official said that when time, the arbiter of all things, has put the acid test to the affairs of the International Corporation, that company will stand vindicated before the nation.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN DIES SUDDENLY

Former Heavyweight Champion Falls Dead of Heart Disease

IN HIS SIXTIETH YEAR

ABINGTON, Mass., Feb. 2. John L. Sullivan, former heavyweight champion of the world, fell dead in his home here today.

The famous old champion, sixty years old, passed this morning apparently in the heat of his health. He breakfasted with George Burke, who had lived with the old man since the death of the second Mrs. Sullivan.

About 11 o'clock Sullivan began feeling ill. "George, I'm not feeling well. Guess I'll lie down a while," he told Burke a little while later.

He apparently was resting comfortably until shortly before noon, when he was attacked with a fainting spell, against which he appeared to be fighting with all his spirit. Finally he was forced to give up.

In the meantime Burke had summoned a physician, but the old fighter had taken the count for the last time.

"His mind was clear," Burke said, "but before he died he said he felt better. Just before he died he said he felt better when he was licked. He was fighting to the end."

In the annals of pugilism in this country, Sullivan was the last champion of the United States to fight under the London prize ring rules.

His friends ranged all the way from the ordinary "right fan" to many men of social and financial distinction in the United States, and it is said he was long friendly terms with the late King Edward of England.

He had knocked out 266 men of one sort or another in his fighting career, and finally he said that in a season in Terry Haase, Ind., in 1892, he gave the "black bottle," his greatest enemy, the knockout wallop. On the occasion of the decision with regard to the "black bottle," he said:

"If I take another drink I hope I choke, so help me God." He never took another, but kept up his fight for ten years by lecturing.

Sullivan's claim to a world's champion always has been the subject of much dispute, but he regained general recognition after his defeat of Kiriain after first winning decisively over Paddy Ryan, who claimed the American championship. When Corbett defeated Sullivan in Philadelphia, he was

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Feb. 2.

Another German raid on the American trenches was frustrated by Yankee artillery early yesterday.

From all indications in the misty gray dawn the Boches were making a second successive attempt to raid the American lines. Whatever the enemy movement intended, it was broken up by a heavy barrage fire.

The alarm was given about an hour after daybreak, when a lookout detected a body of Germans approaching the Yankee trenches through the fog that hung low and heavy over No Man's Land. In a trice spurts of flame sprang from the Sammees' positions, as machine guns and rifles answered the challenge; soon the artillery got into action and a hail of shells rained down upon the spot where the Germans had been seen. They vanished, retreating toward their own lines.

Fighting is becoming very lively in the sector held by the boys in khaki. Thursday afternoon the Germans made an ineffectual attempt to smother a Yankee trench with machine-gun fire. An observation trench also was attacked with winged bombs.

Not only have the American troops shown their ability to take punishment, but their ever-increasing ability to inflict punishment as well is seen in the apparent anxiety with which the German command views the patrol work of the Sammees. Night after night the terrain between the opposing lines is illuminated by star shells sent up by the uneasy Boches.

HEINZ ISSUES DRASTIC ORDER FOR CEREAL CONSERVATION UNDER PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION

A drastic wheat conservation order has just come from Washington and was announced by Howard Heinz, Federal food administrator for Pennsylvania, this afternoon. It provides that for every pound of wheat flour purchased, an equal pound of substitute flour must be bought by consumers, wholesalers and retailers.

Today's proclamation is considered by food administrators as one of the most vital of the new food conservation regulations issued by the President.

The President of the United States has issued a proclamation calling on all American people to further aid in the conservation of our wheat supply and to conserve the grain and other foodstuffs which are essential to the health and well-being of our people.

REDS' FOES HELD IN GRIM PRISON

EX-MINISTERS IN CELLS

By JOSEPH SHAPLEN PETROGRAD, Jan. 31 (delayed).

Grim St. Peter and St. Paul fortress, mystery prison of old departed days of Czarism, today is called "the best hotel in Petrograd."

Some of its inmates themselves told your correspondent this in interviews which the Bolshevik Government permitted three Swedish Socialists—Menas, Grimlund, Nielsen and Hoegland—and the correspondent to have in their prison cells today.

The fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul was the Czar's own particular prison spot, only the most important political prisoners entered there. Few emerged. The place was shrouded in mystery.

But the Bolshevik Government's political prisoners—sixty in all—find the prison well lighted by electricity, the cells large and kept scrupulously clean, with plenty of windows and air. Not only that, but the prisoners of the new regime are given many liberties. They rise and retire as they please. They wear their own clothes, are permitted to receive visitors and allowed to send letters and books with censorship restrictions.

General Sukhobitoff, former Minister of War under the Czar, was the first of the prisoners to whom our party was introduced.

BAKER WILL SAIL FOR FRANCE SOON

War Secretary Personally to Direct "Knockout" to Germany

TO LEAD 1,500,000 MEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. With his task of raising, training and equipping America's army of 1,500,000 fighting men well on toward completion, with about half of them already in France and plans completed for the transfer speedily of the others, Secretary of War Baker will leave for France himself in about a week personally to direct the delivery of the knockout blow to Germany.

The plan has been under consideration by President Wilson, Secretary Baker and the other cabinet members for some weeks, but it was definitely decided at yesterday's cabinet meeting to adopt it.

At first it was planned to send some cabinet member over for the purpose of securing the fullest cooperation with the Allies' supreme war council and make it unnecessary for each question which arises to be referred back here for opinion. Secretary of the Interior Lane, it is learned, was the man whom it was first decided to send over.

Lane was decided upon because it was thought at that time that it would be impossible for Secretary Baker to fulfill his enormous task of getting the giant army into such shape that it could leave the War Department for an extended stay.

The sending of Baker instead of Lane is an added advantage, for, in addition to fulfilling the task of Lane in keeping close tabs on the supreme war council, he can actively supervise every preparation of the American army on the French battlefields.

With the addition of a number of highly trained business men to the War Department active and advisory staff and with important changes made in the heads of the important War Department bureaus, Secretary Baker now feels confident he has his department in such good shape it will run along smoothly in his absence.

The present plan contemplates his remaining in France about two months, but future developments will, of course, govern the actual length of his stay.

Secretary Baker has supervised the raising and training of 1,500,000 men, has supervised the building of their camps, their training, supplying of their equipment, and arranged for their transport to France.

He feels that the scene of greatest and most important activity will now pass from this country to the battlefields of France and is going "over there" himself to actively supervise the delivery of the knockout punch to Germany.

The groundhog was intensified because the day was now over and the groundhog, when he saw his shadow, he scuttled back into his hole and he was not seen again until the next morning.
