THRILLING PROWESS IN FAIRBANKS FILM

"Headin' South," Stanley's New Bill, Is Replete With Athletic Feats

HAYAKAWA IN NOVELTY

STANLEY "Headin' South," with Dougle Pairbanies, Story by Alan Desan and directed by Art Rosson, Aircraft production This time Douglas Pairbanks is an acrobatic thief-catcher. He is on the move at all times and some of his athlette feats are really remarkable for their daring. Although this is a comedy, there is plenty of melodramatic wild western material in the film. Katherine MacDonald is introduced as the new leading lady for Mr. Fairbanks and as such she well deserves the honor. Heretofore she has appeared with Charles Ray and other Paramount and Arteraft players. Now she is entitled to remain a star. She possesses many of the qualifications of a movie luminary and has youth and good lo-

Another player who has made rapid errides in the celluloid is Frank Cam-peau with his types of bad men. He ably expresses the repular conception of a Mexican bandit. James Mason has a part that is novel and interest-ing. Others give good characterizations. From the moment the story opens with the killing of three men by "Span-with the killing of three men by "span-tsh" Joe, played by Prank Campeau, antil the very end, with his capture, there is plenty of action of the rough-and-ready sort. If it were not known that Patthauks is a comedian this whole affair might be taken seriously, but as it is there is a lot of good fun for the "illum-wise."

This production has been placed upon This production has been placed mon-the list issued by the censors as being a worthy picture, and it is deserving of attention. The charm of outdoor life is constantly emphasized. The jump from a Broadway life to that of a lumber from a Broadway life to that of a lumber foreman is made by Lockwood, as the hero. The star has selected Martha Mansfield for his leading player, and while her part does not require much acting, she knows how to invest it with beauty and personality. F. Stanton Steck, who will be remembered as the one who played the big Turk in "Katinka," is cast as a foreman of a lumber camp ewned by the herome's father. Steek gives the role a touch of realism and looks the part of the burly

At times the lack of action is a fault, but the beauty of the outdoor photo-graphy and the good acting of Lockwood are compensations. Cornish Beck, Raymond C. Hadley, Bert Starkey and W. W. Black have supporting parts.

"Les Miscrables." with William Farnum as Jean Valjean, is the current bhoto-play feature at the Strand The-atre. The Locost's chief film offering is "The Nagrow Trail," with William S.

Take for instance, the collar of diamonds and emeralds which she bequeathed to Mrs. George Keppel. It had been admired by King Edward every time he had seen Mrs. Moore wear it and the latter evidently thought that by and the latter evidently thought that by another friend, now, alas, no longer among the living. The pearl necklace, which was left to Mrs. James Hazen Hyde, formerly the Countess de Gon-latter, was evidently intended as an acknowledgment for the attention which is made and the latter lady had constantly awarded Mrs. Moore through many years, during which they had been much together.

And, finally, the large legacies to the Hospital des Quinze Viogt in Paris, and to her own servants proved the generous instincts of a woman, who during her
