SCENARIO TO SCREEN AND IN BETWEEN

Players and Plays of the Week in the Local Photoplay Theatres

The motion-picture industry is urging the coining of a fifteen and a two cent piece to meet the new tax requirements and facilitate the handling of crowds buying tickets.

The first episode of "The Son of Democracy," featuring Benjamin Chapin as Lincoln, will begin today at the Ridge Avenue Theatre and on Saturday at the Park.

Mary Pickford plays the part of a girl of twenty in her newest screen release at the Stanley.

This is the first week since the advent of stellar attractions at the Victoria that the week's program has been divided into two parts. "The Studio Girl," with Constance Talmadge, is the first play.

Madge Kennedy, in "Baby Mine," will be the first appearance of this player at the Model.

"Blue Jeans," with Viola Dana, will be the feature the middle of the week at the Fifty-sixth Street Theatre.

Elsie Ferguson does good work in "The Rise of Jennie Cushing," which will be at the Apollo on Wednesday.

Theda Bara is now working in a production of "Salome."

George Beban, the best interpreter of Italian characters, is the star of the play at the Arcadia this week.

After an absence of more than a year, Mabel Normand returns to the screen in "Dodging a Million" at the Bluebird today.

"Still Waters" is old but still remains one of Marguerite Clark's best plays. It is scheduled for today only at the Knickerbocker.

Metro is presenting Edith Storey in "Revenge" at the Palace the first half of the week.

Double bills are scheduled for all week at the Rivoli with a change of program every two days.

"Stella Maris" will bring Mary Pickford to the Eureka on Friday. She plays a dual role in this production.

PHILADELPHIA PRIZE TO KING'S "SOLITUDE"

Landscape Expressing Silence on a Gray Day Gets Award at Academy

The Philadelphia prize, awarded by popular vote for the best painting in the 113th annual exhibition of the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, was awarded today to Paul King for his landscape painting entitled "Solitude."

During the four successive years in which this prize was awarded, this is the first time in which it was given to a landscape. The previous winners are Lydia Field Emmet for her painting "Patricia," Marie Danforth Page for her painting "Mother and Child," and Ernest L. Major for his painting "Nausicaa."

"Solitude" expresses the artist's mood of a gray day when everything about seems to be motionless and silent.

Mr. King has had a remarkable art career. He was born in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1867. He studied in the Art Students' League, New York city; Art Students' League, of Buffalo, and was a pupil of M. Siddons Mowbray, the eminent artist. He has won great mark at exhibitions. He is a member of the Salmagundi Club, the Art Club of Philadelphia. His work is represented in the Shaw collection, Engineers' Club and many other galleries. Among other prizes that he won are the Innes prize in 1905 and the Shaw prize in 1906.

WOMEN POLICE GUARD GIRLS AT WAR CAMPS

Fifty-five Women Deputies Appointed to Watch Over Young Workers Nearby

The so-called "weaker sex" has been called on by Uncle Sam to assist in disposing of a vital wartime problem—that of the protection of the thousands of girls who have gone to the vicinity of training camps to work. The War Department has established a woman police force to handle this important work.

Under the auspices of the Commission on Training Camp Activities fifty-five women deputy sheriffs to do scouting work and patrol duty have been appointed and these are in turn under the jurisdiction of specially established Girls' Protective Bureaus.

These women are trained sociological workers and so peculiarly equipped for efficient service. Their duties are intensely personal in character and are concerned chiefly with individuals. Although co-operating closely with the military authorities and local police, they wear no uniform, badge or distinguishing mark of any kind.

"Often," says Miss Maude Miner, chairman of the Committee on Protective Work for Girls, "the women protective officers find girls in the vicinity of the camps who are attracted by the presence of the uniform. Some of these are girls who have answered advertisements and who arrive in camp cities with insufficient funds; others are runaways from their homes in nearby cities and country towns. A girl resident of the town, who is disposed to resist discipline, is taken to her home by the woman officer and her mother warned of her danger. The officers also visit nearby amusement places to discover young girls who seem to need protection and to see that local ordinances are obeyed."

HOME GARDENER SHOULD HAVE SEED READY TO PLANT EARLY

Decide on Best Location for Each Vegetable, Determining How Much Is Needed for Space Available

GET the seed for your home garden early. This is an important step in the home gardener's effort to supply fresh vegetables for his table and for canning and to help relieve the demand on the country's supplies of food.

Seed should be ordered well in advance of the time for planting in the open, so that it will be ready for planting in flats or frames and also for use outdoors as soon as the weather and the condition of the soil make it possible. Before ordering seed the home gardener should decide what vegetables he wants to raise and also should look over his garden plot or plan and decide on the best location for each vegetable, determining how much seed will be required for the space available for each variety. A well-laid garden plan, the preparation of which was described in an earlier article in this series, will be a great aid in determining the amounts and varieties of seed that will be needed.

Just what vegetables are to be grown depends, of course, upon the individual tastes of the family. In general, the aim of the home gardener should be to raise vegetables in which freshness is an important quality. Peas, string beans, lima beans, asparagus and sweet corn, for example, lose much if they are not cooked almost immediately after they are picked. In the case of potatoes, corn, cucumbers, squashes and melons, it should be remembered that these vegetables occupy a large area in proportion to their yield and in a small garden consume valuable space which, in most cases, could be used more profitably. In the case of potatoes, however, it also should be noted that they are easily stored and are an extremely good staple crop, and many gardeners will find it to advantage to plant as much ground to potatoes as possible after sufficient space has been allotted to the other garden crops.

Aim to make every seed count. Remember the supply of some of the more important varieties of garden seed is limited, and in order that all may obtain enough to meet their needs, every one should co-operate to make what is used produce a maximum crop.

Following are the approximate quantities of seed that should be purchased for a garden which is to supply vegetables for successive plantings throughout the season for a family of four:

Beans, snap	½ to 2 pints
Beans, pole, Lima	1 pint
Beans, bush, Lima	1 pint
Beet	½ ounces
Cabbage (early)	1 packet
Cabbage (late)	¼ ounce
Carrot	½ ounce
Cauliflower	1 packet
Celery	1 packet
Corn, sweet	½ to 2 pints
Cucumber	1 ounce
Eggplant	1 packet
Kale or Swiss chard	2 ounces
Lettuce	½ ounce
Muskmelon	1 ounce
Onion sets	4 to 6 quarts
Parsley	1 packet
Parsnips	½ ounce
Peas, garden	2 to 4 quarts
Radish	½ ounce
Salsify	½ ounce
Spinach	½ pound in spring and ½ pound in fall
Squash (summer)	1 ounce
Squash (Hubbard)	½ ounce
Tomatoes, early	1 packet
Tomatoes, late	¼ ounce
Turnips	½ to 3 ounces
Watermelons	2 ounces

If a gardener should desire to plant all of the vegetables mentioned, it is calculated by garden specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture that enough space could be found for them in one-fourth of an acre. However, it is advised that the gardener, unless he has had one or more years' experience, center his work on as few as six of the more important vegetables. For most of the vegetables listed the plantings may consist of the entire quantities mentioned. Relatively small quantities of cauliflower, eggplant and parsley should be sufficient for most families. The entire supply of string beans, bush lima beans, sweet corn, lettuce, peas and radishes should not be planted at one time, but successive plantings two or three weeks apart should be made so that a fresh supply of the vegetables may be had throughout the season.

Of early Irish potatoes, one peck to a half bushel will be required, and of late potatoes a half bushel to one bushel more, depending upon the amount of ground available for this purpose. If abundant space is available it may be well to grow enough Irish potatoes to last throughout the winter.

If the family wishes to raise vegetables to supply current needs and also to furnish a surplus for canning, the amounts given above should be considerably increased.

With a little forethought a comparatively small tract of land may be made to supply the average family with fresh vegetables throughout the growing season.

Gardening Makes an Appetite

THE more blisters you raise in cultivating, the less water your plants will need.

Weeds waste moisture and plant food. And they're not even pretty.

Have you filed your hoes? Some sticks to mark the rows?

Elect White Haven Directors

Science Solves the Butter Problem with Butter Made from the White Meat of Cocoanuts

Just when the price of butter threatens to make it an unattainable luxury, science perfects TROCO, the new vegetable butter made from the white meat of the cocoanut.

It tastes exactly like the finest creamery butter and is even more wholesome and pure.

It is churned with fresh Pasteurized milk to give true butter flavor.

Because of old laws, made before this discovery, we are compelled to label this nut-made butter as oleomargarine.

But it contains no oleo oils—no hog or beef fat.

TROCO is simply vegetable fats, churned with milk for the butter taste.

Yet this appetizing combination costs no more than does the best grades of oleomargarine.

TROCO

Can't Be Told From Butter

TROCO has all the good qualities of fine creamery butter. The only difference you will notice is the cost.

It is as nutritious as cream butter, and as easily digested. It possesses the fuel value needed for energy.

TROCO when served has butter's golden color, because we supply the same vegetable coloring used by all butter makers.

Served on your table, without explanation, no one can tell the difference.

Goes Farther In Cooking

TROCO, used in cooking, gives the same results as butter, except that it goes farther. Cooks should remember this and reduce the amount.

It makes such cake as has not been known since butter soared in price.

It allows the old-fashioned "rich cooking" that builds up the family health.

Your Dealer Can Supply TROCO

If your dealer doesn't already keep TROCO, ask him to get it for you. Tell him you must have this new-day successor to butter.

Insist until he secures a supply.

For TROCO solves one of the biggest problems presented by our high food prices—

—The problem of serving appetizing, wholesome butter at a moderate cost.

NOTICE: Under the law, all butter substitutes must be branded Oleomargarine. That law was passed before TROCO was invented. So the TROCO package is branded "Oleomargarine," though it is not oleo in it. All butter substitutes must pay an extra tax if colored. So the color for TROCO comes in a separate package. Add it yourself, as you do with Oleomargarine.
