Flower Market to Be Held in Two Weeks' Time-Mrs. Egan to Talk at Independence Square Red Cross Auxiliary-Other Matters

AFTER hearing that the Flower Market would be held May 22, May 28 and June 4, I have finally been able to nall york for the winter, has returned to her what is purported to be the real date, and it will be held in Rittenhouse Square, as heretofore, on Friday, May 24. It will be given on the usual large scale, and besides the usual wonderful flowers there will be fresh vegetables for sale and real country butter and eggs. Then there is to be an exhibition observation beehive, which will be fascinating, and after you have watched it as long as you like you can turn right around and buy some of the honey made from similar hives and put up in attractive little glass jars. One of the new features this year will be a soda fountain, and if it is a very warm day, as it is most likely to be. I'm sure that will be largely patronized by grown-ups as well as the youngsters. Another thing that will please the children is the news that Mrs. Thomas G. Ashton will have some of her adorable ponies there to make the rides an added attraction of the market.

The beneficiaries are the Visiting Nurse Society, the Orthopedic Hospital, the Southwark Neighborhood House and the Rittenhouse Square Improvement Associa-

The executive committee includes Mrs. Eli Kirk Price, chairman; Mrs. Thomas L. Elwyn, Mrs. Howard W. Pancoast and Mrs. Andrew Wright Crawford.

Mrs. Price was chairman bust year and certainly proved her great ability in an executive position.

WITH the object of raising funds for the summer camp, the local council of the Girl Scouts has arranged to give a rummage sale next week, the proceeds of which will be devoted toward this cause.

Composed of many of the most prominent girls in the city, the Philadelphia committee, through this organization, has accomplished unprecedented results in its various undertakings and the rummage sale, which is to take place on Wednesday. Thursday and Friday of this week at 1007 and 1009 Market street, promises to be one of the most novel and successful affairs of the kind ever given. Under the chairmanship of Harriet Deaver this committee has been untiring in its efforts to bring much in the way of financial results from this sale.

Jewelry, brica-brac, clothing for men. women and children, books, pictures, toys and furniture, all second-hand but most of it in virtually perfect condition, are offered for sale on this occasion at the popular rummage sale prices. Harriet Frazier will have charge of the brica-brac, where she will have on display vases, picture frames, candlesticks and ornaments of all varieties, while household furnishings of every kind will be disposed of by Rachel Fitler. The clothing department is under the management of Mrs. Gardner Cassatt and Mrs. David Stern, while Ellen Mary Cassatt will have charge of the toys. A most interesting restaurant will be under the management of Cecily Barnes, who will be assisted by a number of aides. Gwen Martin, who is treasurer of the Girl Scouts, will also have charge of one of the booths.

A novel idea will be a department where small children can be checked while the mothers shop. The children will be systematically tagged and will be entertained with a Punch and Judy show and children's games. There will also be a thrift stamp counter, the Girl Scouts having already distinguished themselves in selling more than $30,000 worth of stamps. The Girl Scouts made a remakable record in the recent third Liberty Loan drive, an although fewer than 2000 in number sold more than $1,000,000 worth of bonds. The contemplated summer camp is sit unted on the George H. McFadden estate at West Chester, Mr. McFadden having donated the ground and two houses for this purpose. There are accommodations for about thirty Scouts at one time, who while enjoying camp life are under strict military discipline, the camp director in charge being a graduate of Chevy Chase.

The local council consists of the follow ing well-known girls and young married women: Elizabeth Adams, Miss Katherine Hutchinson, Mrs. Alexander Coxe, Cecily Barnes, Miss Edith Biddle, Eugenia Cassatt, Miss Anna F. Davis, Rose Dolan, Miss Gertrude Ely, Miss Helen Fleisher, Miss Anne Thomson, Miss Elsie Foerderer, Mrs. Johann Grolle, Katharine Lea, Mrs. Robert Lesley, Anne Meirs, Mrs. Richard T. Naile. Mary D. Newbold, Mrs. Nicholas Roosevelt. Miss Aimee Stone and Mrs. Edward Mar-

MONDAY afternoon next will be very interesting at the Independence Square Auxiliary of the American Red Cross. Eleanor Franklin Egan, the wife of Martin Egan and a noted writer, will speak to the workers there.

Mrs. Egan was in Mesopotamia with the British armies and dined with General Maude just a few days before his untimely death. Many of us have read Mrs. Egan's writings in the Saturday Evening Post, and it's likely her talk will be immensely interesting, too. She will speak at 3 o'clock NANCY WYNNE.

CARD PARTY AIDS NEW WAR FUND CLUB

Patriotic Speeches Were Made at First Meeting at Hotel Rittenhouse Today

A card party and several patriotic addresses featured the first meeting this afternoon and held in the Rittenhouse Hotel of the Redmond War Fund Club of the Chelsea Auxiliary, No. 343, Red Cross, one of the most flourishing of affiliated Red Cross organizations. Known as a club of "women friends and friends of friends." the organization, which was formed about a month ago by Mrs. Daniel H. Redmond, of 4105 North Broad street, has a membership of 250. It is expected that before the June meeting the ultimate goal of 500 members will be reached. Aside from its war-work activities, in which the membership dues will be turned over to the Red Cross, there will also be a social side to the club, consisting of a monthly card party to be given in the Rittenhouse Hotel by Mrs. Redmond, founder of the club. The July and August meetings will be held at the Chelsea Yacht Club, Atlantic City.

Among those who addressed the meeting this afternoon were Mrs. Frank Stockley, Mrs. Frederick Abbott, president of the Matinee Musical Club, and Mrs. Harriet Beecher Pink, vice president of the Quaker City Ladies' Motor Club.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Mrs. George W. Young, Mrs. E. H. Keefer, Mrs. Samuel Wahn. Mrs. George C. Fleck, Mrs. A. L. Sanson, Mrs. W. J. Poth. Mrs. E. M. Minole, Mrs. George N. Kerr. Mrs.

SOLDIERS' TOBACCO FUND WORK IS PUSHED FORWARD

Government's Commandeering Does Not Interfere With Emergency Aid's Overseas Relief

Although the Federal Government has commandeered the output of several of the manufacturers of popular brands of tobacco for a brief period, this fact will not interfere with the work of the Tobacco Fund of the Overseas Committee of the Emergency Aid.

Mrs. William Gray Warden, chairman of the tobacco committee, said the committee the foliacio committee, said the committee will continue to send tobacco to the soldiers shroad. Ance lean tobacco of any kind is so scarce in France that all brands are welcomed by soldiers in the trenches. The Overseas Fund of the Emergency Ald continues to solicit contributions.

FETE MILITAIRE OPENS TODAY IN ARMORY

Three Arts Club Has Picturesque Scene as Background for Selling Booths

The fete militaire given by the Three Arts Club for the benefit of war-relief work and the United Service Club opened today in the First Regiment Armory. Each club taking part in the fete decorated its own booth, and as there are a number of organizations interested the affair is well worth seeing. The clubs represented are the American committee for devastated France, the national surgical dressings committee, the college women's auxiliary of the mittee, the college women's auxiliary of the Red Cross, the stage women's war relief, the Flastic Club, the Ever-So-Lattle Club, the Interborough Red Cross, the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and the Colonial Dames. Mrs. Stotesbury had two bootlis, which were decorated by the United Service Club.

The Three Arts Club has a gypsy encampment as its own particular part of the fete. This occupies the central position, and shows a garden lawn, with tents and canopies dotted about on the turf, and the inevitable caldron containing the love and campies dotted about on the turf, and the inevitable caldron containing the love potion. Gypsies stroll about among the guests with trays of flowers and cigarettes, selling their wares and telling fortunes. The camp committee is under the direction of Mrs. I. Price Ewing, and includes Miss Dorothea Fisher, Miss Kathleen Mason, Miss Beatile Barker, Miss Forothy Margolies, Miss Louise Sheedy, Miss Dorothy Neff, Miss Paulette Graccaglia, Miss Alice Headley and Miss Adelina Margolies.

The children were simply delighted with The children were simply delighted with the romance of the gypsy encampment and all the other attractive sights, but in case they did not understand it all a special entertainment is provided for them in the hasement of the armory. Down there Mrs. Wiggs and her famous cabbage patch is represented, and the cabbage has prizes for the youngstors concealed in its roots and buried in the sand. There are also movies, the sing Charlin and Mary Pickford showing Charite Chaptin and Mary Pickford in favorite plays. Miss Madeline Connor is chairman of this branch of the entertain-

CHAPTER LX

The Pretense I WAS listening sadly to the sound of moving in the room below.

The room below. That had meant my sick man. The whimsheal smile and the light in bellow eyes. The studio blurred before my chains. ision.
"May I came in?" It was my ever-present testch neighbor with his chirruping ways.
The Sara Lane is alone?" He settled himself on the couch with a usulele. But I did not like the twang-twang tought. I was t in the mood. Bobby MacAllistair threw down the ukunot in the moost.

Robby MacAllistair threw down the ukulele. He walked over to me.

"So" he said.

He was sitting in a moment in his favorite attitude, at my feet. I felt something soft and heavy against my dress. But I did not notice. I put my hand down. It touched a thick head of shaggy hair.

"Just leave it so, a minute," he said. I was lonely, too. I did. Then I felt flexible fingers steal up and hold mine. Hold mine with a warm throbbing clasp.

Still I sat silent. The hold of those warm fingers was comforting. Besides, Bobby MacAllistair is only a loy-man. I drew away my fingers. He held up his head. The look in his eyes changed from dreamy content to a sudden flerceness.

"Sara." he said. "Sara, kiss me."

"Bobby MacAllistair how can you be so silly?"

"Sara, he said. "Sara, kiss me!"
"Bobby MacAllistair how can you be so silly?"
"Sara." he said again, "just once." He was kneeling now. He tried to catch my hands. But I had clasped them behind my back.

A sudden resolve came to me.
"All right." I said, "I will. Then we'll be engaged." I am afraid my tone was businessilke.

"Engaged." There was surprise, hurt surprise, in his voice. I could scarcely retrain from smiling.
"I thought you liked me." I said.
"Don't be silly." he said in return. He had risen now. He was leoking down at me.
"Why is it silly." I give you a kiss!
"The same," said Bobby MacAllistair. His tone was doubtful now. I saw no wild desire, on his part, to carry out his threat.
"But I don't want to be kissed. I want to be engaged......"
"I say, Sara." for the first time since I had known him, he had dropped all his affectations of manner. "You're not that kind of a girl. It's all right for these girls here to propose and all that; but you're too nice. You're realiy a woman. Not a weak imitation pretending she's an Artist."
Bobby MacAllistair stopped for breath.
"So you are a nice boy, after all," I said. And laughed.
Bobby MacAllistair looked at me a moment. "Now I shall kiss you," he said.
But I shut the door firmly on him. And locked it.
