WILLIAM PENN EVENING SCHOOL TO REOPEN

Coal Shortage Caused Eight Weeks' Recess—Many Courses

After a recess of eight weeks occasioned by shortage of coal the William Penn Evening High School will reopen Monday evening, March 4. The school term will be lengthened to permit students to complete the courses upon which they have entered. New students will be received and new classes formed in all subjects for which there is sufficient demand, according to the principal, Dr. J. T. Rorer.

Patriotic as well as personal motives will impel hundreds of girls to take advantage of the business courses. Women are taking so many places formerly held by men that business training becomes more and more essential. Although more stenographers and bookkeepers are graduated by the schools each year, the supply does not keep pace with the demand.

Courses will be given in English, French, Spanish, arithmetic, algebra, bookkeeping, stenography, typewriting, office practice, salesmanship, penmanship, library work, chemistry, music, cooking, dressmaking, millinery, gymnasium work, physiology and hygiene.
