McKenty Pledges Aid of 1400 Eastern Penitentiary "Boys"

NO. SLACKERS THERE"
Prisoners Gave More Than $1 Each in Second Campaign

Prisoners of the Eastern Penitentiary, 2500 men, will do their "bit" in the third Liberty Loan campaign, which begins today.
Warden McKenty today paid tribute to the 1400 "guests" at Cherry Hill. No more is necessary, he said, as each man is more than ready to help. Unblinded by the fact that McKenty's untrained boys give the spirit his "boys" display in Liberty Loan work.

Office Boy Called in Draft; Six Feet Seven and a Half

Local Draft Board No. 42, sitting in the Sixty-fifth street and Woodland avenue police station, claims the distinction of having brought out the most prodigious prodigy of the season.
When it called Lee Johnston, negro, twenty-five years old, of 7113 Gray's avenue, it didn't expect much of Lee, because he is an office boy at Eddystone for an official at the munitions plant.

WAR CHIEFS IN SHAKE-UP

General Sir Henry Rawlinson (above) has been appointed commander of the Fifth Army of the British forces in France, succeeding General Sir Hugh Gough (below), who has been relieved of his command because of the reverses suffered during the first day's battle of the present German drive near St. Quentin.

The President's speech, as stated some time ago, will be a clear speech. It will seek to stimulate the nation and will point to the Administration realization that hundreds of thousands of men and resources must be poured into the struggle now in the name of making this western battle decisive.
The most definite answer to Teuton peace propaganda at this time is in the quickened war moves.
A draft of more than 100,000 men is planned following close on the induction of about 25,000 men into service. And, by July 1, it is proposed to have a total of about 400,000 new men called.

ADMIT "SLOWING UP" Semiofficial Berlin Press Now Offering More Excuses

London, April 4.—The artillery duel on the French part of the front has assumed great intensity, today's communique from Paris says. This news, taken in conjunction with Berlin's recent statement that French long-distance fire set Noyon Cathedral ablaze and wrought havoc in Laon, is taken here as an indication that Petain is the aggressor and is preparing, by artillery, to press ahead and regain ground relinquished in good order last week by the French at the southern end of the long Picardy line.
This may be a preliminary to a French counter-offensive to forestall the German renewal of driving, expected this week.
There has been no break in the lull on the British section of the battle line.
The British War Office in its announcement today reported only artillery activity at some points on the west Flanders front.
The big guns were active in the Menin and Passchendaele sectors, but there was no infantry activity of any importance. An enemy post in the Hebuterne sector was rushed.

New Drive This Week

Germany is expected to renew her offensive today or tomorrow. Military critics both of Paris and London today say in the heavy artillery firing reported along the Picardy front the Kaiser's preliminary move in another effort to smash forward to Amiens.
British and French headquarters officials are supremely confident. The last few days have permitted the Allies to bring their reserves up and place them where desired without interference. The enemy will find attempts to advance strongly opposed at every point, critics declared today, and belief was confidently expressed that at no place would the Germans make any material gain.
Some strategists believe the Germans will not be able to launch the expected drive before the expiration of a three-day interval. They are agreed on Amiens as the objective.

French Report

The French official report received here says:
Artillery duel north of Montdidier assumed great intensity last night.
Northwest of Rheims (in the Chemin-des-Dames sector, where American troops are training) in the Champagne and along the left bank of the Meuse French troops penetrated various enemy trenches and took prisoners.
East of Rheims, in the Avocourt Wood (northwest of Verdun) and north of St. Die German raids fell down.
Haig's Report
The British front continues quiet. Field Marshal Haig reported today. An enemy post in the neighborhood of Hebuterne (north of Albert) was rushed and a machine gun captured, he said.
A few prisoners were captured on other parts of the battle front. Elsewhere on the battle front, also in the Menin road and Passchendaele sectors (near Ypres, in
