

Evening Public Ledger

Philadelphia, Tuesday, April 23, 1918

PICTURESQUE ECHOES OF WAR AND THE GRIM REALITY ARE CONTRASTED BY THE CAMERA'S EYE

YOU ARE CHALLENGED by this grizzled but valiant Civil War veteran to "do your bit" in helping him hang the Kaiser's pet dachshund to the gallows specially erected for the purpose at the Penn Square Postoffice. The price is as many Liberty Bonds as you can buy from this doughty G. A. R. veteran, George Good.

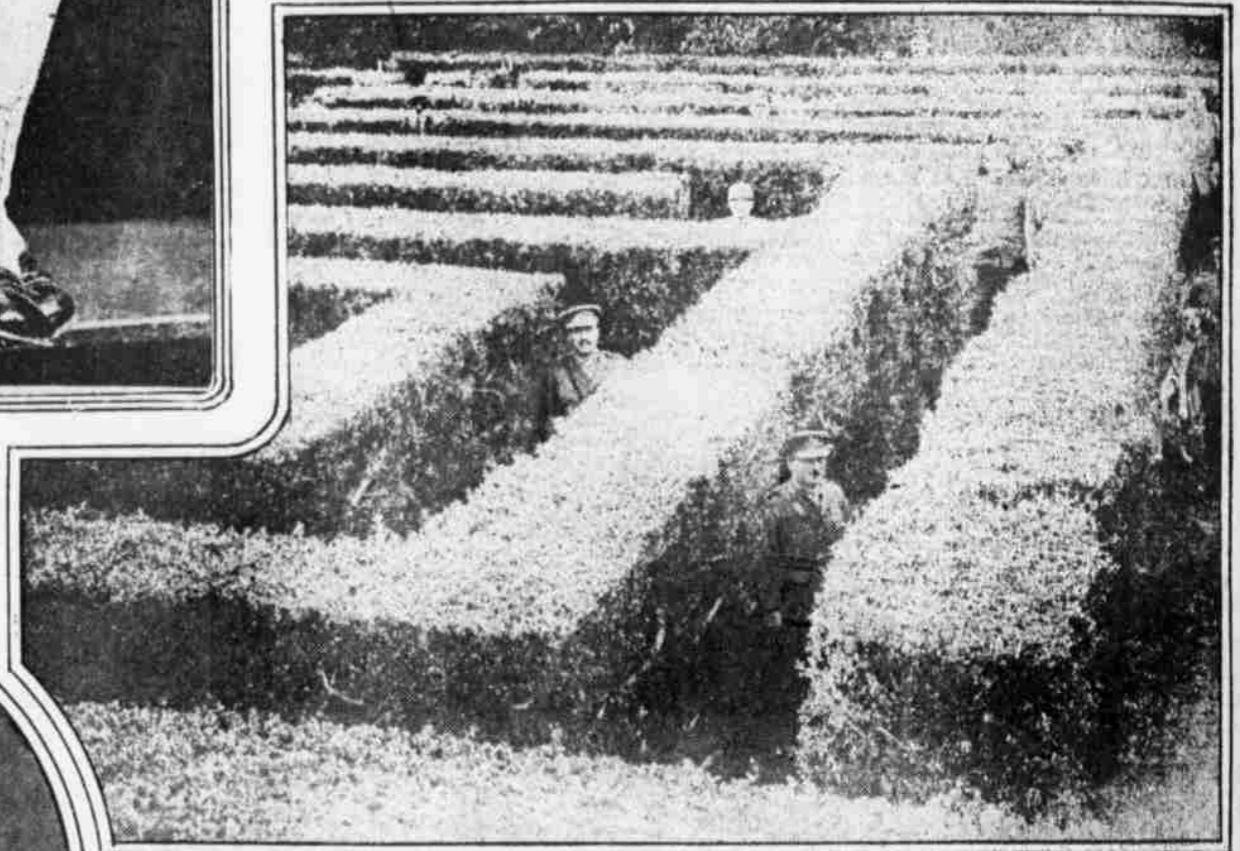

AN ENERGETIC LITTLE RED CROSS WORKER is Marie C. Burchill, of 54 North Felton street, who knits with veteran ease, and also marched sturdily at the head of the Red Cross columns in the Liberty Loan parade on Saturday.

HEROIC MEASURES ARE BEING ADOPTED to protect the precious monuments of Paris against bombardment by the German long-range gun. French soldiers are placing sandbags around everything, from great churches to delicate marble columns. French Pictorial Service, W. N. C.

THROUGH LONDON TO THE FIGHTING FRONT are marching the sturdy nephews of Uncle Sam by thousands and tens of thousands these days. The above scene has become a commonplace in the British capital as the "boys from the States" stretch their legs after their voyage across the Atlantic. The system of pack carrying that has been adopted is shown. Western Newspaper Union.

A VERITABLE "MOORISH MYSTIC MAZE," such as used to delight amusement-park visitors, is this ingenious bit of work by a gardener in Italy, which has thoroughly baffled the British officers who have wandered into it. Indeed, they are finding it even more puzzling than the trenches, which it superficially resembles. British Official Photo, Underwood & Underwood.

THE BRITISH COMMANDER ON the Flanders front is General Herbert O. C. Plumer, who has been brought back from Italy.

PACKING VEGETABLE PLANTS for farmers in the reconquered portion of France engages the attention of many workers at the National Nurseries at Versailles. International Film Service.

JOCK'S IRREPRESSIBLE SENSE OF HUMOR bubbles to the surface even when he is seriously wounded. These Highland laddies are happy, though wounded, because they have each bagged a German. International Film Service.

AFTER BIGGER LAURELS, Francis J. Heney, recent investigator of the Meat Trust for the Government, is out as gubernatorial candidate in California.

A NEW TYPE OF FOOTBRIDGE is being employed by French engineers in the Somme district. Cork floats replace the old-time cumbersome pontoons, and troop movement is vastly facilitated. International Film Service.

ALTHOUGH "SMILING DOUG" FAIRBANKS and his wife have separated "by mutual consent," no hint of the storm alleged to have shaken the movie star's domestic bliss is discoverable in this photograph, taken a short time ago. International Film Service.

MILLIONS OF PERSONS HAVE SEEN HIM PERFORM, yet not one has seen his face. This is the unique record of Arthur Hill, who makes a very intelligent and amusing donkey, indeed, in the George M. Cohan Revue, at the Forrest, and who has spent his life as an animal actor.