

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Ogontz Schoolgirls to Give Play in Connection With Abington Hospital Fete—Play May 20, Fete June 5.
Nancy Wynne Tells About Jamie

THE plans for Vanity Fair are going on apace, I can tell you. And what might Vanity Fair be, say you?
Why, it's the out-of-doors fete that the women who are interested in the Abington Hospital are getting up to add an isolation ward to the fine building they have there.
Having decided to call the fete "Vanity Fair," the committee will carry out the idea all the way through and plans are complete with quaint and characteristic reminders of Thackeray's masterpiece. There will be a Becky Sharp shop, Petticoat Lane and Piccadilly Circus, and every other thing that goes to make a successful out-of-doors affair will be an added attraction.
In connection with the fete the girls of Ogontz School are getting up a play to be given out of doors, with the woods and hills as a background, on May 20, and the proceeds will go into the fete of June 5.
The Ogontz girls want to contribute a bed to the new ward and intend to keep up the contributions for its maintenance each year.
The play is to be "Jeanne d'Arc" and there will be horses in the staging—in fact, it will be altogether charming and unusual.
To return to the fete, General Waller has promised to contribute the Marine Band and Mrs. Stotsbury will donate a booth to represent the Navy Auxiliary of the Red Cross. A table of fancy articles will be under the management of Mrs. Daniel B. Wentz and a number of aides, while everything useful will be sold by Mrs. John Gilbert, Mrs. Robert Sewell and Mrs. J. Conyngham Stevens. A rummage sale of large proportions is being arranged by Mrs. Harlow Voorhees and Mrs. Voorhees Drayton, and a fashion show, where living models will portray the latest styles, will be under the management of Mrs. Spencer K. Mulford, Jr. Flowers, fresh fruit, butter, eggs and vegetables will be contributed from many of the neighboring estates. Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton will supply some new moving-picture films for the occasion and will contribute the booth for light refreshments, including ice cream, lemonade and tea. Mrs. Wharton Sinkler, Jr., has donated four silver cups to be given as prizes, while Mrs. John Gribbel will loan for exhibition her collection of butterflies, which contains many of the finest specimens in the country.

DID I not tell you that Margaret Smith and Tommy Hart would be getting married soon? Well, it was true, and they will plight their troth next Wednesday at St. Mark's Church and, in fact, I understand there will be bridesmaids and pretty fixings, though the reception will be very small on account of Mrs. Adams's mourning and, too, the wartime. Isn't it true how the war affects everything? For if the reasons of mourning did not exist no one would think of having a big wedding reception these days. It would be bad taste! But there is no reason why the church part should not be pretty, and the little bride, especially if she is young, should surely have attendants, don't you think?
Margaret is very good looking, tall and dark and very brilliant coloring. And as for Tommy—well, he's a peach! What more can I say.

JAMIE'S big sister was getting ready to marry a large and penny-full navy lieutenant. Jamie loved that navy lieutenant for obvious reasons and was very anxious to see him again, for he had been away on duty for several months. The day got nearer and nearer and the house got spicker and spanner in readiness for the reception. Jamie was fitted out with a whole new suit and hat and still the new brother-in-law didn't appear. He wasn't supposed to come until two days before the wedding, but Jamie didn't know that. Finally he gave up worrying and just sat back to wait until something happened, because, as she explained, talking it over with his mother, "Well, anyhow, mother, I suppose sister'll get married whether he comes or not, won't she?"
NANCY WYNNE.

Mrs. Joseph N. Few, Jr., at Bryn Mawr.
Mrs. Louis B. Fortner, of Jenkintown, has returned from Atlantic City.
In order to raise funds to help carry on the work that is being done by the Jewish Consumptive Institute, 406 Wharton street, the auxiliary of the institute is making final arrangements for its second annual May Day, to be held on Wednesday evening, May 15, in the Moose Auditorium, 1314 North Broad street.
Mrs. J. William White has leased Mr. R. Stockton White's home at Narberth and will move in about June 1.
Lieutenant Herbert Jenness and Mrs. Jenness, of Ilys Beach, N. H., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Earl Putnam, Jr., at Radnor.
Mrs. Joshua A. Pearson, of Price street, Germantown, has as her guest for the week her niece, Mrs. Guy Reese, of Baltimore. Mrs. Pearson will open her cottage in Cape May next week for the season.
Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. White, Jr. have taken a house at Narberth for the summer.
The marriage of Miss Helen de L. Nash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar S. Nash, of Wynonette, to Mr. Robert H. McCracken, of West Philadelphia, in Calvary Presbyterian Church, will take place on Saturday, May 18, at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Beck, of Wynonette, will give a dance for the bride at their home on Friday evening, May 17. Miss Evelyn McCracken will be maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Helen S. Shepherd, of Cambridge, Mass.; Miss Julia de L. Beck, Miss Katherine K. Dietrick and Miss Dorothy Chestnut, of Ridley Park. The flower girl will be Miss Mary Elizabeth Nash. The best man will be Mr. Frank G. Paxton, of Chester. The ushers will be Mr. William H. McCracken, brother of the bridegroom; Mr. Samuel Stewart, Mr. Stanley E. Daut, Mr. Samuel T. Lambert, Mr. James Copley, of Altoona; Mr. Basil E. Alton, of Pittsburgh, and Mr. John W. Shaw, of Chester. The ring bearer will be Master George Dyer Beck.
Mrs. James R. Turner and Miss Elizabeth Turner, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., are visiting Mrs. R. P. Nicholson in Jenkintown.
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carnworth, of Greenwood avenue, Jenkintown, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son.
Mrs. William Troost will entertain at luncheon and cards tomorrow. Her guests will include Mrs. Martha Keon, Mrs. Oscar Noll, Mrs. A. Burbaum, Mrs. Charles Bricker, Mrs. Lillian Ball and Mrs. E. G. Harkness.
Mrs. William Hayward, 117 Lindsay avenue, Bryn Mawr, will entertain the members of the "Girls' Naval Club" on Friday, May 31, at her home. The annual reunion of the class will be held on Saturday afternoon, May 18, at 1 o'clock at Hamilton Court. The bride will be in charge of Miss Mabel Cannon, 1729 South Sixteenth street.
Mr. and Mrs. David Madden, of 2445 North Eighth street, entertained at dinner on Monday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Shaw, who are returning from Europe. Mrs. Madden was the guest of honor. The guests included Mrs. Robert W. Torrey, of Frankford.
CHAUFFEURETTE AT OUR DOOR
"Home, Jane" Will Soon Be Middy's Direction to Her Auto Driver
Watch your step!
The chauffeuette has arrived in Philadelphia.
The security of men has led the manager of a large garage in the vicinity of Twenty-third and Walnut streets to issue the following advertisement in a morning paper:
"WANTED—Young women to qualify as operators of electrical passenger automobiles; good opportunity."
The manager of the garage has a chauffeuette?
Of the numerous applicants for the position five were accepted. No age limit was set and the girls were not required to know what an automobile looks like.
They will be thoroughly instructed in the gentle art of driving a machine. Upon the completion of their course they will drive to his house, take her for a spin and return to the garage to continue their work.
It will then be "Home, Jane," instead of "Home, James."

ALL ASKED TO HELP WITH FETE CHAMPETRE THIS MONTH
Sisters of Mercy Need Funds to Equip Misericordiac Hospital for Government
Men and women of all denominations are asked to co-operate with the Sisters of Mercy in equipping and equipping the Misericordiac Hospital, which has already been accepted by the Government. The sisters hope their many friends will help them so that they may open the hospital early next month. The annual Fete Champetre to be given on the grounds of the convent at Bryn Mawr will open on Memorial Day, Thursday, May 30, and will continue on Friday and Saturday, May 31 and June 1. At the last meeting of the executive committee a novel plan, worked out by Monsignor Crane, was the establishing of a trust fund for the hospital. A drive for $100,000 was immediately started. Already the responses have been most encouraging.
Mrs. M. E. H. McCahan is chairman of the executive committee of the Fete Champetre; Mrs. A. N. Burke, vice chairman; Mrs. A. A. Hirst, Mrs. N. P. Quinn, Mrs. J. M. Quennell, Mrs. John C. Sheehan, Mrs. James M. Shively, Mrs. Laura Blackburne and Miss S. Moore. This committee has promised many interesting novelties and innovations. "Maids of Mirth," an esthetic dance, to be given each day at twilight on the beautiful lawn surrounding the convent, will be one of the many attractions of the fete.

SOLD JEWELS TO BUY BIBLES FOR SAILORS

Several Hundred of Them Invited to Performance of "The Play Shop"
The annual "kids-to-the-country" campaign has begun at the University of Pennsylvania at Weighman Hall Friday evening. Several hundred sailors have been invited to attend and following the performance of the thirty-piece band of the sailors' training camp at the navy yard will furnish music for dancing.

Now Philadelphia Woman Is Distributing Testaments to Soldiers in Southern Camps

Having sold her jewels to provide funds to turn in Uncle Sam's sailors with pocket Testaments, Mrs. James E. Wolfe is now visiting the southern cantonments, distributing and reading the Scriptures.
Mrs. Wolfe is a member of the Columbia Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Twenty-fifth street and Columbia avenue. Her husband, who is a doctor, is connected with the Business Men's War Council of the Rocket Testament League. She accompanies him as he goes from camp to camp, taking in the "boys" giving them advice and pocket Testaments.
"It's not his line to have a mother in camp," exclaimed one young Kentuckian, after his first conversation with Mrs. Wolfe. She is a "motherly" plume-pollener, as the soldiers say.
In a hospital at Chattanooga, Mrs. Wolfe found one man who made an unusual confession.
"I'm ashamed to say I have never seen a Testament," he confessed to the Philadelphia woman. "I have a wife up North, and she's praying for me."
Before leaving the hospital Mrs. Wolfe gave the young husband a Testament and caucused a promise from him to read a chapter every day.
She began her Christian work by visiting the Naval Hospital, on Gray's Ferry road, that was a year ago, before Mr. Wolfe was connected with the business Men's War Council. Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe are plain people and there was no money in those days to purchase Testaments. However, Mrs. Wolfe had a few jewels, family heirlooms, and she carried them to the pawn shop to obtain money for Bibles. Nowadays the Testaments are turned by a group of Philadelphia business men, led by Joseph M. Steele, Allan Sutcliff and J. Lewis Tweedell.
A Chattanooga woman, who has been visiting the hospital with Mrs. Wolfe, became so interested in the work that she contributed $50 for Testaments.
"I have fifty dollars of the Lord's money, and it shall go for your work," she told Mrs. Wolfe. "I know of no better way of spending it."
Mrs. Wolfe and her husband have only one cooked meal a day. This is in the morning before they start out for a tour of the camp, with their pockets stuffed with sandwiches. Their best opportunity for conversing with the "boys" is at meal time, and they work while they dine in khaki eat. At odd intervals they threaten sandwiches.

Hunting a Husband

CHAPTER LVIII
Sorrow Enters
A solitary tea-cup on my table. Soda crackers and a jar of jam. My brass kettle hummed nicely. I sat down at the window to look at the striped trees outlined against the cold sky.
But a solitary life is not possible in the Square. My Scotch neighbor is never kept out by the look of a closed door. He came over to my table with his invitation. Another cup on my little table. We sat munching crackers and jelly in silent content.
He can recite poetry and drink tea at the same time. I'm a little tired of talk on art-poetry-music. I was glad when he came back to real things.
"Our friend below" he pointed ludicrously with a thumb. "Is pretty much all in. Don't think he'll last much longer!"
"What?" I said in startled fear.
Mr. MacAllister nodded his head. "Great friend of yours, too, isn't he?"
I could not answer.
Why, my sick man could not die! Just last night I had taken him a chocolate pudding. He had seemed so gay and bright. Through these last days he had not left his room.
I piled the cups in the little closet. I wanted to go out and walk off this feeling of fear.
Bobby MacAllister and I wandered through the streets. I forgot my sorrow in watching the antics of some children playing soldiers. Such happy faces in spite of their ragged clothes!
When we came back through the park, we both looked up to the sick man's windows.
"Look!" said Bobby MacAllister. The shades in the sick man's room were all pulled down. They looked like closed eyes.
"It means" I asked.
"Yes," said Bobby MacAllister. He pulled off the Scotch cap from his shaggy hair. I went past the closed door softly. He was no longer the "sick man." I sat down in my unlighted room.
The stillness of the room below seemed to climb up into my own study. I realized how that he has meant to me. No longer I could darn his socks. No longer the papers scattered over his room. No longer can I slip a flower into the jar by his mantel. His face with its spiritual beauty. His hollow eyes looking into mine. I shall see them no more.
A big choke in my throat. The tears slip down my cheeks. I am so lonely. He sits there so quietly on the floor

FARMERETTES ENJOY DANCING IN "BARRACKS"

Wynwood Unit of Women's Land Army Finds Daily Diversion in "Fatigue Duty"

"Fatigue duty" they call it, the khaki-clad farmerettes of the Wynwood unit of the women's land army, who are dancing in the living room of their barracks on the estate of Miss Mary K. Gibson at Wynwood after working hours.
For they are nothing if not military, these thirty-five women who have gone back to the land to free that many men for service.
Their captain is Miss Julia Cresson. Every day they go through their setting-up exercises and all the other military drills necessary to keep them in condition for their work.
Nineteen of the girls are taking an agricultural course under Miss Ruth Metzger, expert agriculturist from Cornell, and Miss Helen Bell, an expert in animal husbandry, also from Cornell.
Miss Metzger, in addition to doing post-graduate work in agriculture at Cornell, was instructor in pomology—which means fruit-tree culture—in that institution.
Miss Bell managed the New Jersey State Reformatory farm last year and was agriculture secretary of the Woman's Council of National Defense at 1607 Walnut street last winter.
Ten acres of the estate are given up to the school. The remainder of the Wynwood unit stationed at the Gibson estate is occupied in the regular work of conducting the farm.
Yesterday the farm school occupied itself in clearing and getting ready for planting a patch of an acre for specimen gardens. In this acre each pupil is to have a plot 25 by 51 feet in which to do laboratory work.
Every vegetable, a row of each, is to be represented and for four hours in the afternoon the pupils will be occupied in cultivating three-acre plots, the results to be planted with vegetables such as beans, corn, potatoes and others most needed by the citizens of Philadelphia. The morning hours were taken up with lectures on the general subject of the land army.
The remainder of the unit were occupied yesterday in arranging quarters for a hundred chickens purchased to augment the thirty-five already on the estate. In other words they were tucked up chicken wire in spite of the commonly held superstition that a woman cannot use a hammer.
The young women who are taking the agricultural course and their laboratory work to a year of service on the soil are Mrs. James J. Moore, Mrs. Josephine S. Palmer and Misses Flora K. Bowden, Mildred C. Briggs, Alice Pascoe, Mary Pascoe, Mabel Crist, May Polly, Dorothy Bailey, Esther M. Burkholder, Rosalie Hirst, Alma B. Miner, Mary Weinberg, Ethel London, Ida Bloom, Amy M. Robinson, Mary Graham Smith and Lucy Edmond Hammond.
Benefit Tomorrow for Hospital
The Governor of New York and Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, the Health Commissioner and Mrs. Royal Copeland, Mrs. Simon Baron and Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, U. S. N., will be among the patrons and patronesses of an entertainment in the Strand Theatre, New York, tomorrow afternoon. The object of equipping a one hundred-bed hospital in France for the Women's Homeopathic Hospital Unit. The movement is national. Pittsburgh and its suburbs have given similar benefits, with the result that half the sum needed has been raised. The fund will care for French women and children.
Misscha Levitzki and Miss Sara Gurovich will play, Leon Rohler, baritone, and Miss May Peterson will sing and Sergeant Guy Empey and Mrs. Jessica Lozier Payne will speak. The performance will be under the direction of the New York Homeopathic Medical College for Women, of which Dr. Cornelius C. Brant is dean.
