

ARTICLES OF UTILITY
Clocks - Watches - Umbrellas Glass - China - Mahogany Silver - Silver Platedware

Wedding Gifts
or for the home

TO DISCUSS STREET

$\qquad$

CLERGYMEN TAKE PART OF MRS. JANE D. RIPPIN
py Wartime Commission of Ince that Mac poblems encouteru in attempting

$\qquad$

$\qquad$

The Noiseless

Parallels the Quiet Of the Pencil
象
$T_{\text {with penci and }}^{\text {HIR paper and yhey doy do not }}$ disturb you. But let even a single type. writer interrupt the quiet of the seene and your whole train of thought runs behind schedulue. specifications, Clisk-c-likk $k$ click- and the thought is gone. You try to fix your mind on an important interviel.
click-and rou begin again.
The Noiseless Typewriter gives you all the advantages of the noisy typewriter, with none of its disadvantages. It takes the none of its disadvantages. It takes the handicap off all manner of thinking, and raises office efficiency to the concentration point.
touch or anin of this without sacrinicing speed, touch or tine quality of work. The Noiseless is the full development of the typewriter Write, call or telephone for a demonstration.

WRITE FOR BOOKLET
"THE TYPEHZMTER PLCS" To NOHSELESS

TYPEWRITER

The two indispensables of business-

It isn't enough to say that dictating to The Ediphone is as simple as talking to the telephone.
It's simpler.

the genuine OJhe Ediphone

The telephone is indispensable. You know that. But what do you do when you telephone? Even if you have a central in your own office. You reach for the receiver on the telephone. You put it to your ear. You wait for your operator to answer. You give her the number or the name. You hang up the receiver, and go on with your work.
Then when you get well into it, the telephone rings, you put the receiver to your ear, find out who it is, and start in with your conversation. That's simple enough.
But here's something simpler: Take a look at yourself when you dictate to The Ediphone. The minute an idea strikes you, or the minute you have read a line from a correspondent's letter, you lift the mouthpiece, press the button and talk.
That's all there is. There isn't any more.
There they are - the telephone and The Ediphone -the two indispensables of business.
You have the telephone. You need The Ediphone.

