BULL MARKET AFTERMATH OF LIBERTY LOAN SUCCESS: EQUIPMENTS HOLD INTEREST

Brokers Look for Announcement by Railroad Administration With Decided Effect Upon Rail Stocks. Gossip of the Street

THOSE who predicted a bull market at the close of the Liberty Loan campaign were right. The whole list virtually moved up yesterday. A number of reasons were given for this on the Street.

The war news, all in favor of the Allies; the reported peace offers from Germany, the enthusiasm over the successful ending of the Liberty Loan, all had a share in the result. But there was a persistent rumor that an important announcement would very soon be made by the railroad administration in reference to rates which would have a most decided effect on railroad securities. Some brokers said that an inkling of what is going to happen must have gone out, and that this was the reason for the unusual strength in rails all day yesterday. It was noticed that one large New York house was very active in the rail market, and this lent some color to the rumor.

It was not believed that the proposed German peace was anything but a feeler, and it had in itself no effect on prices except so far as it showed the state of mind which is working behind the German front, and that the success of the drive is no longer spoken of in the bombastic manner which had become so common.

The bond and investment houses have not yet fully rested up from the strenuous exertions during the Liberty Loan campaign. They are waiting to get their bearings while they are overcoming "that tired feeling" incident to hard work and the weather. Many of the larger concerns are still doing a nice business.

Equipments Hold Investors' Interest

The attention of investors is likely to be centered for some time to come on the movements of equipment stocks. Never before have orders for equipment of railroads been handed out on such a magnificent scale as has been done recently by the Government. While it is true that the profits on these orders are to be limited to 5 per cent, presumably on the total, it is worth while to pause for a little and figure some of them out. In the two best remembered instances where an order for 1025 locomotives was shared between the Baldwin Locomotive Company and the American Locomotive Company at a cost to the Government of about $60,000,000, assuming that the profits will be 5 per cent on this total the Baldwin Company would get for its 450 locomotives a profit of $1,320,000, which is more than 6 per cent on its $20,000,000 common stock, and the American Locomotive Company, on the same basis, would be entitled to a profit of $1.680,000 on its 575 locomotives. This is more than 6 per cent on its $25,000,000 of common stock. A recent interview with Alba B. Johnson, president of the Baldwin Company, gave an idea of the rate at which that concern was turning out locomotives, and it is no figure of speech to say that it could turn out the full order in a few months if necessary, and these profits only apply to a part of its operations for the year. It is therefore reasonable to assume that equipment stocks are likely to receive much attention for some time to come.

War Brought Country's Bankers Together

It was inevitable that the Federal Reserve system should be a potent means toward the solidification of banking interests all over the country and the beginning of an era of good fellowship among the bankers, while at the same time it eliminated that fear of competition and narrow jeal-ousy, which, before the introduction of the system, was so prevalent, But it remained for the war and the three Liberty Loan campaigns to weld all these benefits in a way that no other occasion could have done. E. J. Galien, secretary of the New York State Bankers' Association, said

"The war has brought the country's bankers together as nothing else could possibly have done. The broadening effects of this close association and co-operative spirit will be of lasting benefit and will work harmony and progress in the battle of peace which will follow victory in

On the subject of trade acceptances Mr. Gallen says:

One of the greatest new forces in finance is the rapid growth of the use of trade acceptances by business corporations and firms, making what was formerly a large volume of book accounts available as live paper, discountable at a preferred rate by the holding banks with the Federal Reserve banks."

In connection with the extended use of the trade acceptance as a commercial medium of exchange, a very important step has been taken by the Legislature of New York State which could be profitably copied by the State of Pennsylvania. It is the granting of power to savings banks to purchase acceptances under certain easy conditions. On this subject Mr. Galien remarks:

"Another matter of considerable moment to New York State bankers particularly is the power granted at the last session of the Legislature to savings banks to purchase acceptances. Formerly the savings banks were dependent on the large banks and trust companies for help to get currency in times of stress, and were compelled to sacrifice bonds which they had bought for permanent investment. By availing themselves of this new power, the savings banks, by purchasing acceptances, will have liquid paper which they can sell to the Federal Reserve Bank for currency, and thus relieve the banks and trust companies, on which they formerly depended, from carrying large currency reserves for such possi-

Better Prices in Prospect on Industrials

A prominent investment banker said yesterday, when his opinion was asked as to the outlook, that he looked for better prices on good industrials and also on coppers. Marine preferred, he said, should appeal to investors at present; also all good steels and American Beet Sugar, Haskell, Anaconda and American Car and Foundry. While he took little stock in the peace talk, he said he believed the effect on the market was very favorable.

The statement of Chairman Simmons, of the Senate Finance Committee, in which he referred to the spiendid condition of the nation financially and every other way and his remark that no new tax measures would be introduced during the present session, had a very favorable effect on the Street and was no small factor in the creation of the optimistic feeling which was general over the whole financial district.

Low Quotations for Liberty 4s

There is considerable discussion, not to say uneasiness, in some quarters at the very low quotations for the Liberty 4s and all sorts of reasons are advanced as to why they are selling around 96,

One of the most plausible reasons is that 96.22 is the price which these nds should bring on a 4% basis so as to equalize the income with the Liberty 414s. When this is taken into consideration, namely, that the two issues are selling virtually on a parity, there is no occasion for

A well-known banker, speaking on this subject yesterday, remarked that he believed that comparatively few of the 4s will be exchanged for the 414s through a feeling of patriotism. There are many people who would rather the Government should get the benefit of that one-quarter of 1 per cent interest than that they should and therefore will not make

Look for Increased Stock Activity

In giving their opinions yesterday on market conditions E. B. Smith

"The end of the Liberty Loan campaign, with an oversubscription of this issue, is favorable to our security markets and leaves financial interests free to devote themselves to normal business. It is thought that derate increase of activity in the stock market may now be expected and that prices of stocks will be directly influenced by develop nents abroad which are now rather more favorable." West & Co. said:

The resumption of the German drive has resulted in some reaction in prices, but no liquidation of moment has occurred, rather a contraction in activity. There appears to be the same underlying feeling of confidence in the outcome as heretofore, and there is more of a disposition to buy stocks on weak spots than there is to sell."

putting forward a hold front, said, "Hold on a minute, Mr. Burroughs. Listen to this." He took out his notebook and read back all the bad language the old cabby had let fly.

Burroughs was so astonished that he "Now. Mr. Burroughs." said Montague briskyly. "you cannot teach me anything about swearing. I knew more had language than you dreamed of, but I can teach you something about jam if you will let me. Now I have thought things over since I saw you last and I hope I am a bit bigger man than I was then. I want you to put on your hat and come out and let me treat you. "Good Lord!" gasped Burroughs. "What's come over you."

"What's come over you?"
"I don't know," Montague replied. "guess it's growing pains."
