

Master Finery Has Its Own Excuse for Being—but Have It Simple

THE WHYFORE OF EASTER HATS, OR ARE THEY NON ESSENTIALS?

Member of Auxiliary War Board Says They Are, But a Few Pointers Lead Us to Consider Their Wartime Value

It is a harrowing thought but it must be faced. Is the Easter bonnet a nonessential?

There are several ways of thinking over this matter of an Easter bonnet. I know a woman who has just bought here a fine Tonkinese blue with some floppy pink roses.

ARE women really buying Easter bonnets for the sake of the soldiers who can come home and look at them? Maybe some of them are, but...

Does this mean that the Easter bonnet is nonessential? It does not. My friend who bought the Tonkinese had a very good reason for doing so.

The Cost of Living High When the high cost of living has become so high that it seems as though you could not live any longer, buy a pound of rice and live high.

Women want pretty clothes, not because the soldiers need them to look at, but because clothes fortify them.

A smart hat warms a woman's soul. It gives her the power to write a cheerful letter to her soldier boy when she might have written a blue one.

SIMPLICITY SHOULD BE THE KEYNOTE OF ALL WELL-DRESSED WOMEN'S CLOTHES THIS YEAR

Irene Fenwick Tells How Frill-less Feminine Togs May Combine Taste With Economy

"CLOTHES make the woman—but it is for the woman to make the clothes," says Miss Irene Fenwick, who is appearing in the all-star production of "Lord and Lady Algy" at the Lyric Theatre.

"There is nothing smarter than the tailored gown. And the secret of its success is its simplicity. Even before the present war conditions I have always sought this in all my dresses—either those worn on the stage or off."

EDITORIAL FOR WOMEN BY A WOMAN

By JOSEPHINE L. REED HOPWOOD

W sing the words of the popular song, "Keep the Home Fires Burning," thoughtlessly as we go about the day's work, the new boy whistles the melody carelessly in the streets and the lad in khaki lingers idly as he waits for the call to go "over there."

Discouragements and reversals will come to our lads at the front—perhaps, after all a strenuous day in camp or long hours of horror in the trenches when the light comes with the darkness, and with it will come desolate yearning for home things and home faces.

Very soon 2,000,000 and more of our American boys will be at the front filling in the broken ranks of the Allies, who have done so nobly by the cause which is also ours.

"Women are doing splendid work in aiding many noble war causes. We all know what the women of France and England have done since the war began—women of all classes and conditions.

THE CAREER OF MARY REGAN

Its History, Popular in Magazine, Now Put in Book

New York's smart upper set, respectable middle-class folk, who mingle with them in democratic fashion amid the whirl of the glided life of the modern cabaret, the shrewd, well-dressed crooks who form a material element of the crust of "society" in the metropolis.

He is a remarkable chap, this Clifford, and not the least curious feature of his make-up, moral and professional, is his invincible belief that a queen of the underworld, whom at a queer period of her career he had rescued from an environment of the lowest order of thievesy glory.

For Mary is introduced at the conclusion of a six months' period of self-analysis devoted to discovering for herself whether she wishes to live a crooked and sober life and is adapted to it or to return to the crooked ways from which she had been snatched by the high-minded Bob.
