

DAUGHTER OF FRANCE BAKES 800 LOAVES OF BREAD A DAY AND GETS LORRAINE CROSS

LITTLE FRENCH GIRL GETS MEDAL FOR BRAVE SERVICE

She Was the Youngest Daughter of France to Receive One, and It Didn't Have to Do With Dodging Shot and Shells—She Baked Her Way to Fame!

THERE is one little girl in France very proud. She was the youngest in that little, brave village of Corbeil to be decorated for serving her country.

When she stood there in the public square before all the neighbors in the village Madeleine Danau trembled a little as they pinned the Little Cross of Lorraine on her Sunday best dress.

Then the prefect read the letter of presentation from President Poincaré. "Accomp," he wrote, "this child, Madeleine Danau, who, while still a child, has proclaimed that the valiant little of the Dames-Sevres, through her own labor supporting for the inhabitants of the Commune of Exouville, the daily bread, has performed as patriotic a service and is as good a French woman as any one of her sisters of the Muses."

There is, of course, a moral to this little story that comes to us from France. Madeleine did not dream about soothing soldiers' brows. She rolled up her sleeves and made bread, which was the duty that lay under her nose. It was her duty that secured her more important. It is that duty which we should be proud to do.

To Make Pancakes and Apple Jelly

Dear Madam:—Will you please print a recipe for apple jelly? I have a recipe for apple and peach jam, but I would like to make apple jelly. Thank you very much. Sincerely yours, M. J. C.

As X-ocks is a Proprietary Article

As X-ocks is a proprietary article and only the makers of it know the recipe, I cannot tell you how it is made. I have a very good recipe for X-ocks which seems to have been made for just such times as these, when it is required to use more than white flour. It requires two cups of cornmeal and one cup of graham flour.

Hair Turns Gray at Fifteen

Dear Madam:—Kindly give me your opinion on my hair. One Saturday night I went out with a girl. I took her to a theatre and then after I had been there for some time, she said she was almost home to meet her brother. She said, "How about going to a restaurant?" We said, "All right," and went to the restaurant. The brother asked us what we had and ordered for the three of us. I should like to know where place it was to pay the bill!

Women's School of Horticulture

EDITORIAL FOR WOMEN BY A WOMAN

By ELIZABETH LEIGHTON LEE Director of the School of Horticulture for Women, Ambler, Pa.

PARTICULARLY fortunate at this time of national emergency is the woman who is able to turn her training to fill some national need. Perhaps foremost among this class stand the women of the country trained along agricultural and horticultural lines.

In America, however, it is only within comparatively recent years that this interest has become aroused to any great extent among the women and that horticulture has been recognized as a profession which offers rare opportunities.

The school has drawn its students from secondary schools and colleges in all parts of the United States and from Canada and it has sent its graduates forth into varied and interesting phases of the work.

SISTERHOOD OF WAR MOTHERS TO BE FORMED AT BIG MEETING IN STETSON AUDITORIUM

Every Woman With a Man in Service Is Invited to Attend April 12

Sweethearts, Sisters and Wives Will Also Gain Benefits by Becoming Members

Brother, courageous mothers, little broken-hearted mothers, rich and poor alike, who have the great bond of the little service flag between them are to be banded together into the great Sisterhood of War Mothers.

While the thoughts of every one have been bound up in the mother who the mother has been far to the background. The boy's patriotism has been praised and the mother behind the scenes has been taken for granted.

The Sisterhood of War Mothers, a happy organization of mothers, wives and sweethearts of our fighting men, will bring these women together in the spirit of the war, will strengthen the interest of the women in their life and conditions and will be a strong bond guard for the boys at camp.

How can the broken-hearted little mother sitting at home be expected to wait patiently for her soldier boy? How can the mother who has had to undertake the extra financial burden created by a son's departure be expected to thrill with delight when she sees the little old flag on the school-house?

The object of the course is to train the students for the present emergency as overseers of agricultural units and assistant workers in the community and agricultural associations.

PATRIOTISM INVOKED IN POTATO MARKETING

Farmers Urged to Get Their Product on Sale Before May 1

The call of Food Administrator Hains making the farmers of the State to market their potatoes before the first of May, coming as it does, as a patriotic appeal on the anniversary of the declaration of war with Germany a year ago today, is expected to insure instantaneous and hearty response.

As we enter upon the second year of the war with an organization virtually complete and a better understanding of the part of our people of our war duties and our responsibilities, we are confident of the co-operation that will insure the same degree of war support in food supply in Pennsylvania as in other natural resources and industrial output.

At the end of March there were more than 9,000,000 bushels of unseed potatoes in the State. Only a small portion, it is estimated, "can be used for seed. In order that there shall be no wastage of seed, the farmers should not be discouraged from planting a large potato crop next season, we must find a market for their surplus."
