SCHOOL DAYS By DWIG

Them was the happy days

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

I wish we saw each other With understanding eyes. I know I'm more important Than people realize.

Honest He—I swear you are the first woman I have ever proposed to outside the rest were all girls—Panther.

BROAD AN' CHESTNUT

Etymology Up-to-Date

First Aviator—Yes indeed, I think it's a unique town. Second Aviator—Unique being derived from the Latin "unicus" (only) and "equus" (horse).

Oh me—oh my—I'm glad to be back here in this old crowd. The Old Place never looked so good. She surely makes me proud. You wonder how long I've been gone, well I'm ashamed to say. In hours, twenty-four, dear friends, exactly just one day.

ILLUSTRATED WAR PHRASES By FONTAINE FOX

"THE MOVEMENT WAS NOT DISCOVERED BY THE ENEMY UNTIL THE NEXT DAY"

THE GUMPS—Why, to Be Sure!

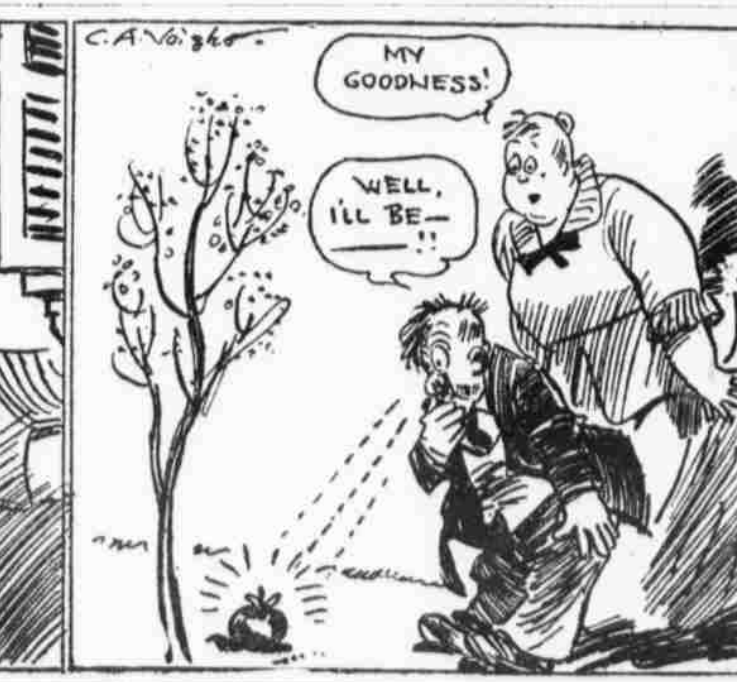

The Young Lady Across the Way

The young lady across the way says her father feels that this is no time for partisanship and frequently says that perhaps President Wilson is doing as well as any Democrat can.

PETEY—Really, It's Hard to Believe

"CAMOUFLAGE" By BUNNY

- We hear a lot of camouflage. It is an art long known. The meaning here of camouflage is very plainly shown.
- A lion's skin is camouflage. When covering up an ass.
- The one-eyed man tries camouflage. With other eye of glass.
- An empty purse is camouflage. When it looks fat with dough.
- And wigs are always camouflage. When worn in bald-head row.
- Just loads of teeth are camouflage. Each dentist makes his show.
- And painted cheeks are camouflage.
- Byou wakers and dyed hair.
- Tight corsets, too, are camouflage. For they are hiding fat.
- All fakes are really camouflage. Let's let it go at that. For what's the use, my camouflage. May even not be read.
