More than 250 Germans have been arrested for failure to register in the enemy-occupied zone in February, and few of these have been interned, the Department of Justice announced.

PICK I. W. W. JURORS IN GROUPS OF FOUR

Right to Strike During War Will Be Defense—Cuspidors for Prisoners

Chicago, April 4. In the trial of more than 100 leaders and organizers of the Industrial Workers of the World accused of violating the espionage act counsel for the Government tendered to the defense four jurors after having exercised two of the six peremptory challenges. The defense announced that accepted jurors would be tendered back to the Government in groups of four. Grims of delight from the defendants greeted the appearance in the courtroom of sixty red, blue and green cuspidors, which were put into immediate use by the trial. The prisoners were brought in for the special use of the accused, declaring they should not be deprived of the right to chew tobacco during the trial. The prisoners were quiet and orderly throughout the afternoon proceedings.

In questioning the prospective jurors the Government laid special stress on the question of their sympathies in the war.

One peremptory challenge by the Government was in the case of Frank Martin, Chicago, who was questioned closely as to certain relatives who speak the German language.

That the question of the right to conduct strikes during war will form an important part of the defense was indicated by George F. Vanderveer, chief counsel for the I. W. W. In questioning Vanderveer:

"Would it take less evidence for you to return a verdict of guilty because the country is at war?" he asked one juror. "Do you feel that all strikes should be suspended during the war?"

Quintus already formed as to the character of members of the I. W. W. seemed the greatest stumbling block in selection of a jury. Edward McCready, of Elgin, Ill., formerly a manufacturer, was asked by Mr. Vanderveer:

"Would you be willing to be tried by
