The British struck back hard against the Germans in successful counter-attacks on the northern end of Messines Ridge last night, but were forced to withdraw slightly east of Ypres, the War Office reported today. The counter-blows of the British were centered in the sector of Wytschaete, where the Germans had scored an advance in their frontal attacks against Vimy Ridge on Tuesday. The British are again in complete possession of the town of Meteren,

In consequence of the enemy pressure in the center along the Lys British troops have been forced to resire from advanced positions on the northern flank east of Ypres. Haig reported the retirement was deliberate and without interference and straightened the line. This indicates the first tightening of the British lines for the defense of Ypres itself.

The fighting on the Flanders front has spread northward to the Ypres salient and the entire northern half of the new German wedge is the scene of bloody combats, according to Field Marshal Haig.

Haig's Report

The field marshal reported as fol-

East of Ypres, in consequence of the enemy progress along the Lys, British troops holding forward positions were withdrawn to a new line, deliberately and without interference from the enemy. South of Arras, opposite Boylles

Advancing enemy parties were caught under our fire east of Ypres vesterday afternoon at our old positions and were destroyed.

In Meteren the situation also was restored. The village is ours. South of the Somme hostile artillery fire increased considerably this morning.

At Bailleul a body of German infantry in close formation was caught under order fire at close range and suffered heavy casualties. We also took a few prisoners.

Repeated hostile attacks north of Bailleul yesterday afternoon and evening were repulsed with loss to the enemy. The enemy endeavored to de-
