Law Recognizes No Sex be attempt to secure military recin war work is not sponsored by the American Women's Hospitals, but is be-ing watched with keen interest by women physicians everywhere. Two actthe medical officers' reserve corps to women, since the law creating the corps refers only to "citizens" and makes no sex qualification. But both have insisted that "the law must be construed in the light of military service and usage," which would seem to put up the bars against women doctors. Both also expressed doubts that women could qualify physically for the arduous service required.

Chairman Dent of the House military specified and hula dancers in boardwalk cafes are going to have a powerful ally. He is William F. Scoy, Director of Public Safety, the supervisor of all excise matters at the shore, who has power to do anything that needs to be done, it is claimed, to correct the sugar-coated wickedness on cabaret doom.

Chairman Dent, of the House military affairs committee, said he disapproved of women taking part in the fighting, but saw no objection, and, in fact, favored commissioning them for non-combatant service, such as is to be undertaken by the American Women's Hospitals in France. Representative Julius Kahn, of Calle. but saw no objection, and, in fact favored commissioning them for non-combatant service, such as is to be undertaken by the American Women's Hospitals in France. Representative Julius Kahn, of California, ranking Republican member of the military affairs examittee, shared the view of the chairman.

TELL OF AIRPLANE LOSSES

German's Assert Allies Lost 2647 Machines in 1917

Perlip newspapers of January 16

med the following presumably semi-cal report: printed the following presumably semioficial report:
"In the year 1917 the Entente lost altogether 2647 flying machines and 244 ballooms, Against this enormous number of enemy losses, the Germans lost only 783 flying machines and thirty-four balloons on all fronts during the same period of time. The Entente's heaviest losses were in the theatre of battle in the west, where they lost 2431 airplanes and 168 balloons, while in the east 246 enemy airplanes and seventy-six ballooms were shot down."
