War's Frowning Front

It was June, 1914, when Miss Glowacki, her mother and nine-year-old brother, Millard, salled for Europe, bound for Russia to visit relatives.
After the visit in Russian Poland they planned to tour Europe before returning to the United States. A lengthy visit in Austrian health resorts was planned for the benefit of a grandmother. The Russian visit of the Americans began, when suddenly that great empire was thrown into turmoil. Mobilization had begun.
Government officers configurated peas-
