SCHOOL DAYS

A Slight Misunderstanding

"This is a present for the wife."
"I didn't know you were married."
"Oh, it's not my wife."

The Young Lady Across the Way

"Auntie, did you marry an Indian?"
"Why do you ask such silly questions, Freddie?"
"Well, I saw some scalps on your dressing table."

Poetic License?

Sentimental Damsel (on tour of the campus, stopped before a gigantic tree)—Oh, wonderful elm, if you could speak, what would you say to me?

Senior Forester (accompanying her)—It would probably say, "Pardon me, but I am an oak."—Froth.

Deduction

A New Leaf

Now, on dinners without meat,
And on breakfasts without wheat,
I was able as a patriot to exist;
But tabooing all cigars
In this bloody reign of Mars
That will put me on the casualty list!

—Lehigh Burr.

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

I'll always be in love with life—
It matters not what joys I lack
As long as music thrills my soul
And gives me shivers down my back.
RTCann

The young lady across the way says patriotic men above military age are coming forward for all sorts of clerical work required by the war, and she judges from what she sees in the paper that the Government is experiencing no difficulty in finding planty of competent payroll padders.
