

DRIPPS AND GRAMMER FOR MORE POLICE PAY

Former Safety Head and Interchurch Federation Leader Approve Editorial Proposal

Robert D. Driggs, former Director of the Department of Public Safety, and Dr. Carl E. Grammer, head of the Interchurch Federation, which is an active part in the activities of Philadelphia, are understood, as stated out by the Evening Public Ledger, that they advocated a $5 a day raise of pay.

Dr. Driggs said his personal contact with him in the clearest manner possible. "My experience as Director of the Department of Public Safety," he said, "has made me very clearly that the police of Philadelphia are very much underpaid. I instituted an investigation which showed that hardly any other large city in the country paid its police as little as Philadelphia.

"And yet it is quite remarkable that even under this condition the city has been able to keep a large number of good character on its police force, notwithstanding the low income at the head of the line.

"The system is bad, but the personnel is far better than could ordinarily be expected under these conditions. Of course, there are men on the force who should not be there, but I must say that there are large numbers of men who conscientiously try to do their duty, and they are held regardless of the low pay.

"I am practical enough, however, to realize that it is a long time to ask a body of men. Until the city legislators do some way of increasing the city's revenues it will be a hard thing to get these much-needed increases through.

"Nevertheless, this is no reason why Councils should not try to find some way of making the policemen's pay adequate. Dr. Grammer said he always had concluded that the police should be adequately paid.

"I would not say at this time," he said, "that the figure should be set as high as $5 a day, but it should be adequate to keep the men. The present figure is too low to keep a man and his family and to consider the prices of labor being paid all about us. All transactions should be taken away from the police and the giving of adequate pay should help them to keep their hands clean of graft.

FALLS DEAD OF GRIEF FOR SOLDIER HUSBAND

Wife of Philadelphia Physician, Now in France, Expires in New York

Grief over the absence of her husband, Lieutenant Edwin K. Moore, formerly a practicing physician in this city, who left for France last August with the Harvard medical unit, is believed to have caused the death of his wife, Mrs. Moore, who fell dead at her desk in a stock broker's office in New York. Mrs. Moore, who fell at her desk in a stock broker's office in New York, was formerly an actress.

When Doctor Moore left for France Mrs. Moore rented her home, at 3501 Lancaster street, and went to New York to live with a sister. She received letters from her husband frequently, one of them telling her he had been decorated with the French cross of war. Two days ago she received a letter enclosing a small photograph and seemed intensely happy.

JERSEY DAIRY GOODS WAITING FOR SHIPPING

With Transportation to Allies Delayed, Home Use of Milk Urged

Trenton, N. J., April 22.—New Jersey dairymen today are overwhelmed with a stock of cheese, condensed milk and cream which cannot be shipped to the allies in France because of lack of transportation facilities. This report was given out today by the Bureau of Markets of the State Department of Agriculture.

It is stated that several months ago the food administration asked that the use of milk and butter be restricted together with beef, pork, wheat and sugar, and the response from the people was greater than was anticipated. Now, with transportation problems preventing the sending across the ocean of food and with the absolute assurance from all food authorities that milk and butter are among the very cheapest of foods, the food administration urges the use of milk.

The bulletin says that the women of New Jersey are asking the government to buy a large quantity of milk and butter for home use. It is stated that the women of New Jersey are asking the government to buy a large quantity of milk and butter for home use.
