Vassar College to Have Special Intensive Nursing Course This Summer-Madame Homer Sang at Morning Musicale

DID you know that the American Red ton Court, will give a luncheon, followed by bridge, tomorrow in honor of her daughter, Mrs. William Wendling Anglin. given over to a course of intensive training in nursing at Vassar College? The course will be open to Vassar graduates only and will take three months. It will open in June as soon as possible after college closes and will last through the three ummer months. Under the appropriation the college will tive the use of the buildings and laboratory; it will also provide the teachers and the uniforms for the students, so the only personal expense incurred will be that of board. This three months' course covers the mount of work usually done in six months in the regular nurse's course; any one taking it, therefore, should be able to graduate two months, if not three, sooner than the nurse who takes the regular two years. An earlier graduation through intensive training is allowed in all but two States. in the country,

It certainly does seem like a splendid hance for those girls who wish to take up ursing, and especially at this time when urses are so greatly needed. The authorities rather expect that at least one thouand Vassar graduates will take advantage of the opportunity.

T'S funny, now there's so little doing socially, to see how many more scople than usual dolled themselves up a Saturday night and went up to the private view at the Academy. There were two brides in the receiving party, which made it rather exciting, only one did not have a husband to show for it, and she was Charlotte Drayton. John is at camp, you know. It must be awfully hard for those poor little brides. Sometimes I wonder if it would not be better for them to have waited until the war is over; they must be so lonely. Mrs. Frank Patterson was the other bride at the private view, and, of course, Mr. Patterson was around.

DID you hear about Alden Lee and Edith Earle? Here he had expected to have a week's leave and they had planned all kinds a wedding trip and he received orders to report that very evening at Annapolis, and o they did not have any wedding trip but went direct there. It's strange how things happen, isn't it? There's Alden's brother, Philler, who was given a ten days' leave of absence, and goodness knows he could better have gone back that same day than he poor brand-new bridegroom. I'm afraid Sherman was good and right when he said-well, you know what he said.

THE Morning Musicale was fine, indeed, yesterday morning. Madame Homer and her gorgeous voice can usually be red on to bring a full house. She sang elightfully, but one feels with her that agnificent dramatic arias are more suitble than simple little sougs. The prima donna is certainly nothing if not patriotic, for she opened the concert with the "Star Spangied Banner," she gave the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" as an encore and finished with the Red Cross hymn, to music by Horatio Parker. She wore a gorgeous gown of old rose velvet and looked wonderful. The usual knitting audience was present, busily making toes in stockings and purling wristlets. Next Monday will see the last musicale, and Maggie Teyte, of the Chicago company, will sing.

SOCIETY will be out in force at the Belleue tomorrow evening when the Pen nd Pencil Club will give its annual Night in Bohemia, for the entire proceeds will be turned over to the overseas committee of the Emergency Aid. The program will be of great diversity and will be headed by Miss Frieda Rempel, the famous coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera. Company, who will sing two of her most effective numbers, Proch's "Theme and Variations" and Strauma's "Blue Danube." Miss Hempel has always been a pronounced favorite in this city and will make her last operatic appearance this reason at the Metrolopitan Opera House tonight as Violetta in "La Traviata." She is famed, you know, as being the bestdressed singer on the stage, and her gown in the third act of "La Traviata" is a most wonderful creation, and with it Miss Hempel wears her entire magnificent jewel collection. OTHERS who will appear include De Wolf Hopper, Flora Zabelle, George Arliss, John Drew, Julian Eltinge, Louise Allen and the Marine Band from the Navy Yard, the conductor of which is First Sergeant Burr H. Ozment. Among the patronesses and box holders are Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, Mrs. Walter S. Thomson, Mrs. Gardner Cassatt, Mrs. William G. Warden, Mrs. Samuel Bell, Jr., Mrs. Russell Jones, Mrs. Trenchard Newbold, Mrs. John C. Norris, Mrs. Edward Browning, Mrs. William Clothier, Jr., Mrs. Harry Waln Harrison, Mrs. P. C. Abbe Flynn will deliver a lecture about the war at Witherspoon Hall next Tuesday afternoon, February 12, at 4 o'clock. As that day will be Lincoln's Birthday a large attendance is expected.

Abbe Flynn is a Frenchman of Irish descent and has spent two years actually in the trenches. The tales of his own experiences during that time are most interesting. as he gives his heavers the benefit of an entirely new angle in his outlook on the war. Although Philadelphians have never before had the opportunity of hearing Abbe Flynn, he has been on tour for some time and is at present lecturing in New York.

This society, which has a board of managers both in this country and in France, has done marvelous work among the little or-phaus of French soldiers. In France at all thnes, but particularly during the war, the conservation of child life is most important, and it is pitiful to imagine what would have become of many of the little ones who consti-tute the next generation if it had not been for the splendid work of the Societe des

Orphelins Franculs. The committee numbers many prominent men, including Cardinal Gib-bons, on its American committee. Mrs. John Markoe and Mrs. Robert Leslie are in charge of the affair and tickets may be obtained from the Emergency Aid head-quarters, 1128 Walnut street, or from 1804 Pine street

Each group has an average of 100 mem-bers working for it, so that a large amount of work is accomplished. From May 1 of last year up to the first of January, 1725 knitted garments, six knitted rugs, 157 knit-ted squares and face cloths, 967 hospital gar-ments, 25,124 surgical dressings and seventy-six fracture pillows were made. The auxiliary now has an electric cutting machine, which so conserves time and hand-labor that it is expected that what was for-merly accomplished in eight months can now be done in one. It is fascinating to see how the cutting machine works. It has a long tube attached to it so that it can be earried into any of the sewing rooms on the same floor. As much material as is required for the number of garments to be cut out is laid on a table and the pattern placed over it. Heretofore Auxiliary 200 has worked for Heretofore Auxiliary 200 has worked for quality, and now that it has that together with the increased number of members, who joined during the Christmas member-ship campaign, and the new cutting machine, it is striving for quantity. Mra. Brook, the director, is untirfug in her efforts to push the work forward as much as possible; in fact, it is said that she knows no hours IT

at Red Cross headquarters-so well done their work, in fact, that no need of further inspection at headquarters is necessary. The storeroom containing word is kept filled
