

RUSSIANS MAY RISE IN NEW REVOLUTION TO BALK PEACE SURRENDER OF BOLSHIEVIKI

Great Mass of People Expected to Reject Kaiser's Terms General Brujewitch Proclaims Dictatorship—Orders Troops to Fight to End

BERLIN, Feb. 25. General Brujewitch has succeeded Ensign Krylenko, the Bolshevik commander-in-chief. The new Russian general has proclaimed a dictatorship and has ordered the troops to fight to the end.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 25. Ensign Krylenko, commander-in-chief of the Bolshevik forces, was shot in the neck and slightly wounded Saturday by an unnamed Socialist, according to reports from German sources received here today.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 24 (delayed). The Executive Committee of the Pan-Soviets agreed to accept the German peace terms by a vote of 126 to 85, with 26 not voting.

LONDON, Feb. 25. Conflicting dispatches were received today from Petrograd as to the intentions of David R. Francis, United States Ambassador to Russia.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. That the great mass of Russian people will refuse to accept the climax of Bolshevik folly and treachery—abject surrender to the Teutons—is the belief of military and diplomatic chiefs here.

A peace forced by the Germans which virtually turns over to the Kaiser and his allies the vast territories of Russia, leaves distribution of the remainder in the power of the Teutons, demobilizes the Russian fighting forces and interns their ships.

According to Russian officials here, and in fact, all who know the Bolsheviks, Trotsky and Lenin could do nothing else but declare peace. Others who sought to control that the Russian people should be misled by the propaganda of the Bolsheviks because they could not bring about peace, or even a statement of war aims by the Entente, America and the Allies.

REVOLV MAY COME SOON. If Germany proceeds to take as her own the vast territories of Russia, arms, food, etc., the revolt will come immediately. By some military men it is held inevitable that the signature of Trotsky and Lenin to the present German peace demands will result in immediate clamor of protest from the people.

The actual benefits to Germany of peace will be the added territory she acquires for farming needed food products. It also means her getting the advantage of selling her people she can have a Mitteleuropa either way—to Baghdad or to Vladivostok—for the expansion of German business.
