The electric plants at Niacara Falls send power to numy towns and within Canada and western New York 1 auch instances, however, materspance to: the generators is unfinited and the great waste that up to the present time has been found unavoidable with extended lines of transmission has not been ansounts to hinder the diffusion of natural energy through the medium of wires.

The great waste of power, which increases with every mile covered by transmission cables, will be the most important problem for consideration in the plan to generate electrical energy in hoge plants at the coal mines in this State and "wire" It to the cities to eliminate the delay and expense of coal transport.

Science has almed validy for years to scep long-distance current in the cabice, insulation seems adequate. Yet a method may be found before long. Mean while the project for centralized generating stations, planted at the source of the coal supply, has a fine appeal to any active Imagination. It is significant that it has Government approval and support. A year ago such a plan would have met oppo wition from the railroads.

The German boasts go up. But the sulemarines keep on going down

Shipbailding plans bays been perfeeted for 10,000,000 tons of new shipplag on the ocean. It is expected that 270 steel ships will be completed thiyear and one shinyard, which will hunch its first ship on December 1, is planning to launch a new ship every day thereafter. There is no reason for believing that this plan will not be carried out. We have raised $9,000,000,000 for war purposes in the twelve months, a sum o vast that it cannot be conceived. More than one-half of this amount has been lent to the Allies and largely spent here for munitions of one kind or another. And we are planning to raise more billions in the confident knowledge that we have them to spend for war purposes But what has been done is only the beginning. It was known that we could not bring our full force into play in less than two years. The plans have been made, not to produce a great showing at once, but to have an army and ships and airplanes and guns and all the necessities ready by the spring of next year. It was physically impossible to do this sooner. From now on the momentum of preparation will gain in force, and as the months go by we shall begin to see greater results than those that have tounded men who have looked beneath the surface criticism of the past year into the actual achievements.

The nation is united as never before on the momentous issue of winning the war. Labor and capital are working tegether. Men of all trades and profeisions are agreed, and when we see what shall have been wrought in another twelve months we shall admit again that the days of miracles are not past.

The German Alliance is to dissolve. But the remaining dobris will be worth whiching to show the direction of currents
