

DOVE FOR PEACE MADE BY AUSTRIA

Official Documents Show That Premier Clemenceau Told Truth

PUBLISHED BY FRANCE Other Attempts to Begin Parleys at Kaiser's Behest Are Shown in Statement

Premier Clemenceau's denial of the truth of the assertion of Foreign Minister Cernin, that a conversation concerning peace had been held between Austria and France, was given confirmation in an official statement issued by the Government.

Premier Clemenceau, upon assuming the duties of president of the council, found that conversations had been entered into in Switzerland, upon Austria's initiative, between Count Reventat, a personal friend of Emperor Charles, and Commandant Armand, of the Second Bureau, French general staff, designated for that purpose by the French minister at that time.

"M. Clemenceau did not wish to assume the responsibility of interrupting conferences which had yielded no results, but which might furnish useful sources of information. Commandant Armand thus was allowed to continue his journey in Switzerland, upon the request of Count Reventat. Instructions were given M. Armand in the presence of his minister, M. Clemenceau, as follows: 'Listen and say nothing.'

"Count Reventat, becoming convinced that his attempt to bring about a German peace treaty with Austria, in order fully to characterize his mission, gave Commandant Armand a letter written in his own hand dated October 25, 1918, the first sentence of which reads:

"During the month of August, 1917, with a view to obtaining from the French Government a proposition to Austria, which might lead to peace and be of such a nature as to be susceptible of being adopted by Austria and presented to the German Government, conferences have been entered upon.

"Count Reventat, being himself the solicitor, acknowledged in the following terms: 'That the purpose of the mission was to obtain from the French Government propositions of peace, under cover of Austria, for transmission to Berlin.' "Such is the fact established by an authenticated document which Count Cernin has dared to refer to in the following terms: 'Clemenceau, shortly before the beginning of the offensive on the western front, had asked me whether I was ready to enter upon negotiations and upon what basis. In speaking thus he did not mean that the treaty with the opposite of truth, which in France is termed 'lying.'

"It is but natural that Premier Clemenceau should be unable to restrain his indignation when Count Cernin, justly anxious as to the final consequences of the offensive, represented the French Government as being for peace at the very moment when, with outmost sincerity, we were prepared for the infliction of a premature defeat upon the Central Empires.

"Again Begged for Parley "It would be too easy to recall to what extent Austria has endeavored to make Washington and London with solicitations for an alleged separate peace which had no other aim than to slip upon the neck of the Allies the treaty with the opposite of truth, which in France is termed 'lying.'

"The conferences lasted only a few minutes. Here again it was not only the Austrian Government, but also the Austrian Government, does not Count Cernin remember an attempt of the sort made in Paris and Vienna several months before the offensive? "Count Reventat's personal account of much higher rank? There again, as in the present case, unauthentic, but much more significant, proof exists."

Daniels's Agents Here to Rid City of Vice

Police Protection Sought "Virtually substantiating the Mayor's charge that the police are in contact with politicians, Tom Walsh, of Captain Soder's staff, who investigated the gambling house of 'Reddy Jack' Melnikoff, said today: 'As a matter of fact, the Thirteenth Ward is a hotbed of the people of the ward to be protecting them.'

Melnikoff, who today begins his three-year sentence yesterday imposed after the raid on his establishment by detectives, has been a widely known police protected agent for many years and has protected against the police for a long time, it is said.

The politician alluded to in the report made by Walsh is Clarence Gibbons, in his crusades, charged with protecting disreputable places.

It is said to be employed in the Adams Express and Measures and to be of the political faith of Congressman John H. K. Scott.

This report by detectives who investigated resorts here in the past are said to form the basis of Mayor Smith's charge of political protection for criminals.

Using an axe on disorderly resorts, which was advocated by Mayor Smith yesterday, as a method of cleaning up the city, it would only create a regular scene and accomplish little, but necessary to use an axe. Have policemen go to these places, knock on the door and tell the people to get out. The policemen must have the support of their superiors and above all the man higher up must be eliminated."

ALLIED LEADERS CONFIDENT FOES HAVE MET STONE WALL IN WEST

With the French Army in France, April 6, General Foch has given out this statement on the German offensive: 'All is going well. Look at the small advances made by the boches, to call them by their real name. It is now clearly evident that the great tidal wave of the German army has been broken on the shore, evidently because it met an obstacle. Now they are against an embankment and completely stopped.

"The future will show the full measure of our success. We are going to try to do better and to get the upper hand of the boches. I cannot say what will happen, but all is going well."

Washington, April 6. President Wilson has received this greeting from King George of England in the occasion of the anniversary of the entry of the United States into the war: "The gallant deeds of Americans on land and sea have already indicated to the enemy that his hope is vain. Every day that passes, as American troops pour in ever-increasing numbers into France, diminishes the chances of his success.

"The American people may rest assured that the British Empire, now tried by nearly four years of war, will cheerfully make yet further sacrifices. The thought that the United States under your leadership, is with us heart and soul emboldens us in the determination, with God's help, finally to destroy the designs of the enemy and to re-establish on the earth the rule of right and justice.

"GEORGE R. L." The British Ambassador, Lord Reading, has transmitted through the press to the women of the United States the following message from the dowager Queen of Great Britain: "As president of the British Red Cross Society, I wish to send to the women of our great ally, the United States of America, a message of greeting upon the first anniversary of America's entry into the war. It is my earnest prayer that God in His merciful providence may guide and aid our righteous cause.

HAG'S COUNTER-ATTACKS STRENGTHEN SOMME FRONT

Continued from Page One of Demuin and nine miles southeast of Amiens, there was local fighting yesterday afternoon. We improved our positions in counter-attacks.

German Report Ninety thousand prisoners and more than 1300 guns have been captured by the Germans in their offensive on the western front up to the present, says a German official communication.

The enemy's object is to get astride of the railway south of Amiens. So far he has failed and, considering the large forces employed by him, the results cannot be considered as encouraging to the enemy. At the same time, the British position covering Amiens is at no great distance from the town. Thus any loss of ground at this point must be regarded as serious.

No Austrian or Bulgarian troops are engaged on the western front, but an examination of shell fuses shows that a few Austrian guns are being used. It is known that some German troops were brought from Salonica, which may have given rise to the report that Bulgarians and Austrians are fighting in France.

Among the fourteen German divisions believed to have been engaged were some of the best corps, including the First Prussian Guard, commanded by Prince Eitel Friedrich, and two other guard divisions.

Regarding the fighting the Reuters correspondent says: "After a heavy bombardment of our lines from a great concentration of his mobile artillery, the enemy infantry attacked our positions yesterday. The usual principle of attack, at the point, near Villers-Bréteuil, where the British retired to new and strong positions, and only three miles from the strategically valuable Paris-Amiens-Calais Railroad.

500,000 ITALIANS IN FRANCE; PART OF GENERAL FOCH'S RESERVE

The reserve army of the Allies, which the supreme war council at Versailles decided to establish, is composed of units from all the Allied nations, it is learned on high authority.

In addition to the reserves of the British and French armies, this third army, composed of reserves entirely, is at the disposal of General Foch, the commander-in-chief of the Allied forces in France.

There is reason to believe that the largest contingents of the reserve army have been furnished by France, Britain and Italy, and that the Italian contingents have already arrived in France, although the destinations of this army's component parts and the bases provided for it have not been made known.

Likewise the employment to be provided for the reserve army is secret, although it is believed that it will be fought in the counter-offensive being prepared by General Foch. That this is probable is indicated by information obtained from French sources today to the effect that Italian battalions are co-operating with the Allied armies in France and Flanders, and will be used wherever they are needed.

In military circles great importance was attached to the news that the Allied reserve army, composed of units from all the Allied nations, was forming. It could not be learned whether the formation of this army would affect the plans of the United States for bringing American contingents to the front in France, but it was thought probable that the American plan would not be changed, as Italy was able to contribute immediately in very large numbers to the new army.

It was estimated that if the necessary supplies, including 1,000,000 soldiers to France, having more troops than any other nation, which has even possessed equipment for, and it was regarded as probable that in the neighborhood of 500,000 Italian soldiers, all trained and equipped, have been already moved or are moving to France.

Allied reserves, the experts were unable to predict the course of events, but they did say that the counter-offensive against the Germans will be fought.

France and England have been gathering their reserve strength judiciously, and this reserve will be used only when it is sufficient to secure a large enough to hurl back the German.

The latter is a good question here. Some authorities say that the Allies have waited too long to make an effort, some counter-offensive, others, relying on the ability and strategy of General Foch, declare that he has some tactics in mind which will surprise the world.

In any case, French American strength is badly needed and is being added to the struggle as fast as it is humanly possible to do it, authorities declare.
