Pledges received by the Philadelphia Anti-Saloon League show that twenty-nine candidates for the State House of Representatives, five for the State Senate and six for the United States House of Representatives favor national prohibition.

In addition to the city candidates, thirty-eight candidates for the House in various counties of the State and five candidates for the Senate have sent replies to a letter from the Anti-Saloon League, favoring prohibition.

One of the replies is from Charles A. Ambler, State insurance commissioner, who is a candidate for the Senate in Montgomery County. Ambler, who is pledged to prohibition, is opposed by Representative James Boyd, candidate of the Pentecost forces.

U-BOAT CREW JEERED MEN FIGHTING DEATH IN OCEAN

Camden Youth, Survivor of Steamship Lake Moor, Swam Rough Sea in Darkness Nearly an Hour Before Life-boat Saved Him From Fate of Comrades

MEMBERS of the crew of the German U-boat, which on March 11 torpedoed the American ship Lake Moor, sixty miles off the coast of Ireland, laughed and jeered at American sailors struggling and drowned in a rough sea according to a story of the ship's sinking told today by Richard Nicholas, nineteen years old, 251 Byron street, Camden, one of the Lake Moor survivors.

The ship was torpedoed at 11:20 o'clock at night, Nicholas said, and sank within a few minutes. "The U-boat," he said, "was on the surface and we saw it until after the ship had started to sink. It was in the midst of the sailors who were fighting for their lives in the sea."

"I was on the aft gun mount," Nicholas said, "when the torpedo struck the starboard side. Almost every member of the crew of sixty-four was asleep on the outside decks, having been ordered there that night by the skipper, J. J. Powers. The ship started to list immediately upon being struck."

"U-boat Taunts Survivors" "A general alarm was sounded and a rush was made for the life-boats. Before I could leave my station and get to the lifeboat deck, the ship was sinking rapidly and the boats were pulling away. I had but one chance—to jump into the sea and swim—and I took it. For three-quarters of an hour I swam and

WILL REBUILD NERVES SHATTERED BY WAR

U. S. Medical Corps Has Established Division of Neurology and Psychiatry

Atlantic City, May 8. America has established a precedent for the nations of the earth by establishing a division of neurology and psychiatry in the medical corps of its National Army, Dr. T. H. Welsberg, of Philadelphia, announced today in his annual address as president before the American Neurological Association at Hotel Traymore.

While all wars have produced a great many head, spine and peripheral nerve injuries, with the ever-increasing mechanical methods of warfare and the more general use of artillery, said Doctor Welsberg, "the number of wounds of the nervous system have greatly increased. This caused the surgeon general's department to create a special division dealing with eye, ear, nose and other injuries."

Reconstruction, considered by the surgeon general's office as probably the biggest problem before it, is of acute interest to neurologists for about 20 per cent of the wounded have some injury to the nervous system, the doctor said. Although the neurological work is chiefly confined to the large group of functional conditions known as shell shock and the many traumatic injuries produced by shell and bullet wounds.

President Welsberg reported that a new department on head surgery has been created in the surgeon general's office and a special head hospital is being built, of which Major Charles H. Frazier, of Philadelphia, a member of the neurological association, is to be chief. He spoke with satisfaction also of the fact that the first of the special courses for neurologists was conducted at the University of Pennsylvania.

FACTORY LIGHT GLARE ENDANGERS WORKMEN

Adds to Risk and Cut Down Production of War Materials, Inspectors Are Told

Professor C. E. Chessel addressed both morning and afternoon sessions of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey factory inspectors meeting at the University of Pennsylvania today. "The relation of glare to factory lighting," said the distribution of light in factory spaces, "were his subjects. Professor Chessel emphasized that glare and lack of uniformity in lighting mean risk to workmen and hamper the production of war materials."

CAMDEN BOARD FINDS SCHOOLS CONGESTED

Plans Shift to Accommodate Influx of Children Who Will Come With Shipbuilders

Members of the Camden Board of Education, following an inspection of schools yesterday, were considerably enlightened regarding the city's educational system. Unavoidable congestion of pupils in many of the schools was found by the board and members speedily conferred upon taking steps to relieve conditions. Every school in the city, including the new and old high school buildings, was visited. Notations were made of needed repairs and alterations. The worst congestion was found in the New York Shipyard section.

Probability of a large influx of school children with shipworkers who will occupy the new homes being constructed in the neighborhood of the New York Shipyard was given serious thought by the board. Arrangements were discussed for taking care of these children. A plan which met with approval was to renovate the old high school building on Hudson avenue for use by eighth grade pupils of the down-town schools. This will give the lower-class pupils opportunity of attending two daily. Whether it can be arranged to have the pupils in the shipyard transferred to the old high school building has not been definitely decided. Alterations are completed to the new high school building more than pupils can be handled.

ART ALLIANCE EXHIBITS SERBIAN WAR PICTURES

Tchernoff, Russian Artist, Shows Battle Scenes Drawn and Photographed A private view was given this afternoon at the Art Alliance of the exhibition of photographs and paintings by Sampon Tchernoff, Russian artist, recently arrived here after five years with the Serbian army. Vivid portrayal of war is given by T. Tchernoff, who, with palette and camera, followed the Serbian soldier from beneath the olive trees on the Isle of Corfu to the trenches of the Balkans. One of the pictures shows a sentry on duty on the Serbian frontier on that eventful morning of July 29, 1914. Another picture shows a wounded bomb thrower, fourteen years old. Another depicts King Peter on the battlefield encouraging his men, a scene perpetuated by the Serbian Government by reproduction as postage stamps. The exhibition is open to the public after today, and M. Tchernoff will be in daily attendance. The proceeds on the sales go to the Serbian relief fund.

It's all in Knowing How to Cook Food

Marked Improvement in Cooking After Using Mazola—the Oil from Corn

SINCE the war emphasized the need for food thrift more and more people have realized how much good food used to be spoiled by bad cooking methods.

And the advance in cooking ideas is nowhere so marked as in the preparation of pastries, fried and sautéed dishes and salad dressings.

One reason is because we must save animal fats. Thousands of housewives now know that with Mazola they can cook better than they ever did before—and much more economically.

Mazola is a vegetable oil pressed from the heart of Indian Corn. Mazola does not burn as easily as butter, lard or suet—cooks food more quickly.

Foods fried in Mazola retain all of their natural flavor. Salad dressings are easier to mix with Mazola, they keep longer, and have a delicate tang impossible to get with olive oil.

Not a single drop of Mazola is ever wasted—it can be used and used again because it never carries odor or flavor from one food to another.

For sale in pints, quarts, half gallons and gallons. For greater economy buy the large sizes.

There is a valuable Cook Book for Mazola users. It shows you how to fry, sauté, make dressings and sauces more delicious, make light, digestible pastry. Should be in every home. Send for it or ask your grocer. FREE.
