were concerned, under the surgeon general of the army had been recommended.

"That is the most difficult problem of all the difficult problems," answered Secretary Baker.

AIRLIFT EQUIPMENT

In response to questions by Senator McKellar as to supply of artillery in camps and cantonments, Baker said that national guard battery units had been 40 per cent equipped with guns.

"It varies from 8 per cent at Camp Davis to 100 per cent at Camp Hancock," said Baker.

The national army artillery units are being equipped with sufficient guns for training purposes, he added.

Switching to the question of army supplies, McKellar wanted to know why certain contracts had been kept secret.

"My military associates thought it best not to divulge information," said Baker, "because it might invite a campaign of sabotage."

Thousands Attend Sullivan's Funeral

with its many stars forming a cross of black on the background of white and red flapped in the bright glare that whirled around the corners.

Inside the church the crowd was motley. Bed-faced, rough laborers took their seats alongside fur-coated brokers, lawyers and doctors, and bowed their heads as solemn high mass was said for the warrior.

The smelt of burning incense, the intonations of the priests and the silvery notes of four women singers gave a strange atmosphere to the morning of the famous gladiator.

The beautiful service of the Roman Catholic Church and its solemnity brought many a sob from women in the audience.

James J. Corbett was not among those present. The man who conquered Sullivan sent a floral tribune with the explanation that he could not come personally.

John Dwyer, another famous name of early prize-fighting days, also was there. There were many others of lesser renown.

Former Mayor Charles D. Thompson and others high in political life in this section paid a last tribute.

John L. Sullivan, another old-timer, followed the body of his old friend to its last resting place.

Stunned by the loss of the man he loved, Billy Kelly, the four-time world champion who lived with John L., was a pathetic figure as he followed close behind the hearse.

And in Calvary Cemetery, while the hearse rumbled, the crowd of men stood unmoved at the last chapter in the life of the greatest figure in the world of pugilism.

The body of John L. Sullivan was lowered into its grave.

APPEAL TO PATRIOTISM BREAKS MINERS' STRIKE

Quit Work Because I. W. W. Agitators Claimed Discrimination in Draft Exemptions

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 6.—Four hundred mine workers at the Keokoke colliery of the Trades' Coal Company who have been on strike for the last fourteen days took a vote last night and decided to call the strike off.

The strike was the result of I. W. W. agitation. Some of the leaders dominated the discharge of Superintendent T. H. Conway, on the allegation that he discriminated against them in refusing to furnish affidavits for exemption from war service.
