Coppright, 1818, by Public Ledger Company I told you that in Furnes we nursed the French. That remark needs qualifying. Not only did we nurse the French pollu. But among them were representatives from the French colonies, black, brown and yellowmen. Great black, wooly-haired Senegalese from East Africa, savages and cannibals las stretched out on our beds, or oftener on the floors, for we were overflowing. These poor fellows could not even speak French, and they suffered bitterly from the cold. As we passed them they would hold up hig bandaged hands, walling. "Oh. Madame, on! is: is! is! is." There were also Turcos with red ferzes and hagsy trousers zonaves with cutaway jackets. Algerians and Arab-Spahis with peculiar bowl-shaped turbans. EVAN WILLIAMS IN RECITAL COLD MEMORIES FLEE WITH CIRCUS COMING

> Barnum & Bailey Will Chase Winter Gloom Off Map Here Monday

Evan Williama's annual sprine recital is one of the season's treats to a very large citentels of music lovers. They were out last hight to hear one of his excellently constructed and beautifully sung programs in Withermoon Hall. The tenor was in exceptional voice, his tone being sweet pure and affective and his diction se clear cut as to make every word of every lyric understandable.

In the past Mr. Williams has often given a straightaway program of tighter songs and ballads. This year, when the darkling spell of strange and traigle be sees gioon the world, he tried to reliev some of the depression in inclusion of munibers that would contrast sharply Coal raids of heatless days, chill winds of a hard winter and dripping caves of a bankward spring will be forgotten next Monday, for Barnum and Balley's circus is coming to Hunting Park avenue and
