Orpheus Mixed Quartet to Sing for Ship and Tent Club-Motor Messengers Have Ambulance. A Bit of Horseplay

I GUESS our thoughts have been "over | City with her husband, who is stationed there" so much these last few days we have not been looking around as much about the boys here; but it's only for a minute in thought, anyway. For we can't do anything but pray and work for those "over there" and that we are doing. But we can try to make those we have still with us happy.

The Ship and Tent Club, at Twentythird and Christian streets, is a baven for a number of the marines and sallors stationed here, and Dr. George Herbert Toop, o. the Church of the Holy Apostles, at Twenty-first and Christian streets, has underta'en to give the boys supper, an hour of service and then a musical and social meeting on Sunday nights.

Unfortunately, these things can't be done for nothing. All the good will and self-sacrifice in the world will not buy suppers, you know, and so the Orpheus Mixed Quartet has offered its services for the club's benefit, and on Thursday evening. April 18 will give "The Golden Threshold." an Indian song cycle, in costume and with appropriate stage setting in the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford. And, as is usual, there will be dancing after the concert.

The Orpheus Quartet includes Miss Edna Harwood Baugher, soprano; Miss Elizabeth Dickson, contraito; Mr. Philip Warren cook, tenor, and Mr. Donald Redding, baritone.

Last Sunday evening supper was served for seventy-five men, and those who are interested in the club are trying to provide amusements for every night.

Among the prominent women who have given their names as patronesses for the song cycle are Mrs. Gardner Cassatt, Mrs. Samuel Houston, Mrs. Effingham Morris. Mrs. Arthur Newbold, Mrs. Isanc Clothier, Mrs. A. J. Drexel Paul, Mrs. George W. Childs Drexel, Mrs. William Struthers Ellis, Mrs. Thomas J. Dolan, Mrs. Henry Brinton Coxe, Mrs. Charles D. Barney, Mrs. George C. Thomas, Mrs. Hamilton Disston, Mrs. Calvin Pardee, Mrs. Alexander Van Rensselaer, Mrs. William Baker Whelen and a number of others.

DID you think you were in the war zone on Tuesday night after the opera when that armored train of motortrucks came tearing down Walnut street and up Broad to the City Hall? It was simply fierce the noise they made, and some of us were scared to death, not knowing just what it was at first. They were stationed around City Hall yesterday, and certainly made a formidable appearance.

AND did you see the Motor Messengers' brand new ambulance, which they are going to drive themselves? My dears. it arrived on Monday, and honest to goodness you would have laughed yourself sick to see the excitement among the younger girls. One particularly attractive one was actually jumping up and down with joy as she reiterated and reiterated to another, who had come along: "Now aren't you sorry you didn't join; now aren't you sorry?"

And then a bunch of them drove it up and down Walnut street. It is wonderful to have, and they should be proud of the good work they have done and are doing in this war of ours. We must not stop to think of the burdens which that brave little ambulance may soon have to convey. We cannot stop to grieve, lest overmuch grief swallow us up.

As the Archbishop of York said when talking to the women of this city on Tueslay afternoon: "One of the finest things in this dreadful struggle has been the spirit with which the women of England have received their dead and wounded and the news of their dead and wounded whom they could not receive. And I am sure," he added, "that the women of America will not be behind their English sisters in heroism of this kind when they are asked to meet this trial, as they surely will be."

MEN don't often grow up, you know, but some stay young longer than others. and I heard a story recently about three of them who apparently haven't even reached the age of discretion. They "work" in a certain concern in town, and the work they do must be rare, in every sense of the word, for I don't believe they ever have a sane moment. One evening recently one of them was invited to a dinner-one of the few formal ones this year -and to his great disgust he discovered that it was formal enough to require evening clothes. As it was an awfully busy day and he was staying for some time after the usual 3 o'clock he took his dress suit into town with him in a bag and got dressed at the office. Strolling over to his desk he lighted a cigarette and settled himself with the evening paper to be comfortable until time to start-it was then only about quarter after 5. The other two objected seriously to his appearing before 6 o'clock in evening clothes. "No, no, he mustn't; why, it was awful form," murmured they. Naturally, he knew they were talking foolishly, so he didn't even bother to listen. Therefore it was somewhat of a surprise to him when he was removed bodily from his chair and deposited in a vault and left there behind a locked door until 6 o'cleck, when it was "good form" for him to emerge in a dress suit. There was nothing to do but wait; but it was a much ruffled and perturbed young man who made his abject apologies to his hostess for arriving some twenty minutes late to dinner—and I imagine the atosphere of the office the next day must have been pretty thoroughly streaked with NANCY WYNNE.

GARY SCHOOL SYSTEM URGED BY DR. CORNMAN

Associate Superintendent Also Recom mends Provision for Leisure Hours of Workers

At the quarterly conference of officials of nstitutions for the care and training of children, held yesterday at St. Edmond's Home for Crippled Children, Dr. Oliver P. Cornman, Associate Superintendent of Public Schools, announced himself in favor of a duplicate school system, more generally known as the Gary system. This system has the twofold object of making continuous use of the school plant and of moving children from teacher to teacher.

Doctor Cornman spoke on the subject "Can he Public Schools Meet the Educational Needs of Institution Children?" and he brought out the point that the Philadelphia school system was trying to provide for the added leasure made available by the eight-hour day by inculcating in children an an-preciation of good literature and music. He lso said that new factory methods, under which a worker must pound away at the same thing hour in and hour out, made it essential that he should derive recreation and enjoyment from his leisure.

and enjoyment from his leisure.

Mrs. Iris Prouty O'Leary, special assistant in charge of vocational education. New Jersey Department of Public Instruction, spoke on "Making the Work of Institutions Real." Other problems considered in the discussion which followed were: What vocational and industrial education should our institutions provide for children in their care? Can this training be secured through the public schools? Should there be a central industrial institution to which older children could be transferred for special training? Are we doing all that we should for the boy or girl who finds it impossible to complete the eighth grade?

Tea was served by the sisters of St. Ed-mond's Home.

SERVICE STAR LEAGUE FOR FIGHTERS' FAMILIES

Overseas Committee of Emergency Aid Exhibits Motion Pictures of Camp Conditions

The Service Star League, the latest ac tivity of the overseas committee of the Emergency Aid, plans to show patriotic pictures in each of the fifty-one draft board districts of the city. A trial performance was given last evening at the Union League annex and was enthusiastically received. The object of this lengue is to bind together all men and women entitled to wear the service star and to pledge them to help one another.

The motion pictures, which comprise the greater part of the entertainment, show the true conditions of camp life and carry a message to the mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts that the men are in good hands and will come back safe and sound. Many of the cole laws only recently come from of the reels have only recently come from France, and these pictures of our own boys "over there" have never before been publicly exhibited.

Invitations will be sent to the families of drafted men, but every one in the district will be made welcome at the performances. Mayor Smith has heartly indorsed the work and the home service department of the Bed Cross, under the leadership of Mrs. Henry C. Boyer, has pledged its earnest co-operation in giving every possible aid to the families of the men in the service.

Mrs. Norris S. Barratt is chairman of the Service Star League, Mrs. Louis E. Page is secretary and Mrs. Barclay Henry is treas-urer. The vice chairmen include Mrs. Wil-liam Gray Warden, Mrs. John C. Norris, Mrs. B. Dobson Alternus and Mrs. William Clothler, who is the acting chairman of the overseas committee in place of Mrs. Walter Thomson, who is at present giving all her time and energy to the woman's com-mittee of the Liberty Loan.
